HOUSE VOTES STATE DRY REPEAL

Today

Farewell Prohibition?
So Polite to Japan.
A Wave of Airplanes.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE HOUSE repeals the prohibition amendment, with no frills or limitations attached. Now the states will decide.

Meanwhile, prohibition-bootleg-crime has not retired from the field.

A newsboy early yesterday morning, making the round of speakies in New York, came to "Porky's Place" on Fifty-second street. All was quiet and of the usual crowd all except three were gone. The three, two men and a woman, were on the floor dead.

ONE DEAD man behind the bar was "Patsy," the bartender, real name Michael Griffin. Another was John Egan, 38-year-old ex-convict.

The dead woman, "smartly dressed and attractive," 28 years old, was identified as Dorothy Miller, alias Dorothy McCarthy. All had been shot in the head, apparently, one after the other, quickly, as they were talking together, the weapons held so close that powder marks were left on each one.

Four are held "for investigation." And meanwhile, more will be shot.

THE COUNTRY has had a long struggle with the demon rum, gradually growing more sober, drinking more beer and less whisky, until prohibition came, suddenly.

Thomas Jefferson, writing to Charles Yancey, said:

"I wish to see beer become common, instead of whisky, which kills one-third of our citizens and ruins their families."

It is not as bad as that now even under prohibition. Far back in the colonial days whisky was a worry. Drunkards were put in the stocks, where small boys and half-sober drunkards amused themselves pelting the unfortunates with eggs and vegetables.

In some cases the drunkard was compelled to wear a large letter "D" around his neck, just as the immoral lady wore a big scarlet "A" on her chest.

But stocks, and letters of different kinds, do not reform drunkards, or cure immorality. You can't do that by law. You can do it by education.

EUROPE, OBSERVING Britain's extreme politeness to Japan, under present "irritating conditions," thus explains the politeness.

London thinks that if League of Nation's interference between China and Japan should force a conflict "England and the United States would bear the brunt of it," and Japan would strike swiftly at American possessions in the Philippines, and at British interests in Hongkong.

You wonder how they would manage to get us into their "bearing the brunt" business.

IT SHOULD be clear, even to Europe, that this nation will not carry out any League of Nations orders or suggestions, or mix up further with foreign squabbles.

If Japan and China decide to fight, we shall let THEM fight, with our blessing And if the League of Nations and dear old England want to interfere, we shall let THEM interfere.

The good old days of shipping billions of American money and millions of men to take part in somebody else's fight have gone by.

JAPAN KEPT out of the big war, but sent intelligent military "observers" to watch the goings-on. And they learned about war

From Chinchow in Manchuria, comes news of a Japanese army of 50,000 troops marching ahead, preceded by a wave of airplanes.

This country, some day, will learn that the airplane is really here. Let us hope enlightenment will come before the planes of some other country have given us a first-class demonstration, at the expense of our big cities.

The United States will be represented in the Japanese army in a business way. The Associated Press reports:

"Whole trainloads of American motor trucks and motorcycles and other equipment have passed through here."

ON WESTERN farms oats can be bought for six to eight cents a bushel. In Chicago you buy oats for sixteen and three-eights cents a bushel. This writer, needing a carload of oats for a horse farm in New Jersey, must pay forty-two and three-eights cents a bushel. Does it not seem that there is something wrong with our system of distribution?

The farmer gets six or eight cents for raising the oats, plowing harrowing, planting, harvesting, threshing, delivering. Distribution to the ultimate consumer, in New Jersey, costs from 34 to 36 cents, five times what the farmer gets. Nobody's fault, but something wrong.

SUPPOSE THE man who buys a small automobile had to pay the dealer five times what it cost the manufacturer to produce the car? Where would the automobile industry be?

ZANGARA, THE would-be murderer of President-elect Roosevelt, pleading guilty, is sentenced to 80 years in prison and asks the Judge to "make it 100."

Accused on four charges, sentenced to twenty years in prison for each, Zangara says he doesn't want anybody to think him insane. He said to the Judge, "Oh, Judge, don't be stingy, give me 100 years," and laughed as he was led away.

MAYOR'S APPEAL FAILS

Supreme Court Won't Review Conviction; Sentence Nears

Mayor Kline today suffered what is perhaps the most crushing blow in his attempts to defeat the misdemeanor conviction returned against him, when the Supreme Court refused to review his case.

The decision of the court was filed today with Pier Dannals, clerk to the Supreme Court, by the office of Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer.

The Supreme Court attached no comment to its order.

This ruling means that the Mayor must take his case back to Butler, where he was convicted.

Mayor Kline in his office at City Hall today, appeared in a jovial mood, and declared that he felt better than yesterday, when he was confined to his home with a headache.

REFERRED TO ATTORNEYS

Asked what the next step would be, he said:

"To find out my next move you will have to see my attorney."

The Mayor declared he had no comment to make regarding the decision of the Supreme Court.

Judge Thomas D. Finletter, who presided at the Kline trial, will now have the duty to set a date on which to return to Butler to pronounce sentence on the Mayor, or to hear arguments for a new trial which he has once refused

News of the decision brought a statement from John D. Houston, wholesale grocer whose protest of conduct of the supplies department started the investigation resulting in Kline's conviction. Houston suggested that the Mayor should resign. Houston hailed the decision as likely to "free our city from the domination of the political powers which have long exploited it."

HOUSTON'S VIEWS

Houston's statement follows:

"The decision of the Supreme Court in the Kline appeal should prove most encouraging

PARIS, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—King Carol of Rumania used the words of Marshal MacMahon to dispose of rumors that he intended to abdicate, the Journal said today it had learned from its Bucharest correspondent. The King—and and MacMahon before him—were quoted as saying:

"I am here, I shall stay here."

KAISER'S WIFE, PAPEN CONFER

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—A momentous conference between Princess Hermine, wife of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, and Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen regarding the possibilities of a monarchical restoration was revealed exclusively to International News Service today.

The meeting took place on Sunday afternoon at the palatial residence of Frau con Zitzewitz, who was a lady-in-waiting to the late ex-Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, first wife of Wilhelm II.

Von Papen, it was learned, explained in great detail the political situation which has arisen in Germany since the elevation of Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader, to the chancellorship. Princess Hermine will report to the former Kaiser as soon as she returns to Doorn, Holland.

In the course of the conference which lasted for several hours, Von Papen dwelt at length upon the rising tide of monarchist sentiment in Bavaria.

Girl 'Racketeers' Fleece School Children

Racketeering activities entered the realm of childhood today, with fleecing of depositors in the school bank of the Concord School, Carrick avenue, Carrick.

The robbing was done by 15-year-old girls.

They approached children on their way to school this morning—which was bank day—and asked for their money, saying they would give it to the teachers.

The girl confidence workers escaped with 73 cents, taken from second and third-grade pupils. The victims were Emily Bingham, 8; Albert Diegelman, 7; Dorothy Windeknecht, 8, and Olka Krasofsky, 8.

One boy, Howard Loadman, 7, refused to surrender the family funds—5 cents of his own and 5 cents belonging to his brother. He said:

"Boy, did I run!"

Questioned as to what it feels like to be held up, Howard admitted:

"It's not a bit like the movies."

Several children in higher grades said they had been approached by the girls, but had refused to heed them.

JAP FORCES BEGIN DRIVE ON JEHOL

Associated Press.

Following a night battle at the Jehol village of Chaoyangssu, 30 miles west of Chinchow, Manchuria, the Japanese war machine moved into the Chinese province today.

The Manchukuoan government, established with Japanese assistance, prepared a 24-hour ultimatum calling on Chinese forces to withdraw from the province.

At Geneva, the League of Nations report condemning Japan's Manchurian policy was presented at a special assembly and will be debated Friday.

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, Feb. 21. — (AP.) — Japan's mighty war machine rolled into Jehol Province today after a sanguinary night battle on the border.

Many Chinese were slain at Chaoyangssu, a Jehol village about 30 miles west of here, and their defeated comrades fled northward.

The main Japanese force pressing westward from here was at the gates of Nanling today. Peipiao, terminus of a railway from here, was expected to be occupied shortly thereafter without serious opposition by Chinese defenders.

Then the Japanese army will be ready to strike at Chaoyang, the second largest city in Jehol, which is about 20 miles from Chaoyangssu. It guards the main central route to Jehol City, the metropolis and seat of the Chinese government in the province, 150 miles distant.

JAPANESE ADVANCE

A Japanese garrison stationed at Chaoyangssu battled with the Chinese last night while the main Japanese force under Gen. Yoshimichi Suzuki, who captured the Chinese city of Shanhaikwan last January 3, poured into the province without a hitch in its movement.

The Japanese, who have held Chaoyangssu for many months, asserted that they were attacked by the Chinese. They identified

Rudy Vallee Leaps Upon Dixie Heckler

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader, had a set-to with a heckler at a dance for which his orchestra played here last night.

Police removed the heckler, whose name was not revealed, and took Vallee back to the stage. Vallee had leaped down upon the man after "listening long enough" to what he termed a series of "insulting remarks."

Mr. Hearst Gives Views On How Government Can Aid Recovery

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. — (INS.) — A far-reaching governmental program for restoring prosperity to America and preventing bad times in the future was expounded today by William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, in a letter to the Senate Finance Committee.

Mr. Hearst laid down a six-point program. He recommended:

1—A system "greatly to increase public works during periods of depression," to be paid ordinarily by funds set aside in good times but to be financed now by bond issues, which would be repaid in the future.

2—Substitution of the sales tax for income taxes, with a diminishment of all federal taxes in bad times.

3—Reflation of the currency by increased issues of federal bonds and Federal Reserve notes.

4—Protection of home markets through exclusion of cheaply-made foreign products.

5—Expansion of home markets for the farmer, with a refinancing of agricultural credits by the government at a low interest rate.

6—Unification of all railroads in a single system.

Mr. Hearst declared the "cause of the crash seems to have been due to speculative fever on the part of the public, accompanied by general overexpansion and overcapitalization on the part of industry, and aggravated by the promotion and sale of securities which were more or less obviously worthless, and probably known by the promoters to be worthless." He said the government, mortgage holders and money lenders even now were co-operating to "deflate and liquidate America."

"The essential question in the cure of the depression, then seems to be how to overcome this tendency downward," Mr. Hearst said. "And the crucial point seems to be how to restore the purchasing power of the community and to make the people not only able but willing to spend money and buy products, and so stimulate production and employment."

Public Works

Then, Mr. Hearst described each of his remedies:

"I have continually urged that one very important way to accomplish this is for the government during periods of depression to make exceptional expenditure in public works, and not only give direct employment to some millions of unemployed but indirectly to give employment to laborers in those industries which create the products employed in construction, and to salesmen and accountants; and also indirectly to give employment, through the increasing consuming power of the public, to the workers employed generally in the shops and factories.

"It would seem that the plan should be comprehensive enough to include a system, as was proposed by the Hoover conference, greatly to increase public works during periods of depression and to decrease them to a minimum during periods of prosperity; since in prosperous times not only is employment generally obtainable in private enterprise, but the cost of public construction is excessive; while in periods of depression, government work takes up the slack of unemployment, and also has the advantage to the government of being performed at lower cost.

38-MILE GALE LASHES CITY

Pittsburgh was lashed by a 38-mile-an-hour gale today and considerable damage was done. Accompanying the gale was a brief but blinding snowstorm.

The cold spell will be short lived. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said. Tonight the mercury will drop to between 15 and 20, with a rapid rise tomorrow.

The storm was at its height when Thomas A. Beattie, superintendent of the National Tube Company's McKeesport plant, was struck by an automobile at Fifth avenue and Beechwood boulevard

Beattie, who is 68 and lives in the Schenley Apartments, was reported in serious condition in Mercy Hospital. The police said he was struck by the automobile a few minutes after he had attended early mass at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The driver, Arthur Walker, 34, of Verona boulevard, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving the police reported.

A large plate glass window in the Dimling Candy Shop, 647 Liberty avenue, was loosened by the wind and police stood guard to prevent pedestrians being injured should it break.

A sign of the Nixon Theater was blown down. In the outlying districts branches were blown from trees and other minor damage resulted.

MELLON SEES U. S. RECOVERY

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Confidence in the economic vitality of the United States was expressed by United States Ambassador Mellon tonight at a farewell banquet given in his honor by the Pilgrims' Society. He said:

"In America we are finding sources of hidden strength within ourselves. Our economic system has shown such inherent strength that it continues to function with efficiency in the face of the greatest maladjustment the world has ever seen."

Regarding prospects for the coming year, Ambassador Mellon said:

"I have faith that some solution for the most pressing problems can and will be found. New men will soon be at the helm ready and capable of grappling with these problems.

"Whatever administration may be in power at Washington, the cornerstone of America's foreign policy will continue to be friendship and close co-operation with the British people."

With regard to the war debts, Mellon counseled patience, saying:

"It will take time, I fear, and patience and more than one conference perhaps to adjust ourselves."

COUNTY VOTES WET

Allegheny Members for Ending Enforcement Legislation

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—The House of Representatives today voted repeal of the Snyder-Armstrong state dry enforcement act.

The vote for repeal was 136 to 62, a greater margin than that by which the Schwartz blue law repealer passed the House two weeks ago.

DELAY BLOCKED

Action on the bill came after an unavailing effort by some spokesmen for the Republican state organization to prevent consideration until next week, pending consideration of methods for creating a convention to consider Pennsylvania's attitude on the national repeal resolution adopted yesterday in Congress.

Members milled about the floor in hasty conferences, some Philadelphia wets attempting to persuade Conner and Sowers to refrain from insisting upon a vote today. The two were inflexible, Conner informing the House that every one knew what the bill was, and that no further time was needed for deliberation.

When Speaker Talbot was able to restore order and clear the floor of the gesticulating members, Rep-

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Andrew W. Mellon, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, has decided to return to Washington early in March, relinquishing the Embassy without awaiting his successor, it was announced today.

The Embassy is planning to request an early audience for Ambassador Mellon with Ging George in order that he may bid formal farewell to the Court of St. James.

The troopers will be the chief witnesses.

SPEED RATIFICATION

Legislatures Rushing Action to End Prohibition

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Declaring for a vote of the people on prohibition in statewide elections, leaders of the nation's anti-prohibition organizations today swung into action for speedy repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Fearful of gerrymandering at the hands of Legislatures controlled by drys, wet leaders urged the adoption of the electoral college system of choosing delegates to the state conventions which will act on repeal.

The strategy of the anti-prohibition leaders embraced both a decision by the people and prompt action. Confident the wet tide is running strong, they believe repeal can be accomplished in a few months.

U. S. MOVE DOOMED

As many State Legislatures were setting up machinery for the conventions, a movement was under way in Congress to have the federal government call the conventions and pay for the election. The movement appeared doomed to failure in the present session.

Secretary of State Stimson planned to complete the last formality necessary for state action today, by certifying the repeal resolution to the 48 states. It was adopted by a vote of 289 to 121 in the House yesterday, after the Senate had approved it last week, 63 to 23.

In urging state-wide elections, President Jouett Shouse, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, opposed the selection of delegates by state legislative districts.

He proposed that the states use the electoral college system

BLUE LAW BILL CURB FOUGHT

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21. — Efforts of some Philadelphia Senators to amend the Schwartz Sunday blue law modification bill to make it apply only to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, has met with a storm of opposition from Senators from other parts of Pennsylvania where sentiment is strong for liberalizing the Sunday law to permit the playing of baseball on the Sabbath between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m.

Senator Charles W. Staudemeir, of Schuylkill, at a meeting of the sub-committee of the Law and Order Committee last night, represented this sentiment, with support from Senator Lanning Harvey, of Luzerne, and Joseph R. Ziesenheim, of Erie, among others.

The result is a deadlock on the bill, with the probability that no action will be taken on it for at least another week.

Herd Reinstated as City Bridge Head

William A. (Bill) Herd, city superintendent of bridges, is back on the job, his suspension lifted today by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang. Herd, Republican chairman of the Twenty-first Ward, and political ally of Councilman Harry A. Little, was sick during the first two weeks of February, Lang said. Yesterday he returned with a physician's certificate and was immediately re-instated. He was off the city payroll for two weeks, Lang said, and was suspended last week because he was absent without leave.

ROOSEVELT CONFERS WITH FRENCH, CANADIAN ENVOYS

EARLY PARLEY ON ECONOMIC ISSUES SEEN

Claudel Says He Talked 'Everything' With F. R.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—President-elect Roosevelt extended his conversations with foreign representatives today, conferring first with the French ambassador and then with the Canadian Minister. Yesterday he conferred with the British Ambassador.

William Duncan Herridge, the Canadian minister, reached the Roosevelt home just as Paul Claudel, the French ambassador, concluded a 45-minute conference with the President-elect.

Claudel was accompanied by Emmanuel Monick, financial attache of the French embassy.

CLAUDEL VOLUBLE

Asked if war debts had been discussed, the Ambassador spread his hands and said:

"We discussed many things, everything. Mr. Roosevelt has a nice communique for you."

The President-elect sent out word he would issue his statement late today. It was not disclosed whether representatives of other nations would be called in during the day.

The office staff insisted it knew of no other engagements, but Mr. Roosevelt had about cancelled plans to leave here tonight for Hyde Park.

The Claudel visit, following so closely on the Lindsay conference indicated that Roosevelt is pointing toward an early world economic conference.

CONSULTS EXPERTS

Before receiving Claudel, Roosevelt gathered about him a formidable group of economic and diplomatic authorities, headed by Bernard Baruch, New York financier, and Prof. Raymond Moley, war debts expert. These advisors had withdrawn, however, when Claudel and his companion arrived and Roosevelt was the only American present at the ensuing conference in the second floor study of his home.

William C. Bullitt, who denied on his return from Europe last week that he had been there as a representative of the President-elect, was on the calling list today, but he did not arrive at the time set aside for him.

It was believed that the world economic situation and possibly the Far Eastern crisis were subjects uppermost in the conversation at the Claudel conference. There is every sign of a united front by England and the United States toward the Far Eastern situation and it was believed the French attitude was likely being sought at today's conference.

Roosevelt is very anxious to obtain early monetary stabilization and tariff reciprocity. It is believed he intends to seek these now before negotiatting debt relief for European debtors.

Beware Too Much Coddling -:- By QUIN HALL

HOUSE TO ACT ON WAGNER AID BILL

$300,000,000 Measure Passed by Senate By Big Margin

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The Senate-approved Wagner bill calling for widespread expansion of the government's unemployment relief program is expected to receive early consideration by the House.

Passed by the Senate, 54 to 16, yesterday, it provides an additional $300,000,000 for relief loans to states and liberalizes the terms for construction loans by the Reconstruction Corporation.

As the measure awaited a decision by House leaders on when it would be considered, Congress drove ahead in a vigorous effort to push the vital appropriation measures toward enactment.

STOCK MARKET PROBE

Meanwhile, congressional committees investigated stock market practices, attempted to ascertain how to improve business conditions and grappled with farm legislation.

The Wagner measure was substituted for the long-pending La Follette-Costigan bill which would appropriate $500,000,000 as an outright gift to the states for destitution relief.

Action came after Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, had denounced both bills, urged the abolition of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and characterized the Home Loan Bank system as "abominable."

It became known at about the time Glass was speaking he had refused an offer to be in the Roosevelt cabinet as Secretary of the Treasury.

BANKRUPTCY ACTS

The Senate planned today to lay aside its pending measure to make important revisions in bankruptcy legislation in order to take up the billion dollar independent offices supply measure. A fight impended on efforts to trim the funds of the Trade Commission.

On the House side, the conference report on the Treasury-Post-office appropriations bill was up for consideration. The Bratton proposal to require department heads to reduce expenses next year by 5 per cent was the focal point of conflict.

MILLION A YEAR BANKER'S PAY, QUIZ TOLD

New York Financier Testifies at Stock Investigation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (AP.)—Evidence that Charles E. Mitchell received salaries amounting to over a million a year during 1928 and 1929 as an officer of the National City Bank and its security affiliate was presented today to the Senate Banking Committee.

At the same time, the committee received from Mitchell testimony that of the twenty billions of securities his company had handled. "I think there has been difficulty of one sort of another of something under one billion dollars."

He gave the estimate in response to an inquiry as to how many securities sold by his company were now in default.

INSULL LOANS REVEALED

Mitchell was the first witness in the investigation into the operations of his company after the committee had concluded its Insull inquiry.

Winding up its Insull investigation before starting one into the National City Bank, the Senate Banking Committee today questioned George W. Davison, of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company of New York.

Davison, chairman of the bank's board, testified that in December, 1931, his bank had loans of $12,500,000 to Insull companies, but that the loans were slightly reduced during that month.

UNAWARE OF AGREEMENT

Davison testified under the questioning of Ferdinand Pecora the committee counsel, that he did not know of the Insull companies' debenture agreements until February, 1932, when he talked with Owen D. Young.

The debenture agreements provided that the Insull companies should not incur obligations of more than 50 per cent of their assets.

HOOVER URGES ECONOMIC AID

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Into the crowded legislative program of the rapidly dying Seventy-second Congress was injected today a recommendation by President Hoover for enactment of "economic recovery" legislation coupled with open opposition to the domestic allotment farm relief measure.

His views were made known in a special message sent to Congress late yesterday without advance notice. At about the same time the Senate voted to make one of the measures he advocated—bankruptcy legislation—its pending business.

President Hoover apparently sounded the doom of the farm relief measure for this session when he said the allotment plan "is wholly unworkable" and "will do far greater harm than good to agriculture." He urged a "temporary leasing of marginal lands" instead.

In addition, he described publicity of Reconstruction Corporation loans as "destroying the usefulness" of that lending agency.

Action was urged on the general principles embodied in the Glass banking bill; the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway treaty; authorizing the Reconstruction Corporation to increase the amount of relief loans to states and municipalities, and his proposal to authorize the President to impose an arms embargo against other nations when war threatened.

JAPS IN DRIVE ON JEHOL

the troops as under the command of Gen. Tang Yu-Lin, the governor of Jehol. (A Tokio war office bulletin said the clash was an isolated affair, not connected with the major offensive.)

CHINESTE IN FLIGHT

Last reports of that engagement said the Japanese garrison was pursuing the fleeing Chinese. Cavalry, infantry and artillery forces, augmented by the most up-to-date war machines, were headed along the railway to Peipiao. It was doubted whether they would encounter any real opposition for a few days at least.

They are taking the shortest route from Manchuria into the province which Japan intends to annex to Manchukuo. Another Japanese concentration on the border east of Kailu, Jehol, was expected to start activities in that northern sector soon.

Manchukuo to Demand Evacuation of Jehol

SHANGHAI, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—On Thursday afternoon the government of Manchukuo will deliver an ultimatum to Chang Hsiao-Liang, commander of the Northern Chinese Army and to the National government at Nanking demanding complete evacuation of the Province of Jehol, Japanese dispatches from Changchun said today.

It will say that unless Chang withdraws his troops, "Manchukuo will expel them by force." The Chinese authorities will be given 24 hours to submit.

The feeling here is that the Chinese will refuse to submit to the ultimatum and that the anticipated hostilities in Jehol will thereby be brought nearer.

League Receives Report Assailing Japanese

GENEVA, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The League of Nations report condemning Japan's Manchurian policy was presented this afternoon to the league assembly, which then adjourned without discussion until Friday, when the report will be debated.

Shortly after the adjournment the Japanese delegation issued a statement reiterating that the government at Tokio would be unable to accept the League's report.

The statement warned that a grave situation would arise if the Assembly should adopt the report, and appealed to the Assembly "to think twice before making this decision."

RANSOM FRAUD WATCHED

DENVER, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Independent of police assistance, Claude K. Boettcher, multimillionaire father of kidnaped Charles oBettcher II, took precautions today to prevent any attempt to defraud him of the $60,000 ransom demanded by the abductors of his missing son.

True to his previous decision to carry on private negotiations, Boettcher continued his efforts to regain contact with the actual abductors to inform them he was willing to pay the ransom on condition they would guarantee the safe return of his son.

Following the definite break between the Boettcher family and police, the case again slipped into a morass of unverified rumors and doubtful clues.

One rumor said Boettcher was expecting hourly the release of his son. Another rumor had it the kidnapers had informed Boettcher the 21-year-old broker would be released within three hours after the payment of the ransom.

'Pay What You Can' Theater Wrecked

LOS GATOS, Cal., Feb. 21.—(INS.)—With a detonation that shook the town, a bomb exploded today, wrecking a theater that has been operating on a basis of "pay what you can" for admission. The owner, sleeping in an apartment above the theater, was not injured. He denied a police theory that labor trouble was responsible for the bombing.

F. R. 'DICTATOR' PLAN DEBATED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Upon the outcome of a vigorous three-hour debate that agitated the House today depended the Democratic proposal to give the next President authority to cut government expenses in a big way by abolishing bureaus and their functions.

The plan was put up to the membership by Chairman Byrns, of the Appropriations Committee, with an announcement that no effort would be made by the leaders to enlarge the Presidential authority to include reduction of statutory payments such as veterans' compensation.

Byrns proposed that the House reject the Senate provision for a flat 5 per cent cut below the totals authorized by Congress.

The Bratton amendment for the flat 5 per cent cut, he said, would mean the destruction of "some bureaus." He added:

"I believe we must maintain an adequate Navy. I have been told that the Bratton amendment would cause 33 ships to be laid up and would cause our Navy to be the equal of Japan."

HIDE RICH CHILD AFTER THREATS

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Murder and kidnaping threats have driven the mother of little Lucy Cotton Thomas, $36,000-a-year heiress, to hide the child upstate.

Ever since a judge ruled recently that the 7-year-old girl must worry along on $3,000 a month from her father's estate instead of the $3,800 asked on her behalf, cranks and criminals have deluged her home with demands for money, her mother said yesterday.

One note demanded $100,000 and another asked $50,000 on pain of kidnaping, said the mother, now Mrs. Lucy Cotton Thomas Magraw She said:

"Oh, we've taken good care that they'll never get Lucy. They've even threatened my life, too, but I'm not worried about that. I'm a fatalist, you know."

Little Lucy's father was Edward Russell Thomas, banker. Her mother, a former actress who has been married four times, is now the wife of William M. Magraw, engineering executive.

MAYOR KLINE'S APPEAL FAILS

"I believe it will result in having the voters select at the next municipal election persons with the inclination to act in the interests of the distressed taxpayers.

"The obvious move for Mayor Kline is to resign immediately and no longer disregard public sentiment."

SUCCOP IN JAIL

The decision against the Mayor was handed down just 10 days after his co-defendant, Bertram L. Succop, former city purchasing agent, began serving in the county jail a one-year sentence imposed by Judge Finletter.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced after the decision had been handed down that he would communicate with Judge Finletter asking the jurist to return to Butler and sentence the Mayor. However, before sentence is pronounced, Prichard undoubtedly will argue for a new trial. And if this is granted it will take precedence over sentence.

If Judge Finletter should refuse Mayor Kline a new trial, the Mayor for a brief minute or two would not be Mayor, as the sentence includes forfeiture of his office. However, Prichard's notice of appeal from the sentence would offset that.

PROMPT DECISION

The Supreme Court acted in a remarkably short time. It was just February 9 that Park filed his objections to the Mayor's application for a review of the case.

It was a month ago that the Superior Court ruled against the Mayor by reinstating the guilty verdict which Judge Finletter had tossed out of court. The Mayor was convicted on one count, acquitted on more than 40 others. Both his and Succop's convictions were based on accusations of favoritism in the award of city contracts.

There is certain to be a hotly-disputed argument when the Mayor's attorneys, Charles Prichard and Edward Coll, argue for a new trial before Judge Finletter. District Attorney Park is not willing to concede that the Mayor has a right to ask for a new trial, the same judge having refused a similar motion when he tossed out the Kline verdict.

If the court sustains Park, then the Mayor will be sentenced. But before the sentence is effective, Prichard may appeal to the higher courts from the sentence, and also for a new trial.

COAL BILL HELD CONFISCATORY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The Davis-Kelly coal regulation bill was held unconstitutional today in a report to the Senate Mining Committee by a subcommittee of Senators Walsh (Dem.), Montana; Logan (Dem.), Kentucky, and Robinson (Rep.), Indiana.

The Davis-Kelly bill, introduced by Senator Davis and Representative Kelly, both of Pennsylvania, provides for government regulation designed to stabilize the coal industry. It had the support of the United Mine Workers of America.

The measure was opposed by operators on the grounds that the government has no power to regulate or order conservation of natural resourcees as long as they are in private hands, and that Congress could not treat mining as a public utility.

Jap Pacifist, Doomed To Die, Twice Saved

KOBE, Japan, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Police thwarted two attempts by reactionaries upon the life of Yukio Ozaki, veteran Liberal leader, when he arrived home today from a long stay abroad.

The 73-year-old disarmament champion and ex-mayor of Tokio had said, when leaving London more than a month ago, that he knew certain assassination awaited him in Japan. But, he wrote his son, he would "die with a smile."

When the Terukuni Maru from London, with Ozaki aboard, docked here this morning, police detained three members of a patriotic society attempting to board the liner to see Ozaki.

Later, as Ozaki stepped to the pier, two youths brandishing clubs attempted to reach him. But police intervened, arresting the assailants, and Ozaki escaped unharmed.

An attempt was made to assassinate Ozaki in January, 1917, when he demanded the resignation of the Terauchi cabinet, following one in which he was Justice Minister.

In late years Ozaki has travelled in the United States and other countries, championing disarmament. He said Japan was making a mistake in opposing entry of the United States in efforts to conciliate the present Sino-Japanese dispute. He was expelled from his party when he accused Japan of fostering a Chinese revolution.

He told a London reporter he knew his "death warrant was signed."

School Drawing Leads Father to Dying Son

Eight-year-old Michael Hawrilak, 67 South Sixteenth street, was fatally injured late yesterday when he darted in front of an automobile at South, Sixteenth and Carson streets.

Carrying a small schoolroom drawing, depicting a king sitting on the head of an elephant, Michael, first grade pupil of Birmingham School, ran in front of the machine, driven, police said, by Clyde Ladona, 23, of 331 Belonda street.

The boy, suffering a skull fracture, was taken to South Side Hospital, where he lay unidentified until five minutes before his death, when his father, John Hawrilak, found by police through the drawing, reached his bedside.

NOT SURPRISED AT NEW YORK CUSTOMS BAN

Says Michelangelo Frescoes Might Seem Immoral on Glance

The New York customs censor who took one look at reproductions of Michael Angelo's frescoes in the Vatican and banned them as immoral drew no ridicule from Msgr. Enrico Pucci, domestic prelate to Pope Pius XI and in charge of foreign press affairs at Vatican City.

Here today to discuss with Bishop Hugh C. Boyle a forthcoming volume on the history and art of the Vatican, he said:

"It is not surprising at first glance to think some of Michael Angelo's pictures are immoral. Not only from other viewpoints, but from a Catholic view, a few might momentarily seem that way. However, they reflect the painter's age, and, I think, are not sensual in any way."

TELLS ART PROGRESS

Msgr. Pucci has just completed an 80-000-page volume on the Vatican, to be illustrated by Vernon Kellogg Bailey, the noted water colorist. The book will contain many reproductions of the art treasures of Vatican City, he explained.

Speaking of Roman antiques and the improvements in Rome and Vatican City, the prelate told of the new avenues, the recovery of ancient Christian monuments and art by excavations, of the three Roman cities, one built atop of the other. Of modern life, he commented:

"Pope Pius' motto is 'to be in the vanguard of progress.' He has a radio in his room, and one of Gulielmo Marconi's assistants lives in Vatican City. The Pope has honored his friend Marconi by naming a street in Vatican City after him. It is the only one named after a living man.

RASKOB GIFT

The library will be ready for the beginning of the Holy Year, he added, its new walls already completed, work of replacing the destroyed or damaged art works being done, and the whole library outfitted with American metal shelves from New Jersey, the gift of John Raskob.

Accompanied by Benjamin A. Howe, publisher, of the Vatican Memorial Series, Msgr. Pucci visited the Rev. James R. Cox, then took a plane for Cleveland.

Msgr. Pucci will be in charge of sending back to the United States a special cachet commemorating the opening of the Holy Year. The design has been created by Father Cox, and envelopes with this will be addressed in Pittsburgh, sent to Rome where Vatican City stamps will be affixed, and cancelled, and sent back to Sun-Telegraph subscribers.

DEATH OF CHILD LAID TO FRIGHT

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Fright, induced perhaps by a sudden noise in the underbrush of a muddy ravine near his home, today was advanced as the most probable cause of the death of 8-year-old Ebert Holleron, for whom a nation-wide search had been conducted.

The lad, known among those who knew him best as an unusually timid boy, disappeared October 22. Although police, neighbors and Boy Scouts scoured the ravine for days, his body was not found until yesterday.

The theory that fear caused his death was that of Coroner A. J. Pearse, who announced after an autopsy, that Ebert had an enlarged thymus gland. Such a condition, he said, often causes timidity of the extent that death by fright is possible.

JURY IGNORES WILSON CASE

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Charges of hushed investigations and political pressure made in connection with the Wilson-Roberts slayings in 1929 today were ignored by the Burlington County grand jury.

The jury returned 21 indictments in other cases to Judge Charles Rigg and was dismissed "until summoned again."

Almost a score of witnesses, summoned to give new testimony concerning the deaths of Horace Roberts, Jr., and Ruth Mowdray Wilson, will appear before Prosecutor Howard Eastwood for questioning. This was taken to indicate that any discussion of the slayings by the jury yesterday was entirely unofficial. Eastwood said:

"My future procedure is still in doubt. I will question the witnesses subpenaed."

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Orin Luster, 25, finds it poor business to "high hat" holdup men.

Luster, son of former Judge Max Luster, was on his way home, wearing his derby high on his head when acosted by two men, armed with pistols. He pleaded he had but a few dollars. Said one robber:

"So you're one of those calm guys and also high hat. What are you wearing your derby so high on your head for?"

Colton was over Lake Calumet when the motor failed. Then followed a glide to earth during which he utilized a wind that alternately ebbed and reached neargale force. He said:

"It was like going down a flight of stairs."

Attempting to land in a street near suburban Blue Island, Colton's plane struck several telephone wires and toppled to the ground, right side up. Both wings and propellor of the plane were damaged.

MAY SEEK NEW ZANGARA TRIAL

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Attorneys for Giuseppe Zangara deliberated today on the question of seeking a new trial for the assassin who shot Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, and four other persons in an attempt to kill President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Announcement that defense attorneys would confer on a possible move for a new trial for Zangara, given 80 years yesterday for attempting to kill Mr. Roosevelt and three of the victims of his bullets, was made by J. M. McCaskill, one of three attorneys appointed by the court to handle the assassin's case.

He said:

Our plans are not definite. And I do not even know whether we will attempt future action. As soon as my colleagues and I are able to get together, we will go into the whole situation."

Whether the defense would appeal the case, McCaskill could not say. So far, he said, there has been no consideration of such a move.

PET DOG SAVES FOUR IN FIRE

Aroused by the scratching and whining of a pet dog at a front door early today, a Treveskyn mother and her two children were led from their smoke-filled home to safety in night attire by a son, shortly before flames destroyed the dwelling.

Mrs. Victor Tessro and her three children, Joe, 20; Wedo, 14, and Angeline, 12, were asleep on the second floor of the home when Joe was awakened by the dog at the door. Joe aroused his mother and the children and led them to the street.

Bridgeville firemen were handicapped by lack of water, and the dwelling, a two-story frame, was destroyed, with an estimated loss of $3,000.

CERMAK TELLS OWN STORY OF SHOOTING

Sorry for Assassin, Declares Wounded Mayor of Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—From his bed in a Miami (Fla.) hospital, Mayor Anton J. Cermak told a reporter for the Chicago Herald and Examiner his own story of his wounding by an assassin who tried to kill President-elect Roosevelt. He included a plea for better team work in America.

The story, telegraphed from Miami and copyrighted by the newspaper, described how the Mayor of America's second city harbored no ill-feeling for Giuseppe Zangara, the man who shot him down, but of how he saw in the shooting a lesson for the common good.

PASSES CRISIS

Meanwhile, Dr. Karl Meyer, of Chicago, stated today at Miami that Mayor Cermak has definitely passed the crisis attending his critical wounding.

Commenting concerning Zangara, the Mayor said:

"I am just sorry his mind is so deranged.

"The lesson the nation should learn from this incident is that we should all work together for the common good. Every citizen should try to believe in his elected public officials and should give them a chance. Public officials don't want to fail. They want to succeed.

"It may be that I will carry this bullet with me for the rest of my days. If this in anyway makes just a few people understand the need for greater cooperation at this time I should almost thank the poor unfortunate who shot me for giving me this opportunity to make my contribution to the great American nation which has given me my opportunities."

TELLS OF SHOOTING

Of the shooting itself the Mayor said:

"I did not know I had been shot. I had just left President-elect Roosevelt when I was stunned as by a severe jolt of electricity. There was a lot of excitement going on anyhow, and with the roar of the motorcycles and the yelling I did not even hear the shots.

"I walked about 20 steps, wondering what had happened, when two men grabbed me. I guess I started to sink. At about this time I knew of the shooting and I realized I had been wounded. My chest felt like the center of it was on fire."

Mayor Cermak ignored a nurse who indicated the interview should be terminated and continued:

"I was ready to go, if I had to go, but there remains so much for me to do. I was happy a few moments before in getting President-elect Roosevelt's promise he would do all he could to help me get sufficient loans from the government to pay the back salaries of the school teachers, policemen, firemen, and other employes who really have suffered more than what I am going through today.

"And then this happened."

POLICE BLOCK F. R. 'MESSAGE'

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Irving Brietbard, a Bronx shipping clerk, tried to take a "personal message" to President-elect Roosevelt today and landed in a police station.

Brietbard was halted in the vestibule of the Roosevelt's East Sixty-fifth street home by police and questioned. He would not state his mission and was taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street station.

He refused again to talk to police but confided to reporters he wished to see the President-elect concerning recognition of the Jewish flag and the "futility of war." Satisfied he meant no harm, police released him.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Two men arrested Saturday in connection with a letter which had been found, expression regret that the attempt to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt was unsuccessful, were released yesterday after John W. Fihelly, United States attorney, advised police they had committed no crime. The two were Harry Taft Thompson, 27, and William R. Birmingham, 28. Thompson and Birmingham, police said, insisted the letter was intended as a joke.

Need Woman's Consent To Save Sandy's Life

If Mrs. Anna Zawaski, of East Pittsburgh, wishes to save the life of Sandy, the mongrel dog that bit her four-year-old son, she may do so today by giving her written consent in Criminal Court.

Judge Samuel L. Reed, of Cambria County, told Attorney Charles D. Coll, Sandy's counsel, he would rescind the death sentence imposed upon the dog as a condition in the parole of its owner, Frank Sechran, of East Pittsburgh, if Mrs. Zawaski, the prosecutor, would give her consent.

Judge Reed yesterday refused to entertain a motion for the dog's pardon unless Mrs. Zawaski gave her consent. Attorney Coll suggested that Judge Reed view the dog as evidence that he was not vicious, but he refused.

Sechan had pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a vicious dog. An unidentified Carrick woman retained Attorney Coll to save Sandy's life.

WORK COUNCIL LAUNCHES JOB CAMPAIGN

A campaign for cash work relief rather than a dole has been decided on by the Work Relief Committee of the Community Councils which plans to seek support from all of the civic organizations of the Pittsburgh district.

The committee has also gone on record as supporting two measures before Congress, the Wagner bill, which would make Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds available for relief, and the Costigan-LaFollette bill, which would create an emergency relief fund through bonds.

CASH WORK RELIEF

Dr. Francis Tyson, University of Pittsburgh, addressing the committee said:

"The worst cost of the depression is the demoralization of the individual."

The committee, headed by the Rev. Henry E. Nicklen, will seek the restoration of the cash work relief program which was carried on under the Allegheny County Emergency Association. The committee under the program would seek the construction of roads and other public works, the laborers to get three days work per week at $3.20 per day.

DEMANDS HEARD

Sidney A. Teller, of the Hill District Community Council, declared the present direct relief system is rapidly creating an "arrogant army" which cannot be relied upon to work under any circumstances.

At the committee meeting were also two representatives of the Unemployed Citizens' League, Elmer F. Cope and Ernest R. McKinney, who insisted that $20.40 per week should be the minimum relief for a family of five.

Bank Robber Given 20-to-40-Year Term

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 21.—Frank Detwiler, of Pennsville, Fayette County, who, with three others, robbed Pleasant Unity National Bank last December 10 and also participated in half dozen other robberies, yesterday was sentenced 20 to 40 years in Western Penitentiary after pleading guilty before Judge C. D. Copeland.

Wade and James Hay, brothers, and A. F. Butler, were sentenced to same term two weeks ago.

Actor's Bankruptcy Dissolved by Court

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Ian Keith hasn't any debts to bother him now. A federal judge has signed an order discharging the stage and screen actor in bankruptcy, thus wiping out debts of $6,780, of which $1,150 represented fees owing to a lawyer for one of his former wives, Ethiel Clayton, actress.

Keith was also once married to Blanche Yurka, actress.

Tax reduction, mortgage foreclosures, unemployment and relief, were discussed at a meeting of the Non-Partisan Political Club of Turtle Creek in the Electric Plan Community Hall last night. A rally at which a report will be submitted on the borough Council's plans concerning a proposed three-mill tax reduction, will be held at 7:45 o'clock tonight at the Union High School auditorium.

A committee, representing the political club, conferred with Council last night.

Collection Banned; Churchgoers Return

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Both the attendance and financial condition of St. Andrew's Methodist Episcopal Church have improved since "passing the plate" at the morning and evening services was banned, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Arthur C. James, reported today.

He said:

"I see people in church who have not attended in years."

The offering plate was placed in the main vestibule of the church a month ago.

In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, 'tis always "Luckies Please".

Only Luckies have such character...such mildness

"Character"—the character of Luckies' fine golden-brown tobacco. In the Southland, in Virginia, in Georgia, in North Carolina, in South Carolina, in Kentucky, they know that only the finest, most carefully selected tobaccos are chosen for Lucky Strike. And because these choice tobaccos are "Toasted"—purified by Luckies' exclusive process—Luckies are made truly mild. For these two reasons—Character and Mildness—"Luckies Please!"

EATON TO QUIZ KING ON P. S. C. POLICIES

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—Dr. Clyde L. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, will be a witness before the Senate Utility Investigating Committee this afternoon.

He will be questioned on the machinery of commission work and will be asked his views on the rival bills presented by the committee several weeks ago, and the utility code introduced last week by Senator John J. McClure, chairman of the committee and a member for only a few weeks.

Oliver K. Eaton, counsel for the committee, will question King at an open hearing, but it is understood the committee members will be asked not to embarrass King.

One member of the committee today said that was the suggestion of Senator McClure, whose ideas on utilities have never dovetailed with those of Gov. Pinchot, who appointed King chairman of the commission.

With the exception of this afternoon's hearing, the committee has no further inquiries scheduled, and there is no evidence that it intends to schedule any. The fine teamwork of the Republican state organization in endeavoring to smother the utility inquiry is evidenced in the refusal of the Senate Appropriations Committee to report favorably a resolution appropriating $100,000 to the committee for the costs of its past and future work.

BAN ON PRIMARY LOSERS ASKED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—Representative John O'Rourke, Allegheny County, last night introduced a bill in the House preventing any candidate defeated in a party primary from being a candidate at the succeeding general election.

The bill does not specify merely that the candidate shall not run for the office to which he sought nomination, but bars his name from appearing on the ballot for any place.

The language of the O'Rourke bill amending the existing law reads:

"No candidate whose name appeared upon the primary ballots, and who was defeated at such primary, shall be a candidate for election at the succeeding election, and such person's name shall not be printed upon the official ballots for use at such election."

Under this bill, had it been law in 1927, County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, defeated for the nomination for Controller by Robert G. Woodside, could not have become a candidate for County Commissioner, a place which he won on an independent ticket.

Dividends amounting to $1 and over have been mailed by check.

Golfer's Wife Wins Award of Alimony

Judge John P. Egan has made an order allowing Mrs. Charlotte M. Flippen, Everett Apartments, $75 a month alimony from John P. Flippen, 5645 Woodmont street. Both are well known as golfers.

Mrs. Flippen has filed a divorce suit, charging cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities.

COYNE TAX FEE BILL VOTED BY COMMITTEE

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—The Coyne bill to fix the fees of delinquent tax collector at 5 per cent was favorably reported to the Senate this afternoon by the Committee on New Counties and County Seats. Its passage is expected next week.

The committee turned down a bill by Senator William D. Mansfield which would have abolished the ten per cent fees now received by the collector. Sentiment within the committee on both actions was overwhelming.

Meanwhile the House has a bill from Representative John J. O'Keefe, of the North Side, Pittsburgh, abolishing fees of delinquent tax collectors of counties of the second class. O'Keefe is a Democrat.

Senator John Howell, of Lackawanna, chairman of the subcommittee which last week held a hearing on the Coyne and Mansfield bills, attempted to get the two Allegheny Countians together on a plan to merge tax collection in the city of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, putting all tax collection agencies of the county under one head, but was unsuccessful.

It is reported some committee members were displeased at the attitude of both Coyne and Mansfield, but determined to accept the Coyne bill. Under its terms, they contend, it is possible to forecast what the cost of collecting delinquent taxes will be.

Under the Mansfield bill, with the salary of the collector and his aides to be fixed by the County Salary Board, it is claimed no safe estimate of costs can be made.

Coyne estimates that the tax collector, whose net earnings have been as high as $100,000 under the present system, would receive no more than $20,000 in the most productive years under the 5 per cent limitation.

SENATE PASSES JUDGES' PAY CUT

No Funds to Feed Hunger Marchers, Says Pinchot

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—The Reed bill making a flat 15 per cent cut in the salaries of all judges was passed by the Senate and sent to the House today by a vote of 42 to 6. It provides the cuts be effective at once, but legislators assert it cannot affect sitting judges.

UNEMPLOYED MARCH—A joint session of the Legislature to hear appeals for relief was demanded by the Unemployed Council of Pennsylvania, which is planning a march on the capital March 1. The chairman of the House Rules Committee said the House would hear the marchers. Gov. Pinchot said the Emergency Relief Board had advised the march leaders they had no funds to care for them in Harrisburg.

TEACHERS' SALARIES—Suspension of the present school laws which provide for minimum salaries, periodic increments and continuing contracts for school teachers and superintendents during the two years starting July 1, was proposed in a bill of Senator Fay, Mercer. The measure directs school directors for the next two years to fix the salaries according to the district's financial conidtion.

PAY CUTS—The House flattened two resolutions proposing salary cuts for legislators and state officials and employes. The assemblymen sent their own salary cutter to committee and another affecting state employes was kept in committee.

HIGHWAY PATROL—Fear that it might permit the use of the state highway patrol as an auxiliary prohibition enforcement unit prompted the Senate to defeat a bill which would have placed the patrol under command of the state police.

FORECLOSURES—A moratorium on mortgage foreclosures, conditioned on court approval of all suspensions, was provided in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Rice, Dauphin.

MILK PROBE—A joint committee to investigate dairy marketing and learn the reason for "unreasonable spread" between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays for milk was authorized.

HIGHWAY PROBE—Highways Secretary Samuel S. Lewis and his entire engineering staff have been summoned to appear before the Highway Investigating Committee at a public hearing tomorrow afternoon when the committee again will delve into maintenance costs of rural roads.

POOR BOARD PROBE—A new investigation was proposed in the House by Representative McElwee, Lawrence, who submitted a resolution to require Gov. Pinchot to prosecute poor boards which, the Goverour alleged, had purchased whisky, flowers and cigars out of relief funds.

BANKING CODE—The proposed new banking code, compiling and revising the state's banking laws, was introduced in both branches. It was drafted by the Department of Justice.

RELIEF FARMS—Senator Harris, Allegheny, introduced a bill permitting the state to acquire and condemn farm lands for emergency relief farms. The bill was drafted by the Back-to-the-Farm Movement Commission created by the 1932 special session.

FRE MARSHAL—The House Counties Committee reported the Lynch (House) bill authorizing adequate compensation to fire marshals in counties of the second class who have served for more than 20 years and to provide for their retirement with a pension not exceeding $100 a month. The payments must be made by the county commissioners and must be approved by court.

GAS HEAT—Representative Brown, Allegheny, introduced a bill requiring the Public Service Commission to fix heat standards for natural, artificial and mixed gas.

BRIDGE TOLLS—Senator Parkinson, Greene, introduced a bill authorizing any county except Philadelphia to levy and collect tolls, with the consent of the State Highway Department, on toll bridges for the purpose of paying off indebtedness in connection with the bridge purchase.

INSURANCE HEARING—A public hearing on the new insurance code revising the insulance laws was scheduled for February 28 at 2 p. m.

Measure Urges Fine on Overdue Library Books

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Have you returned that library book? If not, the delay may cost you a $25 fine or the alternative of 15 days in jail if a bill before the General Assembly today is enacted.

The measure would make it unlawful for persons to retain borrowed public library books 30 days after notification that they are due. Senator Charles H. Ealy, Somerset, is sponsor of the bill.

Shaler Man Awarded $25,000 in Damages

Elmer J. Nicklas, of Shaler township, today had been awarded $25,000 damages from Allegheny county for land appropriated in the relocation of a road and abolition of a grade crossing on highway route 72, by the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg.

Nicklas contended his property depreciated from a value ranging between $91,300 and $103,000 to a figure between $42,730 and $58,250.

Lewis, Aides Called In State Road Quiz

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary of Highways, and his entire engineering staff have been summoned to appear before the Highway Investigating Committee at a public hearing tomorrow afternoon when the committee again will delve into maintenance costs of rural roads.

The committee will attempt to ascertain the amount necessary to keep the rural roads in condition for a year to determine whether the Governor's proposal to take over 53,000 remaining miles of second-class township roads can be accomplished without additional revenue.

PINCHOT TELLS COMMISSARY PLAN ORIGIN

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—(AP.) — Gov. Pinchot last night told how the state emergency relief board adopted its community market policy.

Complying with the resolution of Senator Frank J. Harris, Allegheny, administration Republican, the Governor submitted excerpts from the minutes of the board.

The minutes showed that the board's action was taken on motions by C. J. Goodnough, former Speaker of the House; Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon and Gen. Edward Martin, State Treasurer and Republican state chairman.

The board comprises Gov. Pinchot as chairman, Martin, Shannon, Auditor General Charles A. Waters and Grover C. Talbot, Speaker of the House.

WESTERNER INVITED

On September 29 the board unanimously decided to invite Maj. Leavell, of Oklahoma, to come here to assist in setting up a community market in Dauphin County.

On November 23, Goodnough moved and Shannon seconded that all "existing commissaries in the state be required, as rapidly as possible, to meet the standard already established by the Williamsport commissary."

The same date, on motion of Martin, seconded by Shannon, the board placed Eric Biddle, assistant director, in charge of all commissaries.

November 30, on motion of Goodnough, seconded by Shannon, the board adopted a resolution directing Biddle to establish commissaries or community stores, "as rapidly as he is able to do so at such points as are deemed wise and proper."

STATEMENT UPHELD

January 18, on motion of Shannon, seconded by Martin, the board approved the Governor's proposed newspaper statement setting forth its position on the establishment of community markets.

The statement asserted that "at least $100,000,000 will be needed before the year is out for food alone, and at least $25,000,000 more for shoes, clothes, medicine and other bare necessities of life."

It also stated the board had approved the community market system "solely as a measure made necessary by one of the greatest emergencies the commonwealth has ever had to face."

BACK U. S. ARMS IN ASSEMBLY

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—Defying Gov. Pinchot, both branches of the Legislature last night approved the "national defense" resolution of Senator William D. Pethick (Rep.), of Wayne County. The vote was considered in many quarters as the equivalent of overriding a veto.

As a result, Congress will be notified that the Pennsylvania Assembly is opposed to any federal economies which will reduce appropriations to the Army, Navy or Marine Corps.

The Governor vetoed the original resolution which was passed a few weeks ago and asserted congressional legislation was not the business of the Assembly. Senator Pethick challenged his authority to act upon the measure at all. He redrafted and introduced the resolution again, providing that the chief clerk of the Senate shall transmit word of the Legislature's sentiment on the question. The Governor was ignored in the redraft.

GRAFTON, W. Va., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Chief of Police Wallace N. Henderson and State Trooper E. S. Duckworth announced today that Irene Kunst, 28, has confessed that she "faked" a robbery in the Monongahela West Penn Company's Grafton store January 31 to cover up embezzlements of about $500. Miss Kunst was an employe of the company.

She was arrested, the officers said, and held for the grand jury in $1,000 bond.

Miss Kunst reported January 31 that she had been held up and robbed of about $800.

DELAY OLD AGE PENSION BILL

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—A proposed constitutional amendment, permitting Pennsylvania to adopt the old age pension system, will be considered by the Senate Committee on Pensions and Gratuities again next Monday night. The committee last night voted six to six on a motion to report the measure favorably.

Some of the Senators said they voted against the bill because it is tied up with an amendment dealing with mothers' assistance, and they want the two propositions separated. Senator Woodward today asked Senator Frank J. Harris, former Congressman John Morin and John O'Toole, of Pittsburgh, to furnish him with information on states which already have old age pension legislation.

VISIT OF FORD HERE TOLD IN PATENT SUIT

Henry Ford visited the plant of the Banker Windshield Company in the summer of 1914 or 1915, about the time the alleged infringement on a Banker patent was brought to the attention of the Ford Motor Company of Detroit, Mich., according to testimony in Federal Court, today.

The testimony was given in a continuation of a hearing started yesterday to determine whether the late Arthur L. Banker, pioneer East End auto dealer, waited too long before suing the Ford company for $18,000,000 for infringing on a Banker patent.

Arguments of attorneys in the case ended shortly before noon today, but Judge Nelson McVicar withheld decision.

If Mrs. May Kable Banker, who has carried on the suit since the death of her husband, established that the suit was filed as soon as practicable, hearing on the infringement charges will begin.

Charles E. Cox, former secretary of the Banker Windshield Company, testified that Ford visited the East Liberty windshield plant in 1914 or 1915. Samuel H. Fuller, corroborating Cox's testimony, said a man who looked like pictures of Ford inspected the plant.

Cox yesterday had testified that a letter calling attention to the infringement was sent the Ford company on April 10, 1915.

Testimony before Judge Nelson McVicar yesterday purported to show that delay in bringing suit was due to prolonged illness of Banker, who died in March, 1932, six months after filing the suit.

Following the Cox testimony, counsel entered upon arguments on the equity phase of the suit.

MY BEST WAR STORY

By MARTIN E. MULLEN,
1234 Kelton Ave., Dormont.
(89th Company, Transportation Railway Corps.)

The transport Aeolus, several thousand troops aboard, steaming across the Atlantic in April, 1918, was by no means a luxury liner. No stewards hovered about, but there were a number of sergeants and, brother, how they could hover!

The leader of this group was one Sergt. S—. He could spot a breach of discipline instantly. To hear him tell it, he was one big hero, upon whose arrival at the front the war would end.

We were three days out from Hoboken. On both sides of the Aeolus were other transports, zigzagging in perfect time. On the third night, however, the Huron, on our right, zigged when it should have zagged. The resultant collision was somewhat surprising to a number of democracy savers.

Our outfit was in the extreme bottom of the boat, and, there being no elevators, we walked. We arrived on deck to find that the Huron and the Aeolus were doing what looked like a little necking. Fortunately, the damage was all above the water line and we returned to Hoboken.

And Sergt. S—? We found him after the excitement had subsided. He was huddled in a lifeboat with three life preservers draped about his trembling form.

(The foregoing story was a prize-winner in the "My Best War Story" contest being conducted by veterans of Allegheny County. True accounts of war experiences may be mailed by veterans, relatives and friends to the "Best Story" Committee, Fulton Theater, Sixth street, Pittsburgh. They must not exceed 300 words. The winner each day will be awarded four tickets admitting them to the theater's showing of the war film, "The Big Drive.")

Mansfield Offers Appropriation Bills

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Senator Mansfield, Allegheny, introduced a bill in the Senate last night appropriating $75,000 to the McKeesport Hospital, $2,000 to the McKeesport Day Nursery and $5,000 to the Home for the Aged and Infirm Colored Women of Pittsburgh.

W. R. HEARST GIVES HIS VIEWS ON RECOVERY

tion would not mean over any considerable period of years, any more public construction than would ordinarily take place in that period. But the public construction would be, according to this system, increased in bad times and decreased in good times.

"In order to provide for this increased construction in bad times, a reserve fund could be accumulated in good times; but since no such reserve fund has been accumulated, the only practicable plan is to issue bonds sufficient to pay for this extraordinary government construction in bad times and to redeem the bonds in good times."

Tax Relief

Mr. Hearst declared the tax situation must be relieved. He said the piling of taxes upon business and industry in bad times only accentuated their economic distress. He said:

"There should in bad times be more help to the community through construction and less burden to the community in taxation.

"As a matter of fact, let me make the radical and doubtless unacceptable statement that taxation should be diminished in bad times. But if taxation cannot be diminished it should at least not be increased.

"High taxation is as much responsible for bankruptcies in business and foreclosures on properties, as the high interest rates of the usurers or the relentless liquidating processes of the bankers.

"In fact, the government, the mortgage-holders and the money lenders have been cooperating in perfect harmony to deflate and liquidate America.

"In this combination for extortion, the government is the worst offender, because without any consideration of the obvious fact that dollars have doubled in value and are doubly difficult to secure, it is extorting more dollars from a community prostrated by adversity, than it demanded in times of prosperity."

Mr. Hearst denounced the income tax. He said it has "degenerated into a racket" with the government "positively plundering the public under coercion to the point of confiscation." He called it "an inequitable tax, an injurious tax, an undemocratic tax, creating class distinctions; an un-American tax, creating class antagonisms, dangerous to the peace and harmony of the nation." He said:

"The sales tax should be substituted for it; not added to it."

After declaring the income tax decreased purchasing power, transferred money from active business into inactive tax-exempt securities, he added:

"It is in every phase a vicious measure and shares with prohibition the odium of the two great wartime mistakes. These two evils—prohibition and income taxation—have been chiefly responsible for demoralizing our people and depressing and disheartening our nation."

Currency Reflation

In urging a reflation of the currency, Mr. Hearst pointed out that "the total circulating medium has been deflated to the extent of two-fifths of the whole." He showed this by the reduction in checks, drafts and personal notes that accompanied bad times.

"We cannot reflate at the moment the bank deposit currency, but we can increase the actual currency by increasing the bond issues and the Federal Reserve notes based upon the issue of bonds," said Mr. Hearst.

"Such inflation, or rather reasonable inflation, is in no sense dangerous, but on the contrary, natural, salutary, and indeed necessary to the restoration of prosperity.

"In fact, the issue of bonds and Federal Reserve notes is in the conservative method of procedure.

"It would be possible to increase the currency by a direct issue of government notes and by increased coinage, but this, it is believed, would be disturbing to confidence, and possibly detrimental to the nation's credit."

Cheap Imports

Mr. Hearst then warned against the invasion of American markets by cheap foreign products. He said American markets would be ruined if not protected against "an influx of cheap foreign goods, made by war-pauperized labor, under a system of depreciated currency which proportionately decreases the manufacturing cost of the goods."

"I believe all citizens regardless of politics, should unite in this emergency, to save the American market for American industry, and protect American labor and American standards of living," he asserted.

After calling attention to the action of France in establishing "compensatory tariff duties" against nations with depreciated currencies, Mr. Hearst added:

"Our country was not alert enough, not informed enough, and not progressive enough to originate such measures, but it should be at least intelligent enough to duplicate them when the need for such protection is so obvious and the condition of our industries and our working people so critical."

Mr. Hearst's farm relief suggestions included creation of remunerative markets, lower transportation costs on farm products and cheaper credit.

"The government," he said, "should finance the farmer at a low rate of interest and insure him in the possession of his farm over a sufficient stretch of years to nullify the destructive effects of periodic unfavorable climatic and economic conditions."

Transportation

Mr. Hearst pointed out that "reduced cost of transportation is just as important to the farmers as reduced cost of financing and of marketing." He asserted the railroads are "in no condition to supply cheap transportation. He recommended government ownership of the carriers to achieve lower transportation costs.

"Apparently the only way that the necessary complete reorganization and unification of the railroads can be accomplished is through government ownership," said Mr. Hearst. "Government ownership will administer the railroads economically in one coordinated system.

"Government ownership would secure money to the railroads at half the rate of interest which the railroads now pay, and railroad securities could be retired with a three per cent government bond, to the advantage and satisfaction of the security holders.

"Under a unified railroad system, reorganized and refinanced by the government, the railroads could economically transport freight of that character of weight and bulk which naturally belongs to them.

"Farm products are of this weighty and bulky character, and consequently farm products would greatly benefit by the economical railroad transportation which government ownership could secure."

Mr. Hearst said that if the government sought to rescue the railroads through further Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans, it will practically pay for the railroads but "will not possess them."

"If the people's money is being paid out in sufficient quantities to buy the railroads, then the people should own the railroads," he added, "and secure the full benefit that would accrue from government refinancing, government reorganization, government unification and government operation.

"Therefore, I beg to recommend government ownership of the railroads as an important aid to general economic recovery and general economic stability."

Fat Men

Mr. Clarence A. Case of Monterey Park, Calif., writes: "I've fought a tendency toward obesity since 35 yrs. old (now 48) and have found Kruschen Salts the only satisfactory remedy. When the old belt begins to tighten I get back on Kruschen for a bottle or so and take off from 12 to 18 pounds easily and quickly." (July 18, 1932).

To lose fat surely and SAFELY, take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning.

But be sure to get Kruschen—your health comes first—a bottle that will last you 4 weeks costs but a few cents at any drugstore in the world—if not satisfied—money back.

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER

Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million!

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing-gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are, you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver, which does not yield sufficient bile — causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets you will find that "something," which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

ILLUSION:
Josie, the lovely trapeze artist, stands upon a small platform. At the will of the magician she leaps twenty feet into the air to reach her trapeze. She uses no ropes, no ladder! A phenomenal leap for a woman...or a man!

EXPLANATION:
Josie didn't jump . . . she was sprung! The twenty-foot leap is not dependent on Josie's ability, but on a powerful spring mechanism hidden beneath the stage which propels the artist upward through the air. The force is so violent that the lady wears a light steel jacket which protects her from injury as she starts her astonishing leap.

CAMELS

Magic has its place . . . but not in cigarette advertising.

Consider the illusion that there is a mysterious way to give cigarettes a superior "flavor."

EXPLANATION: Cigarette flavor can be controlled by adding artificial flavorings. By blending. And by the quality of tobaccos used.

Such magic, however, seldom holds the audience. Your taste finally tells you the truth.

The cigarette flavor that never stales, never varies, never loses its fresh appeal, comes from mild, ripe, fragrant, more expensive tobaccos . . . blended to bring out the full, round flavor of each type leaf.

It's the quality of the tobacco that counts!

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Because Camel actually pays millions more every year for choice tobaccos, you find in Camels an appealing mildness, a better flavor.

WETS HOPING FOR SPEED ON REPEAL

of electing delegates. Thus two small states, one wet and one dry, would confront the voters. He said:

"Our association and other proponents of repeal have held consistently that the people themselves are entitled to the opportunity to pass upon this question. That can be afforded through the election of delegates to the several state conventions by providing two tickets, one favorable to repeal, the other opposed to repeal.

"To accomplish this purpose it is urged that the election of delegates shall be at large, as in the case of members of the electoral college. If such a plan is followed, the direct and definite expression of a majority of the people of each state will decide the attitude of that state either for or against repeal."

The anti-prohibitionists who fear gerrymandering point out that a dry Legislature could so divide a state for election of delegates that the drys would have an advantage. Similarly, a wet Legislature could gerrymander in favor of repeal.

Belief was expressed that in most states drys would join with wets for the holding of conventions so that the question can be decided.

COMMITTEE HEARINGS

Chairman Sumners (Dem.), of Texas, of the House Judiciary Committee, for years a dry, announced that the committee would hold hearings Thursday on a plan to speed a decision.

He proposed in a bill that the states hold conventions under uniform regulations provided by Congress. The committee also will consider the bill of Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, to have the federal government call and appropriate $7,500,000 to pay for the elections.

Constitutional lawyers divided on the question of federal supervision. Representative Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican "wet bloc," said he would fight to the limit any plan for federal supervision.

Many members from southern states, fearful of an attempt by Congress to fix the qualifications of voters, also opposed the LaGuardia plan.

The anti-prohibition leaders were confident that 36 of the 48 states would ratify the repealing amendment within the seven-year limit.

The drys were equally confident they can halt repeal by preventing ratification in 13 southern and western agricultural states.

The House vote showed only 30 states giving a majority for prohibition, but it was pointed out that 67 "lame ducks" cast dry votes yesterday. Most of these will be replaced by wets after March 4.

Drys Massing Forces to Fight Repeal

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World Christian Endeavor Union, said today that dry strategy now is "unite and fight." He said in a statement:

"The wets have made the issue naked repeal with no alternative. There will be more drys in the United States two years from now than there are today, and still more drys four years from now.

"Whatever the mistakes of dry strategy in the past—and I am one who believes that the present situation could have been avoided—make no mistake about dry strategy now. It is fight. Fight in 48 states. Fight in 13 states. Unite and fight. Fight all the time. Fight everywhere."

Bishop Cannon said that "now the responsibility has been laid squarely on the conventions to be determined entirely apart from everything else."

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, world president, Women's Christian Temperance Union, commenting on the House action on the repeal amendment, said:

"The repeal amendment, if ratified, will return conditions as they were before the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted, with the wets largely in charge of legislation to be enacted by the states. But it is not yet ratified."

Edward B. Dunford, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, said today his organization would immediately challenge in the court any law passed by Congress "to set up or regulate" state conventions to vote on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, today said aggressive action "in every part of every state" would be taken by the league "against any liquor plan that the wets may put forward as a substitute for the Eighteenth Amendment."

House Votes Repeal Of State Dry Act

resentative Ellwood Turner, Delaware, moved that consideration be postponed for one week. Headed by Sowers and Conner, the House howled down this motion so resoundingly that it was not even put to a vote.

Debate over the measure developed a split in Democratic ranks, Representative Chester A. Rhodes, Monroe County, asserting that he was for repeal, but only in an orderly manner. Representative Wilson G. Sarig, Berks County, Democratic floor leader, declared the Democratic party was on record for unequivocal repeal without wanting any substitute legislation for the enforcement act.

ALLEGHENY VOTE

The Allegheny county delegation voted 25 to 2 for repeal. The roll call:

Against repeal—McClure and Walker.

Rhodes charged that the repealer was a political play by the Republicans, who planned to bury the Conner-Sowers bill in the Senate. In the state primary next year, he said, the Republicans in every dry section of the state would point to the action of the Republican-controlled Senate in halting repeal, while in wet sections it would cite the liberal attitude of the House in an effort to play both ends against the middle.

Representative Defrehn, Cambria County, spoke against the repealer, pleading with the House not to take action until it had before it some alternative to the enforcement law.

After Rhodes had contended that the Legislature was spending too much time on prohibition and blue laws, and paying no attention to economic and relief problems while thousands were starving, Sarig called the enforcement act a shake-down law, not enforced anywhere in the state.

On the roll call, Turner voted for the bill, as did Speaker Talbot. Many Pinchot followers from the anthracite regions voted with the wets.

QUICK REPORT

Sowers pledged quick report by a special committee of which he is chairman on legislation to replace the Snyder act. The Sowers' committee, named last night, also will recommend to the House machinery for setting up a system of electing delegates to a state convention to act on the national repeal resolution.

Meanwhile, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and dry repealists generally are behind the bill of Senator John J. McClure, introduced in the Senate last night, and providing that delegates to a convention to consider repeal shall number 67, with one for each of Pennsylvania's 34 Congressional districts and 33 elected at large.

BURDEN ON GOVERNOR

The McClure bill, admittedly introduced hurriedly in an effort to focus discussion on the manner in which the delegates shall be elected and hasten a final decision on the machinery to be set up for the convention, puts the burden of calling the election for the choice of delegates on the Governor. Its language would make mandatory an election of delegates not later than next November, but the Governor might order a special election during the summer, or at any time after the bill is passed. The election might also be decided at the September primary.

The results shall be ascertained in the same manner applicable to the election of Presidential electors.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is the most effective remedy that money can buy. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as a healing agent for throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

15 STATES RUSH TO RATIFY REPEAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Fifteen states, spurred on by a desire to be first, today definitely had set out on the road toward repeal of the prohibition amendment a few hours after Congress put the question before them.

Enough Legislatures are in session now to set up the conventions necessary to strip all liquor legislation from the Constitution except that provided for in the new amendment—protection for dry states against importation of intoxicants.

Forty-two Legislatures are now meeting and two more—California and Florida—convene in the spring. Only four—Louisiana, Mississippi, Virginia and Kentucky—will not meet for a year or more.

There was every indication, however, that ratification by the necessary 36 states within seven years would not come without furious resistance from dry organizations. They immediately answered the echo of the 289 to 121 vote in the House with a call to rally and "fight to the finish" in the states.

In many of the legislative and executive chambers over the country movements went forward to set up the conventions.

Wyoming was away out ahead, for its Legislature has already passed and the Governor has signed a bill to provide for the constitutional convention.

Other states in which action was begun in some quarters yesterday are Massachusetts, New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, Georgia, New Jersey, West Virginia, Arizona, Missouri, Delaware, California, Michigan, Iowa and Pennsylvania.

Steps Needed to Make Dry Repeal Effective

Associated Press.

Before the prohibition repeal resolution, passed yesterday by the House of Representatives, can become the twenty-first amendment to the Constitution—if that should be its destiny—it must pass through the following phases:

1—The Secretary of State must send copies to the 48 governors. This step Secretary Henry L. Stimson was prepared to take today.

2—Conventions in three-fourths of the states must ratify the resolution within seven years.

When and if this action is taken, the Eighteenth Amendment will have been repealed.

Thirteen states (one more than one-quarter) could defeat repeal.

Prohibition leaders contend that more than the necessary 13 will hold firm for the Eighteenth Amendment. Rufus S. Lusk, official of the Crusaders, anti-prohibition organization, claimed yesterday that at least 39 states, three more than necessary, would be in the anti-prohibition column.

This is the first time a proposed amendment has been submitted to state conventions. Therefore, there was some doubt as to procedure. Some constitutional lawyers believed Congress should decide how and when the state conventions should be brought together. Others believed it to be a matter for the states to determine.

Despite this problem, 15 state legislatures were taking steps toward summoning conventions. Of these Wyoming was in the van, with a bill to call a convention already adopted.

The resolution passed the Senate by a 63 to 23 vote, five more than the necessary two-thirds. It passed the House by a 289 to 121 vote, 15 more than the necessary two-thirds.

The resolution, besides repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, carries a ban against interstate transportation of liquor in violation of the laws of any state.

TEXT OF REPEAL RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(Universal.)—The text of the Blaine resolution passed by the Senate February 16 and the House yesterday follows:

"Section 1—The Eighteenth Article of Amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

"Section 2—The transportation or importation into any state, territory or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

"Section 3—This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution within seven years from the date of submission hereof to the states by the Congress."

GUARD SWICK'S PROPERTY

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 21.—The home of Congressman J. Howard Swick, the Alpha apartment, which he owns, and other property in Eighth avenue were guarded by police today, following an anonymous threat to blow up the building.

The message, a letter written in pencil on a sheet of wrapping paper, said:

"Mr. Doctor—You are not a friend of the poor. I will blow up this place soon. X."

The letter was dropped in the mail box of Mrs. W. C. Donaldson, a resident of the four-story apartment building.

ACTION ON BEER FACES DELAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Senate Democratic leaders hope to get up the 3.05 per cent beer bill before adjournment March 4, but prospects for final passage at this session are doubtful.

Under a tentative program mapped out by leaders on both sides, appropriation bills will receive prior consideration.

The bankruptcy relief bill is the Senate's unfinished business and before beer can be taken up it is the present plan to consider the Hull - Walcott mortgage relief measure.

If you are one of these people who's always saying, "Dear me, what are the young people coming to" you'll very soon have a grand opportunity to find out just what is the secret hobby of many of them. The pupils of the Shearer School are planning a very unusual and diverting feature to be called an achievement exhibit. And their motto seems to be, "Let him who has a hobby, prepare to let it be known."

The definite date for the exhibit hasn't been set but will be either the very last of this month or the first of March, and will be held in the school. The exhibits will range from paintings, sculpture, writing, in fact all of the work the students do, to the humble are of turtle raising.

Visiting Gotham

Nevin G. Woodside, of Sheridan avenue, vice president of the H. J. Heinz Company, is a guest at Fountain Inn, Eustis, Fla., for the winter season.

* * *

Seen at New Club

Seen at one of the tables Saturday were Martha Edmondson, with her house guest, Eugenia Nash, of Greenville, S. C., Betty McCance, Betty Curtin, and with them were John Bindley, Henry Bassett, Robert Knight, Richard Kimble, Baird Davis and William Robinson.

At another large table were the Eugene Caspers, the George Beckwiths, the George Neffs, Harry May, Jr., Kay Francies, Priscilla Barnes, Josephine Roush, Karl Schusler, and the guest of honor was George Reilly, of Hagerstown, Md.

Ralph Flannery, Jr., also had a table, as did F. H. Diebold, whose guests included Claudine Phillips, of Butler.

Though not so many of the social set attended the Nixon last evening to see "Rasputin and the Empress," still there was a smart and informally gowned representative group. I saw Mrs. W. C. Robinson and attractive Rita Borntraeger with her mother, Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger. Rita was wearing a simple afternoon frock of red crepe and her mother chose deep blue velvet.

Seen at Theater

Ruth Willock was there, in black and white, and I caught a glimpse of Emily Frew in the audience, and of Mrs. John McKelvey, who was wearing a dinner gown of Paddy green crepe with a black velvet and white fox wrap.

Red velvet was the choice of Mrs. C. A. Painter, Jr., and black crepe with touches of white organdie, that of Mrs. George C. Burgwin. And I noticed that Mrs. Sidney Binns and Gretchen Bickford who was wearing one of the new fez turbans with a pert veil, and a black frock.

In Red Velvet

Black velvet formed the costume of Mrs. John W. Lawrence, and rust crepe fashioned the gown of Mrs. W. Terrell Johnston.

THE VIOLET SHADE OF BLUE FAVORED COLOR FOR SPRING

IT IS turning out to be a "blue" spring. A pale blue spring, in fact—the blue of hyacinths and delphinium. For these are the colors that the woman of 1933 seems to like best of all; she is wearing them by day and by night, to play golf and to dance, to go to the theater and to receive at home.

A GOOD many of the new blue dresses—especially those to be worn at night—are of a violet cast. They are far from being the schoolgirl color that was the pale blue so popular a few seasons ago; on the contrary, they are being worn by many of the most sophisticated ways. They are often combined with darker colors in unusual ways. For example—with a brown sash and brown crepe de chine shoes; with black jewelry and a black fur fox scarf that wraps around and around the shoulders.

ONE DRESSMAKER likes to put his pale blue evening gowns in contrast with darker blues. Sometimes he leaves the entire dress in the lighter tone and leaves the darker blue to the wrap and matching accessories. Sometimes the dress itself combines two tones of blue.

* * *

THIS IS true of the dress in the sketch, which is of light blue satin, with two wide bands of darker blue incrusted across the shoulders and down the back to the waistline, edging the V-shaped decolletage and giving a narrowing line to the waist. The waistlength jacket of midnight blue is in velvet, and has three-quarter-length sleeves that end in puffs and ruffles of the plaited velvet.

Mrs. Roosevelt Held Factor In Capital

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Mrs. Roosevelt will be a factor in the new administration and will not play the part tradition has given Presidents' wives. It is not in step with modern women and Mrs. Roosevelt will make the most of changing conditions. This, Emily Newell Blair, associate editor of Good Housekeeping and former Democratic National Committee vice-chairman, told the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club in her delightful talk yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Blair also predicts that there will be less entertaining and social life under the new regime.

Mrs. John E. McKirdy, in introducing Mrs. Blair said, a club of 500 represents too great a voting power to ignore issues of today and Mrs. Blair, commented on the change in the complexion of women's clubs that would invite a "professional Democrat" before what is largely a Republican group.

Confusion Is Cited

Discussing "The Present Political Scene," Mrs. Blair gave a non-partisan analysis of the situation, which she said can be described by only one word—confusion, the kind of confusion we have when a house is on fire. One only need see what Congress is doing to understand it, she said, as she spoke of "the spectacle of 96 senators jumping on poor little Mr. Barry." It was a safety valve for the senators, she observed, for here was at least one thing on which they could unite. She spoke, too, of Congress one day discussing a public works bill to put men to work and the next day discharging employes.

Mrs. Blair holds that the American people have come to regard Congress and the Senate as the scapegoat for their own wrong thinking and that they turned to government when business collapsed. While business has developed not geographically, but federally, representation continues geographical.

America, she said, has a great dislike of changing the formula, not matter how much the facts are changed. The

Dislikes Change

Reconstruction Finance Corporation is an absolute breaking away from the old idea that business and government had nothing in common.

She believes that it wasn't Roosevelt's personality that won him the election, but the fact that it was the only way the American people could say they wanted something done. For two years, at least, Mr. Roosevelt will be received uncritically, for he has the personality that gives the impression that he is doing something.

Now that the wet and dry question is out of way, we may expect a more intelligent type of men running for office. She said the next step to which this country will go will be a socialized capitalism, which is quite different from either socialism or capitalism.

World War Only 'Pious Prelude' to Next One, Century Club Told

James G. McDonald, chairman of the board of directors of the Foreign Policy Association of America, addressing the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning, drew a ghastly picture of what another war would mean to the world. In comparison to it the World War would be nothing more than a "pious prelude," he said. As Mr. McDonald sees it, the dominant forces of the world today are against peace and the chances of avoiding war are about 50-50.

Mr. McDonald quoted military experts who have already mapped out a possible war between this country and Japan in which America's allies would be Soviet Russia and China.

Intense nationalism, failure to reduce arms, and weakening of confidence in institutions of peace were viewed by the speaker as signs of impending war. The United States is facing a test of its ability to co-operate with the rest of the world, Mr. McDonald holds.

In celebration of its thirteenth anniversary Robert Swan Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a banquet at the Penn-Shady Hotel on Saturday. Mrs. Harry B. Ackerman and her committee have planned several features including a musical program, dancing and cards. The program will be by Edward Dunbar, vocalist; Betsy Cypher, dancer, and Charles Stitt, accompanist. A large birthday cake, made by Mrs. Olive McIlrath, will be cut as a closing feature in conjunction with a grand march.

Mrs. Stewart McFarland is reading her own poems, and the club choral, under the direction of Mrs. William Weiss and accompanied by Mrs. Charles H. Bayha is singing.

The largest number of guests the Junior Wilkinsburg Woman's Club has ever entertained was present last night at the tenth anniversary party given in the Y. W. C. A. The audience of nearly 300 persons, overflowed the auditorium into the sunroom. A delightful program of music and tableaux depicting the seniors' first decade and the juniors' history was presented.

MERCHANTS AID SCRIP MOVE FOR VALLEY

The plan to issue scrip to merchants of Chartiers Valley moved rapidly toward maturity today following a meeting of the Exchange Association of Pennsylvania in the West End Board of Trade rooms, Wabash avenue and Steuben street, West End, last night.

Business men who attended expressed a desire to make applications for loans.

An even larger number not requiring loans for their business said they would accept the scrip at face value in payment for goods.

H. A. Baker, assistant national sales manager for the Seven Baker Brothers, declared his company had successfully used a similar plan in operating a plant at Madera, Pa., taking scrip as payment for goods and meeting obligations with that medium. He said:

"I believe this plan will function as well as the one at Madera. With proper co-operation it will undoubtedly relieve present financial pressure."

Expressing approval of the plan, Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, said:

"I would be glad to accept this scrip for my services. It is a good idea and there should be no difficulty in putting it over."

J. W. Giffin, cashier of the First National Bank of Crafton, said of the plan:

"I am not familiar with all the points. It sounds very reasonable, and with the proper co-operation it should work."

Howard W. Miller, president of the association, announced a meeting Friday, February 24, at which final negotiations will be made.

GIRL RADIUM VICTIM DEAD

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 21.—(INS.)—A requiem high mass will be sung tomorrow for Mrs. Katherine Schaub, who died Saturday—one of the five women who contracted incurable radium poisoning while employed by the U. S. Radium Corporation of Orange.

MILLION ASKED FOR SEWERS

A report listing sewer improvements deemed necessary by Edward G. Lang, Director of Public Works, to prevent backflooding in sections of the city was to come up for discussion today in Council.

Total cost of the proposed improvements is set at $1,479,900. Funds now available out of appropriations for relief work sewers are limited to the $7,500 appropriation in the annual budget, Lang says.

Included in the list of proposals is the Thirty-third street drainage basin trunk sewer from the vicinity of Bloomfield Bridge to South Mathilda street. Lang places the cost at $500,000. Another recommended is the Four Mile Run sewer, to cost $361,000.

Director Lang has also submitted to Council a report on street improvement proposals, including raising depressed streets in the North Side flood district between Galveston avenue and Federal street; paving of West Carson street between Telford street and Chartiers Creek, and elimination of the westerly sidewalk of California avenue from Island Avenue Bridge to the westerly terminus of California avenue in the vicinity of Sedgwick street.

"One COLD after Another"

Is Usually the Same Cold Repeating Itself!

Many persons who "catch one cold after another" during the winter think it's a different cold each time. As a matter of fact, it's often the same cold repeating itself. Uncured in the first place, the cold keeps coming back and all the time weakening your system and exposing you to more serious complications.

A cold requires decisive treatment or it will persist and make trouble for you. Many a serious illness had its start in a "slight" cold.

A COLD Remedy for a Cold

A cold is a specific condition and calls for specific treatment. Preparations good for half a dozen things besides colds can't be equally effective for colds. Many of these preparations actually make a cold more difficult of relief because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

A cold, moreover, calls for internal medication. For, a cold is an internal infection. Local or outside applications only allay a few of the symptoms and do not reach the real seat of the trouble.

The Four Effects Necessary

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine knocks a cold and knocks it right because it does the four things necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels. Second, it kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

Effective, but Harmless!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is safe for young and old to take. It contains nothing harmful. Also, it may be taken with impunity whether you stay indoors or go out. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Get yourself a package today and be forearmed against colds. Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. Be suspicious of the dealer who offers you a substitute.

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine every morning and night will do much to fortify your system against infection.

WAR-TORN CUBA LOOKS FOR AID OF ROOSEVELT

(Editors' note—Following is the second of a series of stories based upon a first-hand survey of present conditions in Cuba. To escape possible censorship, the articles were written and sent from Miami.)

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1933, International News Service, Inc.)

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21.—To Cuba and to Cubans, the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt is regarded as an event as important to them as to the United States.

Rightly or wrongly, the expectation is universal in Havana that the new Democratic administration is going to adopt a sterner Cuban policy than has prevailed during the last two Republican administrations—a policy that will endeavor to end the bitter warfare that exists between the forces of President Machado and the opposition, and which has cost many Cuban lives in recent months.

HAVANA ARMED CAMP

Havana is an armed camp, with Machado's efficient army of some 12,000 in complete control. All constitutional guarantees have been suspended, schools and universities closed, the press censored, and martial law is effective throughout the island.

Both sides have already importuned the President-elect. Representations have been made to him by Machado interests to continue the current policy of "non-interference" with Cuba's domestic problems, under the famous Root interpretation of the Platt amendment. This amendment gives the United States the right to intervene in Cuban affairs to insure a government to protect "life, property and individual liberty."

On the other hand, the enemies of President Machado, who include some of Cuba's best families, have bombarded Mr. Roosevelt with demands that the United States assume its responsibility under the amendment and bring pressure to bear upon Machado to restore the liberties that have largely disappeared under his iron-handed rule of the past seven years.

It poses a pretty question for the new administration at the outset of its career.

LOOK TO ROOSEVELT

The prospects of a change in American policy in Cuba is the livest topic of conversation in the cafes and clubs of Havana as March 4 approaches. They recall that during the last Democratic (Wilson) administration, Gen. Enoch H. Crowder was sent as ambassador to Cuba, and that with the support of Washington he instituted electoral reforms, judiciary reforms and a pay-as-you-go financial system.

These reforms were later discarded in large part by President Machado, when he was elected in 1924.

Today, Machado is completely in the saddle in Cuba through his control of the Army, the Congress, and the Supreme Court. When he imposed the present rigorous press censorship, one Spanish-language newspaper (El Mundo) took the case to the Supreme Court, and, much to the surprise of its editors, won it. It was a hollow victory, however, for the government simply refused to recognize or accept the decree of the court. Whereupon, the Chief Justice resigned, and another was appointed more in sympathy with the government's ideas and program. The censorship continues, with police stationed in the press rooms of the newspapers.

The Western Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Guild of Organists presented Gunther Ramin in organ recital last night in the North Side Carnegie Music Hall. Considering the great ovation given this great player I should like to recommend that the Art Society too consider great organists among its musical entertainments that our concert-going public have opportunity under best conditions to hear more and more of the mighty contribution to music made by masters of the organ.

Mr. Lissfelt

Gunther Ramin is filled with the truest spirit of organ music. Beginning as choir boy in the St. Thomas Choir in Leipzig he remained in service of that church until his talents and diligence elevated him to the position once held by John Sebastian Bach.

From all records we know that Bach was the greatest artist in improvisation that the world has ever known. Ramin demonstrated last night that he has inherited much of the spell of that master mind and much of the magic of that church where incomparable cantatas and fugues have been made. Upon the theme of the chorale "Wachet Auf" he created a glorious fantasy; it could have come only from such a musician and such a poet.

As organist, Ramin is distinguished for magnificent style. With the old masters he never transgresses their tonal schemes. With a modern thinker and writer like Reger his temperament and dramatic powers are unleashed, and he takes his audience to tremendous heights. He is not entirely the severe scholar, for with his bright technique he plays many a humorous passage, and his music is never lumbersome.

The Guild is doubtless doing a fine work in presenting the world's outstanding organists in our city. Let us have many more.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

SUITS NAMING RAIDERS ENDED

Suits against six city policemen charged with riotous destruction and intentional mischief in connection with the breaking up of furnishings in Hotel Grise, 49 Eleventh street, in a raid six years ago, were nol prossed by Judge Samuel H. Gardner late yesterday.

Judge Gardner, who was district attorney when the suits were entered in 1927, removed them from the record on motion of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, because Grise, the prosecutor, had died. Trial was postponed indefinitely when Grise sued the city for damages soon after the raid. The city settled, paying for the furnishings several years ago.

Those against whom Grise made informations were Philip Marmo, John Schnurr, Joseph Lynch, Daniel Owens, Joseph Rasmus and William Kesler, who made up the raiding squad. They have been held under bail for six years.

Mt. Lebanon Student Kidnaped In Campus War at Ohio State

Note Hints Revenge Motives, Parents Unworried

Parents of Herbert Brownlee, of 39 St. Clair drive, Mt. Lebanon, a student at Ohio State University, at Columbus, today were anxiously awaiting tonight's university junior prom and return of their son, believed abducted last night by rival campus political factions.

Word that his son had been "kidnaped" by a campus clique was relayed to the father, John A. Brownlee, late last night, a short time after the son's "disappearance" was reported to police by fraternity brothers. The entire episode is thought to be the result of tonight's prom and Brownlee's position as chairman of the affair.

Members of the fraternity said Brownlee was president of the Buckeye Independent Combine, which defeated the Scarlet and Gray "party" in a recent campus election. Shortly after he left the Sigma Pi fraternity house last night, members received this telegram:

HERBERT BROWNLEE

"Sorry, but you will have to hold your prom without your chairman."

It was signed,

"Just to Get Even."

The father said last night:

"We knew nothing of this. It apparently is a college prank. While we would dislike to see Herbert miss the prom, we realize that it is just part of the college spirit to do such things as these boys have done."

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Girl Advises Carefulness In Choosing Friends

Does it pay to be choosey?

If you're young and, peppy, and rarin' to go, you probably think it doesn't. And likewise, you probably think Dad and Mom are just a couple of Old Meanies, because they insist on your being particular until you know Who's Who.

If you are and do—listen in on what Maida thinks of parents who insist on keeping the youngsters careful.

Has she found "choosiness" a good investment?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I was very much amused when I read Ann's letter, complaining that she can't go out everywhere she wants to because the folks object.

It reminded me of the time when I thought I would never have any fun because my parents wouldn't let me "chase around" like the rest of the kids. I am no grandmother now, either. I am just 18. I am fairly good-looking and popular with most people.

The first time I ever went out with a boy alone was to a school entertainment, and I was just 16½. Even now I don't go out with any and all boys. My folks never would let me. They were, and are, strict—and I am glad of it. It pays to be choosey, I've found.

I rate fairly well with my own crowd, mostly college freshmen like myself, and I never feel the need of playing around with just anyone, because I can afford to be choosey. I really set a value on myself—and I am respected for it.

TAUGHT TO DISCRIMINATE

You don't have to do the things most kids of 15 think matter to get a lot out of life. For instance, lots of boys and girls of 15 and 16 think it is "smart" to smoke, drink and neck. They think they are "acting grown-up," but they really are only showing that they are "prep stuff;" and worse, they are dulling their sense of values and spoiling their health and their chances for knowing a real good time when they see one.

Ann is lucky if she can give parties at home. I can't do that, but I can ask the kids over to meet Mother and Dad. Of course, they don't always like the people I bring in, but they trust me enough to let me be my own judge. They've taught me to discriminate, and I am old enough now and wise enough to know something about what I want.

But I wasn't a year ago.

Of course, you have "lots of time later on," Ann. You won't be left out when you are older, if you are always friendly and charming. Learn now how to be that—how to act and behave. Don't be loud in speech, or dress or manner. Learn how to dress and act and look like a lady. Learn things to talk about. Then, when you do go out with boys they will like you.

CAN ENJOY LIFE

And don't joy-ride. It is bad for you. It isn't just what you, yourself, might do, but what will happen if people begin to talk about your "joy-riding." It is easy for a girl to "get a rep" —and mighty hard to lose one. Be too smart to let yourself in for anything like that.

This letter may sound preachy, but take it from one who knows —"it pays to be exclusive." Right now you can have lots of fun being just a little girl. You can enjoy things at 15 you won't at 20. Live each day for yourself, and use it to learn things in. Don't try to look ahead too much to what you'll be doing at 18 or 19 or 20, except to learn lots, so that you'll be ready for those days when they come. If you'll do that, you'll be way ahead of the kids that started "chasing" at 15.

MAIDA.

That's a fine letter, Maida. You have the system and you have the sense to realize what Mother and Dad were trying to do when they kept you "exclusive."

And the rest of you youngsters, who think Life's going to pass you up if you don't plunge into it before you have your bearings, had better take a tip and listen to the low-down from one of our own gang.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Men Join Madge for Council of War

The silence that followed Hugh Grantland's announcement of Lee Chow's disappearance was a devastating thing, paralyzing in its hopelessness.

"Does that mean—" I asked the question at last, fearfully—"that those Chinese may have Lee Chow in their power?"

"God alone knows what it means." Hugh's voice held no tremor, but there was in it a flatness of quenched hope and baffled initiative.

I waited another interminable minute, then spoke again.

"If you do not hear from him before tonight—the time you have set for the rescue—will you go on with your plans, or do you think it would be better to deliver Marion's box to them? It is here in Dr. Barnes' safe, you know. Father went out and got it yesterday."

Hugh's heavy eyebrows knitted in a puzzled frown.

"The introduction of the Chinese element into this problem changes everything," he said soberly. "If we could be sure that they would keep their word, I should favor turning the box over to them, but people capable of thinking the threat that this letter contains would have no hesitancy in taking the box and then destroying the girls, so that we could not trace them.

"But the final decision is not mine to make," he went on slowly. "That must be the lot of Harry Underwood; perhaps Lillian. Mrs. Brixton is, of course, in no condition to be told anything, and her husband —who knows?" He spread his hands in a gesture of futility.

HUGH DISTURBED

To see Hugh thus quiescent and despairing was to me most terrifying. Always he had spelled to me courage and resourcefulness raised to the nth power. He had been so confident of success in his plan of attack on the hiding place of the kidnapers that I knew nothing but a body blow like this disappearance of Lee Chow could have daunted his spirit.

But Lee Chow himself had said that all danger from his countrymen was definitely over. Had the wise old Chinese been mistaken, or—?

Hugh rose to his feet so suddenly that it was like a spring. His head was raised, his shoulders thrown back, and he was all dominant energy again.

"I'll just go and walk up and down outside a bit," he said abruptly, and went out of the door before any of us could speak, even if we had been willing to disturb him.

"If there's nothing you want of us," Mrs. Merton said softly, "we'll see that the room upstairs is ready for your friends whenever they come. Just sound the little bell on the table if you want us."

OTHER MEN ARRIVE

"Thank you," I answered, dully conscious that they were guessing I had no time or thought save for watching Hugh, as he ranged up and down like some feral animal in the narrow clearing between the house and the road. Indeed, I did not even see them go out of the room, so intent was I upon that rapidly tramping figure.

Fear for the outcome of the rescue plan, amounting almost to despair, was gripping him, I knew; but there was now in his mien no trace of the surprising let-down of his courageous resourcefulness that I had witnessed a few minutes earlier.

Before I heard the slightest sound on the road I saw Hugh Grantland whirl and stand still, looking down the road toward Sackettsville. The next moment a furiously driven motor car drew up so suddenly that the protesting brakes shrilled to Heaven, and the careening car came within a split inch of upsetting.

My father, of course, I told myself when I had caught my breath again. No one else drives so madly as he, or so censors the driving of any woman.

And with him were Harry Underwood and Ronald. As I saw the boy, my pulses bounded excitedly. Had Helena been brought back to sanity, and would Lillian, released from her promise, be able to accompany the men on the expedition to rescue her child?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Pellagra Is Disease of Summer

A great deal has been written concerning the various forms of treatment for pellagra, but very little in regard to its prevention. Yet you will agree with me, of course, that the prevention of disease is far more important than its cure. Keeping well is better than getting well.

Dr. Copeland

Pellagra is a disease involving the skin, stomach, intestines and nervous system. It can be traced to the prolonged diet lacking in certain substances. The disease usually makes its appearance during the summer months, but undoubtedly it can be traced to the diet of the preceding winter.

For many years this disease bewildered the medical profession. Since it first involves the skin, it was looked upon as a disease of the skin, and spoken of as a form of "dermatitis."

At one time pellagra was believed to be an infectious disease. When we learned about vitamins and came to have a better understanding of nutrition, it was determined that pellagra is a "vitamin deficiency disease." By this I mean that pellagra like scurvy, rickets and other similar diseases, follows the eating of food lacking in certain essential ingredients.

The skin symptoms of this disease are quite marked. There is first a reddish discoloration of the skin. This is followed by scaling and peeling of the afflicted area. The face, neck and hands are most commonly involved. The skin itches, burns, is tender and usually swells.

Sufferers from pellagra have marked nervous symptoms. These may lead to melancholia, with hallucinations, stupor and convulsions. As would be expected, the victim of this disease complains of swollen and bleeding gums, increased salivation and a persistent diarrhea.

Vitamin G is the one that prevents pellagra. It can be found in a variety of foods accessible to all. For example, it is found in large quantities in fresh lean meats, liver, milk, canned salmon, and wheat germ. In smaller quantities, it is found in eggs, dried beans and peas, canned spinach and canned string beans. Vitamin G is found in very small quantities in corn products, wheat and rye flour, oatmeal, salt pork, lard, carrots and rice.

From what I have said you will not question that the prevention of pellagra is easier than its cure. The disease is often difficult to relieve and frequently it undermines the general health of the afflicted person.

A.—No.

S. G. T. Q.—What would cause a pain on the right side a little below the hip? Would dancing or swimming cause further trouble or aggravation?

A.—It would be rather difficult to say without making examination. Do not overdo or overexert until the cause of the trouble has been located. Make sure there is no tendency to constipation.

Household Hints

To cut fresh cake or bread use a knife which has been dipped in hot water.

Place a piece of camphor gum in the drawer or box used for storing silver, and this will aid in preventing tarnishing.

Add a dash of salt to the water used in the gold fish bowl. This aids in keeping the fish in a healthy condition.

To remove tea, coffee or cocoa stains from china, wash with soda applied on a damp cloth.

Make the pot holders round so that there will be no trouble with the corners catching on fire in the stove blaze.

To remove water stains from glasses or vases, rube with vinegar applied on a cloth and wash well in hot water and soap suds.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Interesting Squeeze

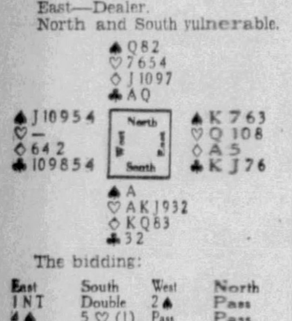
Mastery of the squeeze play permits the fulfillment of contracts which are otherwise entirely unattainable. When a hand contains not only quite interesting bidding, but the opportunity for the making of a brilliant and exact play, the fortunate holder at the Contract table may consider himself especially blessed by the gods of the game.

Exactly this situation occurred in a recent Rubber game in Youngstown, O., in which the South player had the opportunity not only for the drawing of accurate inferences through adverse bidding, but for excellent play, to realize his eventual contract.

East—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 N T | Double | 2 ♠ | Pass |
| 4 ♠ | 5 ♡ (1) | Pass | Pass |
| 5 ♠ (2) | Pass (3) | Pass | 6 ♡ (4) |
| Double | Pass | Pass | Pass |

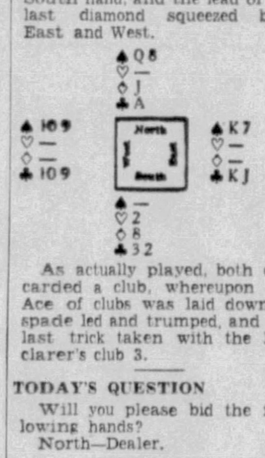
1—South studied for a considerable time before making his bid. The fact that East had jumped at once to four spades seemed to deny that he had an extremely strong hand if played at some other declaration; otherwise, he might have been more willing to let his vulnerable opponents get into trouble.

2—When East again bid spades rather than double five hearts, the inference drawn by the South player was confirmed.

3—Leaving final decision to partner.

4—North's decision was reasonably close, but, after all, South had shown some extremely strong bidding. Vulnerable, he had doubled for a Take-out an adverse Opening no-trump bid. After his opponents reached game, he overcalled, and North had a hand, while of a rather valueless distribution, that did contain some honor strength and adequate trump support. The Double of the adverse bid did not promise any considerable penalty. As a matter of fact, it would have been a very light one.

The Opening lead was the Knave of spades, and this situation was eventually developed, the only trick being lost by the Declarer up to this point having been the Ace of diamonds: The lead was in the South hand, and the lead of the last diamond squeezed both East and West.



As actually played, both discarded a club, whereupon the Ace of clubs was laid down, a spade led and trumped, and the last trick taken with the Declarer's club 3.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Will you please bid the following hands?

North—Dealer.

Answer—The bidding:

| North | South |
|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | 3 ♣ |
| 3 ♡ | 5 N T |
| 7 ♡ (1) | Pass |

1—North can infer that the Grand Slam will, at worst, depend upon a heart drop, as the bid of five notrump shows all three missing Aces and the club King. Furthermore, South's bidding clearly shows that more than one heart is held.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The weekly manicure is the best cure for the nail-nibbling habit, which is due to the presence of rough edges and hangnails.

Brilliantine is a valuable part of the beautifying outfit. It can be applied with an eyebrow brush to the lashes, giving them an enchanting glisten that is reflected in the eyes. It's a help when the new-laid permanent wave has fits, goes frizzy, won't conform to the accepted laws of undulations. It can be frictioned into the scalp for the purpose of softening dandruff to be washed out next day.

Surprising how some of the naturally curly girls develop a gift for water waving, directing undulations the way they should go. They learn to moisten the hair thoroughly, to comb straight out from the scalp, push toward the parting, anchor each wavelet with a comb. And that reminds us, when waving combs are new they have too much of a curve to stay flat to the head. A five-minute soaking in hot water will take the curves out of them. Also, when selecting combs, see that they have sharp, pointed teeth. Easier to use.

Rare is the complexion that is sufficient unto itself, that needs nothing more than soap and water to keep it in a condition of freshness and delicacy of texture. To display an appearance of finished grooming, it requires at least one daily oiling. Powder must be agreeable in color, light or fluffy according to the cuticle's own particular notions. It must be put on properly with no harsh friction of the pad to ruffle up epidermal scales. Even the best of complexions is likely to go frazzled suddenly, decide that life is bitter, kick up some kind of a tantrum.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Eating Sandwiches

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When ordering a cold sandwich in a restaurant, is it proper to cut the sandwich in small parts and use your knife and fork while eating it? As I understand it, it is proper to eat a cold sandwich as served. They are usually cut three ways and therefore are very convenient to handle with the fingers.

Please publish the correct form in your column as it has become an argumentative point in our crowd. L.

The very best way, the most careful way, of eating a sandwich is to use your knife and fork for the entire process. People who have careful manners about this sort of thing do not touch the sandwich with their fingers. And as a matter of fact, they eat the most simple of sandwiches with a knife and fork. It's a pleasant eating habit to acquire in this Country of Sandwiches, this always using the knife and fork with a sandwich . . . that is, when we are given a knife and fork. And it is especially important to use both silverpieces when we eat the three-decker sandwiches which are so problematic to eat—and so delicious.

Babies

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give me some advice about colors for babies? In what color should a baby boy be dressed . . . in pink or in blue? W.

There never has been a definite decision about the assignment of these colors. But usually, it is considered that pink is for girls and blue for boys. However, nowadays all-white is so popular for all babies that this question of whether-pink-or-blue is not so important as it used to be.

GREAT BUYING GROUP BARS IMPORTS

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—A smashing blow has been struck in behalf of the Hearst newspapers' "Buy American" campaign by the New York Buyers' Association, Inc., as a result of which foreign manufacturers will be deprived of business here worth from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 annually.

Inspired by the Hearst newspapers' campaign to stimulate American industry and provide jobs for millions of workers, the association voted to handle no more imported goods for their 7,200 customers throughout the United States.

At a meeting at Hotel Pennsylvania, the association, representing 30 New York City groups which do buying here for out-of-town mercantile establishments, a resolution commending the Hearst newspapers' "Buy American" campaign was indorsed.

The members of the association voted to notify their customers that hereafter, as a means of building up the industries of the United States, all orders for merchandise would be filled from domestic stocks.

In discussing this step, Leon M. Scharf, managing director of the association, said:

"Our group is entrusted by out-of-town stores to purchase for them $60,000,000 worth of merchandise each year. Of this amount, about 20 or 25 per cent has been spent for imported merchandise.

"Millions of dollars worth of imports from Japan, France, Czechoslovakia and other nations have been bought year after year by our members and inturn sent to the retail outlets in every action of our nation."

Coal Imports Cost Jobs Of Miners, Railroaders

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—More than 1,000 American miners in the anthracite industry and more than 200 railroad men were thrown out of work by anthracite imports in 1932, accord to a statement issued today by the Anthracite Institute.

A preliminary report received by the institute from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce shows 607,397 net tons of anthracite were imported in 1932, as compared with 637,951 in 1931, and 676,669 in 1930.

The institute claims that for every 600 tons of coal imported, one Pennsylvania miner is deprived of a year's work, and for every 3,000 tons, one railroad man becomes idle for a year.

The 1932 imports were: 281,928 tons from the United Kinkdom; 231,958 tons from Russia; 62,629 tons from Germany; 23,051 tons from Belgium, and 7,731 tons from French Indo-China.

The influx of foreign anthracite continued through January, and totaled 51,488 net tons up to January 28, the institute reported. This total, it claimed, deprived American laboor of 25,000 work days.

ARRESTS LOOM IN MILK WAR

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb 21.—(AP.)—Arrests on rioting charges were threatened by authorities of several communities today in an effort to halt further violence in the Wisconsin Co-Operative Milk Pool's strike for a price of $1.40 a hundred pounds for fluid milk.

Aroused by complaints of assaults on truck drivers, destruction of thousands of gallons of milk, and threats of bombings, officials of at least 10 counties said they were prepared to preserve order with force, if necessary.

After groups of pickets broke into factories at Dardoy, Little Chicago and Duntas in Outagamie County and poured kerosene and oil into large vats of milk and cream, Sheriff Martin Verhagen toured the picket camps and warned any similar occurrence would bring speedy retribution.

$800.00 Cash Offered For Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Everyone Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name and $800.00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours, or any other name you think of, it may mean $800.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theatre, is the beautiful Edith Roark. Like most of the stars, she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it, $800.00 in cash is offered to anyone who is quick in sending in the name selected. Miss Roark's publicity director says, "Most any name may win." It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a coined name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once, because $200.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before February 26, 1933. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. But send it right away, or you may be late for the promptness prize.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, George Blake, Studio M-860, 1023 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Everyone is invited to submit a name, and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. Officials say that any name may win the $800.00, even if submitted on a postcard or scrap of paper. If you can use $800.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once.

Wicked Rasputin Is Dead And Prince John Did A Very Good Job

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Horrors are piled upon horrors in the Three Star Barrymore picture, "Rasputin and the Empress," which had its initial showing at the Nixon Theater yesterday. Lionel plays the slimy reptile who gained an evil power at the Romanoff court by healing the young Czarevitch. Ethel plays the Czarina, a deluded woman who falls under the spell of the swinish fanatic. John is the handsome young Prince who executes vengeance upon the foul hypocrite after the doom of Holy Russia is sealed by the war.

Mr. Seibel

It's another of those historic pictures spiced with orgies and massacres. There are scenes in vast cathedrals—pardon, basilicas—in which Hollywood burns thousands of candles and bushels of incense. There are military parades with imposing armies marching proudly to the battlefields. And of course there are charming children of the Romanoff dynasty, Ted Alexander as the Czarevitch having most to do and say—which he does with much intelligence.

As for the architecture, the Kremlin and the Czar's Winter Palace are reproduced with imposing grandeur—not a brick or a shingle is missing.

LIONEL AS THE MONK

As the mad monk Rasputin, Lionel does a realistic masterpiece of the gruesome. Perhaps he was trying to show Brother John that he could beat Mr. Hyde and Svengali. But Brother John certainly gets even when it comes his turn to assassinate Lionel Rasputin. No more atrocious killing has been shown on stage or screen in years. It was gory, repulsive, ghoulish! The only extenuation was that Rasputin richly deserved it, after all his hypocrisy and lechery.

There is another very gruesome scene—the killing of the Czar's family at the close of the picture. Huddled in a cellar at the end of their railway journey into exile, Bolshevik revolvers mow them down.

The picture is filled with ironies of mordant cruelty. Every time the Czar or the Czarina pray devoutly, or read the Twenty-third Psalm, something worse happens. Charles MacArthur, who wrote the screen play, was also the author of "The Front Page"—and headlines are his delight. But if you have a Three Star Final, you must be lavish with red ink.

THOSE THREE STARS

The three Barrymores, and a few others not programmed, were always at their royal best. Ethel might have taught the real Czarina something about queenliness, as well as about maternal affection. John was as handsome and noble as any mythical prince from an operatic empire. As for Lionel, all the craft, cunning, filth, and vile passions of the historical Rasputin were mixed in an almost nauseating broth.

Ralph Morgan gave a very touching portrayal of the weak and vacillating Czar, and Diana Wynyard was classically beautiful as Princess Natacha.

It is less the acting . . . despite the three stars . . . than the massive historical perspective that makes this picture notable. Of course it tabloids history, but what would you? These royal personages even drop into tabloid grammar at times. The Czar promises to write the Czarina a letter a day from the front, just like any doughboy to his girl friend. These are minor matters which merely show that the Romanoffs were human after all. The important thing is that Rasputin gets killed, and Prince John attends to that in very efficient fashion. Every one who sees "Rasputin and the Empress" will be glad the slimy old hypnotist is dead . . . very dead.

Cairo, Egypt, will be the starting point in the travelogue to be given on Thursday evening at Carnegie Music Hall by Branson De Cou. It is entitled "Fascinating Egypt." Among things to be described by Mr. De Cou are the curious jitneys, the veiled women, the marvelous Cairo Museum, the Mummies of Seti I and Rameses II, new studies of the Pyramids, Sphinx, the Nile, the Valley of the Nile, Luxor, temples of Karnak, Valley of the Kings, tombs of the Pharaohs, and the pageant of the Nile.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Maxwell Anderson, author of "Both Your Houses," Theater Guild production coming to the Nixon next week as the fourth subscription play of the American Society, is a native of Western Pennsylvania, born in Atlantic, Crawford County. He was a college professor and newspaper man before he was a playwright, retiring from journalism when "What Price Glory," written in collaboration with Laurence Stallings, registered as a success. Seats for "Both Your Houses," starring Walter C. Kelly, will be on sale in the Nixon box office Thursday.

Cosmo Hamilton, British novelist and playwright, yesterday announced in New York plans for another effort to revive "the road." It is called the Union Theaters League and the plan contemplates a circuit throughout the country for the presentation of successful Broadway plays.

Gorillas On the Screen At the Cinema

A picture of the gorilla country, called "Ingagi," is the feature at the international Avenue Cinema this week. The simian stars do not speak the language of Prof. Garner, but they do some very Darwinian stunts. Before the gorillas there is a whole zoo of African animals, from lions to lowly armadilloes. It is as a nature picture that "Ingagi" must be considered—as the film record of an actual expedition into wildest Africa. The other picture of the program, "Bridegroom for Two," is so silly and stupid that it ought to get a prize as the worst film out of England.

Hibernians to Hold Dance Tomorrow

An old time and Irish dance will be held by Division One, Ancient Order of Hibernians, at 2715 Sarah street, tomorrow evening. Michael J. Hanley is general chairman.

Bowery

Mae West is the author of and star of "She Done Him Wrong," melodrama of old Bowery days, coming Friday to Penn screen.

Miss Chandler In Variety

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

The Variety this week presents a neat, exciting photo-drama of a girl battling temptation, in "Vanity Street." Helen Chandler is the girl. She adds new life to a somewhat outworn part, playing with child-like simplicity, yet with enthusiasm, toned by restraint, a young woman who almost goes wrong a second time after having been once saved from prison by a cop.

Charles Bickford, as the policeman who won't admit to himself that he's in love, is laconic and he-mannish as usual, and gives a pleasing and real performance.

The show has a New York night club and gangster background, and is punctuated periodically by the siren of Bickford's police car. It rises to a satisfactorily tense climax.

On the stage, "Huckleberry Finn," a sentimental sketch with songs, drew the most applause. Al. J. Stryker does a contortion act. Huff and Chiquita, and Walter and Lee present dances and wisecracks. A chorus act, "Sensations of the Dance" concludes the show.

Asylum Film Is Newest Project

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—In the rush for new and more sensational backgrounds, someone was bound to hit upon the idea.

But Paramount will be the first.

They'll make a picture that takes place in an insane asylum. Malcolm Boylan and Harvey Gates are writing the story, an original, which they will call "strait Jacket." It relates the gruesome experience of a young girl who has a nervous breakdown and who is wrongfully sent up as a mental case.

While the story will be some weeks more in preparation, Paramount already is looking about for the proper players. There is a role that just fits Charles Laughton, but it's doubtful if he will be back from England in time for the picture.

According to present plans, the Ely Culbertson - Marx Brothers bridge tourney will be held on two nights, one session being on a stage at the Paramount studio and another at RKO. Invitations will be issued to various stars to watch the game. Oddly enough, the Marx Brothers are quite serious about bridge. Chico has invented a system of his own, but Harpo can't play it, so the two will use Culbertson's own system against him in the coming match. After that, Chico says he will challenge the expert to another contest to try out his own scheme of bidding. In the second tourney, he wants to have a professional partner.

PLAYGIRLS IN LOVE

CHAPTER IV.

"I don't agree with you at all." Miss Prosser drew down her long upper lip. She was furiously angry at being put in the Victorian class, but with her policy of sweetness and sunshine towards Mr. Murdock, it would be a mistake to show temper in front of him. "The woman who competes with men soon loses her femininity. And a woman's femininity—" Miss Prosser had read this somewhere, and the trite words tripped off her tongue with a sort of triumph as she smirked at Mr. Murdock—"a woman's femininity is her best weapon."

"Weapon?" repeated Zella pertly, with raised brows. "Why, Miss Prosser, then you're really much more modern than I thought you were, if you believe a woman should go right after a man if she wants him."

"I don't know what you mean—"

"Oh yes, you do. A woman's a woman, but a man's a man for a' that, as they say in Bonnie Scotland, eh, what, Mr. Murdock?"

Some of the other guests had gone, and Judith pushed back her chair and rose from the table. "If you'll excuse me, I think I'll go up to my room. Are you coming, Zella?"

"Right."

JUDITH SYMPATHETIC

The two girls passed through the overheated lobby that was combined entrance hall and living room. It was full of ugly furniture and artificial plants, and smelled of tobacco and wood polish. They went up the narrow uncarpeted stairs with Zella's arms flung lightly around Judith's waist.

"Gosh, but Miss Prosser's madder than a wet hen at me!" Zella giggled, the moment they were out of earshot of the others. "The old girl's been setting her cap at Poppa Murdock for weeks and weeks—and now I guess I've queered her chances!"

"Poor thing. I'm sorry for her," Judith said—and meant it. It seemed sad for a woman to be alone in the world, and middle-aged, and in a boarding house, without a job to interest her, and with neither good looks nor a husband.

"Sorry nothing! She's the cattiest thing that ever walked on two scrawny legs, I'll tell the world!"

"But she's so alone! Imagine how we'd feel if we were in her shoes. Our minds would go gaga, too." Judith stopped for breath on the third landing.

"Nonsense. She's sharp enough. Didn't you hear that crack she handed you about 'office wives.'?"

"But that's because the poor soul's unhappy—"

"And jealous as the devil. You're so charitable and unsuspicious, Judith, you never see through her kind."

WANTS TO MOVE

They reached the fourth floor and went into Judith's bedroom, which she had attempted to brighten up with rose-colored cotton drapes and a gay cushion or two.

"Now you get right into bed and we'll have our confab, old girl." Zella dug into the cupboard and brought out a pink silk negligee—a dainty affair that she had made for her friend out of scraps of lace and silk and a little spray of chiffon flowers.

She wrapped it around Judith's shoulders as the latter got into bed.

Then Zella made a nest for herself with all the cushions she could find, which she propped against the rail at the bottom of the bed, curled herself up among them, lit a cigaret, and proceeded to a matter that had been simmering in her mind for some time.

"Judith, what do you say we make a move from here? I'm fed up on this place. It's inconvenient for my job. The food grows worse and worse. Mrs. Timmins is a pill, and the others give me a pain in the neck."

Judith stared at Zella for a moment, rather taken aback.

"You want to leave?"

"Why no! What's the use of hanging on in this dull hole where we've no comfort, no privacy, no place for receiving anybody? Besides"—she blew a ring of smoke into the air and watched it circle reflectively—"I've been studying you close at hand, Judith, and I think you're the only girl I could really get on with—I mean, live with. You're rather restful, you know, without being either tiresome or stupid. I thought we might share a little apartment somewhere in the Village, or where it isn't too expensive. You always mind your own business—and you wouldn't butt into my affairs, and I should respect your privacy too."

EXPENSES FIGURED OUT

"An apartment of our own?" repeated Judith, a glint of excitement sparkling in her wide grey eyes. "Oh, Zella, that would be lovely!" She clasped her hands together, but almost immediately her face fell as she said, in a flat voice: "But, Zella, I couldn't afford it."

"I've thought of that." Zella leaned back on the gaily colored pillows and nodded reassuringly at Judith.

She was a tall girl with a beautiful figure and a plain, rather humorous face. Just now her face had a very kindly look as she said: "I've figured out what would be a fair share of the rent for you, ole dear. You're young. Years younger than me. I'm making just about double your weekly pay check. I daresay we can pick up a little place at $75 a month, and you can pay in proportion to what you're earning."

"That's good of you, but it isn't fair to yourself," Judith protested.

"Certainly it is. I'm speaking from my own selfish point of view. For us to share an apartment would have distinct advantages."

"It's sweet of you to say so, Zella. It would be fun to have a little place of our own and fix it up." Judith's thoughts had flown to Barry Deane and how wonderful it would be to have the sort of a "setting" the kind of girls he knew must have! Her quick imagination visualized a living room with pale green walls and a green velvet rug on the floor, and golden lamplight spilling over flowers—there would always be lots of flowers—so that her home would look and smell like a garden in the springtime! There would be pretty furniture and a deep, easy chair where Barry, if and when he came to see her, could rest in.

There would be a radio, of course—she had always wanted one—for Judith loved music.

And there would be a comfortable couch where you could curl up with a book on rainy Sunday afternoons, and a dear little brick fireplace.

POLITICS

Martin to Tell Citizens He Won't 'Boss' Coyne

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—State Chairman Edward Martin, when he confers, Friday or Saturday, in Pittsburgh, with Joseph C. Dilworth, chairman of the citizens' committee, will adopt about the same course he did last week when he met with Mrs. John O. Miller, head of the League of Women Voters, to discuss her demand that he draw the whip and lash Senator James J. Coyne into line for legislation which the league and the citizens' committee favor.

Mr. Shields

And that language will not be encouraging to the demands of the two political reform organizations of Allegheny County.

Mrs. Miller, it will be recalled, wrote the state chairman that things weren't this way when Senator Penrose was alive—the same Senator Penrose who during his lifetime was excoriated by reform elements as all that was evil in political bossism, but who now, through the glamor of perspective, has become something of a guiding force for occasional good in the eyes of those who long for a firm hand—and righteousness.

The Citizens' Committee sent a letter of the same general tenor, though not raking up Senator Penrose. This group merely demanded that the state chairman make Coyne be good, as the Citizens' Committee sees goodness, with special stress on the city manager form of government.

And that is one thing in which the state chairman does not intend to interfere.

Gen. Martin declines to be quoted on the subject of his discussion with Mrs. Miller, and will not anticipate his meeting with Mr. Dilworth, but his friends are not so reticent.

Martin Policy 'Hands Off' Concerning Local Issues

The state chairman is understood to have told Mrs. Miller, as he will tell Mr. Dilworth, that it would be presumptuous on his part to order Senator Coyne to do this or that. The Senator, he is known to feel, was elected by the electors of the Forty-third Senatorial District, and it is not the province of the state chairman nor anyone else divorced from that district to tell him what to do on any local legislative subject.

For the state chairman to attempt to do so, Gen. Martin is represented as feeling, would be to set him up as a hard-handed boss, a manifestation in politics which he sees as contrary to all the principles of the reform groups which believe that government should be free, and not the expression of a single powerful individual.

It is admitted that on many things the state chairman and the Senator from Oakland do not agree; by his friends the state chairman is said to make these differences of opinion clear. But under the authority granted him by the party organization he can do no more than that.

He can, by example or spoken word, try to influence the principle on which Gen. Martin has operated, according to his friends, and they point to it as the exemplification of freedom of thought by members of the party which has been a fetish of reform groups, and which they stoutly insisted upon in the days when the word of Penrose was final on party policies.

Conflict in Demands For Freedom, Bossing

These friends of the present state chairman are known to feel that there is very little consistency in the demand that he shall swing the whip on Coyne, at the same time there is a demand that there shall be freedom of action on the part of politicians beneath the grade of state chairman.

As to the city manager form of government for Pittsburgh, it is a foregone conclusion that Gen. Martin will not interfere in this proposition.

He is represented as feeling that the legislators from Pittsburgh were elected by the people of that community, and should be relied upon to interpret the desire of the people. In this principle he is not confined to an attitude toward Senator Coyne alone, but in it embraces every member of the Senate and House.

If the city manager form of government is desired by a majority of the city, then the state chairman feels that the legislators, responsive to that sentiment, will so vote. And if they do not, if they betray the will of the people, the punishment for that betrayal lies within the province of those at home rather than within the jurisdictiton of a gentleman who, though Republican state chairman, is a resident of Washington County.

In other words, he is setting forth the essence of home rule.

Summing up, it is impossible that either the League of Women Voters or the Citizens Committee have much to hope for from Gen. Martin in response to their letters. And they will get no letter in return, the state chairman having determined that personal conversation will serve his purpose quite as well as a communication published in the newspapers.

Falk Group to Hear Social Trend Prober

Dr. Wesley Clair Mitchell will speak to trustees of the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association Friday night. Dr. Mitchell, chairman of the President's research committee on social trends, will base his talk on the committee's findings, which were published last month, discussing its relation to the present economic condition.

New York Girl Won By Carnegie After Lengthy Courtship

by BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

The year 1887 proved to be an important one in Carnegie's life, for his long bachelorhood now came to an end. At the age of 51 he married a charming lady of 30—Miss Louise Whitfield, the daughter of John W. Whitfield, a New York wholesale merchant of the old substantial school.

ANDREW CARNEGIE, 1887

The two had been close friends for several years. Even while she was a child Carnegie had frequently visited the Whitfield home—one of those brownstone houses of West Forty-Eighth street, which represented the dignity, ease and cultivation of metropolitan existence in the eighteen seventies. Carnegie's friendship in this early period was confined to the father and mother, the daughter, then a schoolgirl, hardly coming within his purview. As Miss Whitfield grew into a young woman, however, his admiration and affection were apparent.

That was the primitive era when horseback riding was popular, and not unnaturally Carnegie's courtship took on an equestrian character. These two speeding figures, the slender girl and the experienced man of the world, soon became one of the most familiar sights in Central Park and the surrounding country. That Carnegie had material in plenty for reminiscent conversation the preceding pages have disclosed. His childhood in Scotland, his emigration to America, his struggles, his triumphs, his association with most Americans whose names were filling the daily press, and first-hand knowledge of important statesmen and writers of England, all told with liveliness and embellished by quotations from his favorite poets—Carnegie's rapidly moving career comprised adventures in plenty to fire the imagination of a romantic girl.

"After my first ride," Mrs. Carnegie once said, "I decided, whatever the future might hold in store, that would remain the great experience of my life."

Engagement Broken

Yet Carnegie's suit progressed somewhat more discouragingly than his successes in other fields. He used to say that his wife kept him laboring for seven years, like a famous Biblical heroine. There was a brief engagement in 1883, which was terminated by a mutual return of letters and resolutions to think of each other in future merely as friends. At this time Carnegie was active in English politics and was even being proposed for Parliament; Miss Whitfield was appalled at the prospect of transferring herself across the Atlantic and plunging into such an unfamiliar pandemonium as was British life at that period. In a year or two, however, the horseback rides were resumed, and in the sum-

West View Feud In Open Tonight

Opponents of the West View school directors will hurl a 15-minute verbal attack at the board's reported move to elect Robert McKee as successor to H. N. Hennon, ousted supervising principal, at a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in West View Junior High School.

Dr. A. E. Torrens, president of the board, yielded last night to a request by the Parent-Teacher Association for a hearing at the meeting which had been scheduled as a closed session.

Prowlers in Home, Man Calls Police

South Side police scout cars sped to 506 Kirk avenue early today in response to a telephone call from J. Schanning that prowlers had been heard on the first floor of his home.

The prowlers, who gained entry to the home by jimmying a kitchen window, had escaped with $40 before the arrival of police.

INCREASES LAID TO EQUALIZING OF TAXES

Old Schedule Favored Political Friends, Workmaster Says

Homestead citizens protesting increased valuation of their properties were receiving hearings today before the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

Harry Workmaster listened to the Homestead complaints, accordingan individual hearing to each person.

Appearance of a number of Homestead residents followed a protest meeting in their municipal building last night, attended by more than 200 property owners. Workmaster today explained to each the revision was merely an equalization af assessments following discovery that political favorites for years have had preferential assessments.

REFUSE LAWYER

By popular vote the residents refused to retain a common legal counsel at their meeting, which had been called by Burgess John J. Cavanaugh.

The burgess, whose hearing in connection with alleged juggling in the 1931 triennial assessments is pending before Alderman Edward Haas, said he called the meeting because he had received numerous complaints on increased valuations.

With five others, including Port Eckles, the school superintendent, Cavanaugh was arrested on informations of the County Board of Claims and Investigation on a charge of conspiracy in a scheme to procure for themselves political prestige by unlawfully making assessments not based on the viewers' surveys.

URGE COUNSEL

After presiding at the election of a temporary chairman, Mark Fischel, Homestead jeweler, and a secretary, Mrs. Anna M. Winters, Burgess Cavanaugh urged that a common counsel be retained to take the case before the revision board, and, if necessary, to appeal the several cases in court.

When the owners voted not to engage counsel, the burgess' suggestion was taken by the borough solicitor, P. H. Maquire, who warned that "they are a bunch of pretty slick guys" in the revision office. The residents refused again.

Three Judges Hear Fireman's Job Plea

Judges James R. Macfarlane and Thomas M. and Elder W. Marshall today heard argument in the mandamus action brought by Delos G. Harvey, a city fireman, to compel the Civil Service Commission to reinstate him.

Harvey was dropped from the payroll a year ago when numerous firemen and policemen were let out in a shakeup.

Church Benefit For Needy Sunday

A continued performance for the benefit of the needy of the Sacred Heart parish will be held next Sunday in the Sheridan Square Theater, East End. Admittance will be by donations of food and groceries, but no clothing will be accepted. This will be the second Sunday performance for the Sacred Heart parish.

AUTO THIEVES DODGE SHOTS

Two Negroes who abandoned a stolen automobile after a three-mile chase, in which four shots were fired by County Police last night, were being sought today.

Less than an hour after the automobile, owned by Dr. John Cottam, 2173 Wylie avenue, had been stolen while parked in Elmore street, the car was observed speeding through the north portal of the Liberty Tubes. Two County motorcycle patrolmen pursued the speeding machine over the Liberty Bridge and in the Boulevard of the Allies to Ward and Zulema streets, where the two Negro occupants abandoned it and fled. The shots were fired as the car raced in the boulevard.

'LIFER' CAUSES CLASH AT JAIL

Marshall Augustine, 30, a "lifer," was back in his cell in the Western Penitentiary today after creating considerable excitement in the county jail by fighting guards who reprimanded him after finding him off the range yesterday afternoon.

Augustine, one of four convicts who appeared as a witness in a murder trial, was subdued in the brief scuffle witnessed by several score of prisoners who hissed and booed the guards. Jail officials denied that the fight incited other prisoners to riot.

After the struggle, Augustine and the other convicts were taken back to the penitentiary.

Police Stage Three Raids on 'Numbers'

Three alleged numbers places were raided by county detectives in the Hill district yesterday. The raids were made on complaint to District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

An adding machine, numbers books and slips were confiscated in a place at Wylie avenue and Townsend street. In two other places, one in Roberts street and the other in Fullerton street, the raiding sleuths found no law violations. It was believed that they had been "tipped off" after the Wylie avenue raid.

Donora's Council Cuts Tax Rates

DONORA, Pa., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Council announced today that the tax rate in Donora had been cut from 11 to 10 mills.

FARMER SHOOTS HEN THIEF

Clyde Miller, 26, of 345½ Collins avenue, admitted in St. Francis Hospital last night that the story he told upon admission late Sunday was false and that he had been shot while stealing chickens on a farm near Hartford, O., Saturday night, according to Homicide Detective Dennis Timpona.

When admitted to the hospital Miller told detectives he was wounded accidentally at the home of a relative in Akron while examining a shotgun. When Ohio authorities learned of Miller's wound they came here and, with Timpona, questioned him about the chicken theft on the James Haney farm near Hartford. Miller then admitted he was one of two men fired upon by Haney when they looted his hen house, Timpona said.

A search for Miller's companion was being made in Youngstown.

We've Had One On House; Now Pour In States

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Well, it was a glorious victory for anybody who wants to claim it.

We had one on the House yesterday. Add that to one on the Senate. Pour in 36 states, a dash of customers and set on the bar to cool.

We forget whether it was George Washington or Carrie Nation who did it with their little hatchets. But we do know that the brewers' big hosses have been entered for the Milwaukee futurity.

Bit by bite the amendments are falling like artichoke leaves at a banquet. Now the Constitution will be easier for the school children to memorize.

We hope that they don't give us the near-beer that cheers not but costs much. We want ratification and not mousification.

ACCUSED SUITOR FREE IN THEFT

Joseph Schessler, 20, of 201 Allries street, Carrick, former suitor of Catherine Kramer, 20, of 513 Walde street, Mt. Oliver, accused by the girl's mother of taking $3, was freed today in Morals Court for lack of evidence.

Mrs. Catherine Kramer testified that she found a note on her door Sunday morning, signed K. K. K. It read:

"If I can't have her, Shady can't have her, either. I only took $3. Next time something more valuable."

Mrs. Kramer testified that Schessler was a former suitor of her daughter and that she thought he took $3 from her pocketbook.

Girl Runs Against Truck, Breaks Leg

Nora Nee, 4, of 1523 Wolpert street, North Side, suffered a fractured leg and a possible fracture of the skull when she ran against the rear wheel of a truck at Armandale and Wolpert streets late yesterday, according to police. She was taken to Presbyterian Hospital, where her condition was pronounced critical.

SAVED FROM ICY WATERS

ANNABELLE MILLS, 9.....SHE FELL INTO SILVER LAKE

GIRL RESCUED IN ICY LAKE

Annabelle Mills, of 7304 Forest way, Homewood, today warned her playmates that a frozen lake was no place for a child's play.

Annabelle, 9, so decided because of her experience late yesterday.

Walking on the thin ice on the surface of Silver Lake, near Washington boulevard, Annabelle fell through it. The cries of several companions attracted Raymond McNally, 21, of 949 Washington boulevard, who plunged into the chilly water and rescued the girl. She was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital and McNally was taken to his home. After receiving treatment at the hospital the girl, apparently none the worse for her experience, was taken to her home.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Remember my old rich "Injun" that I was telling you about? The government wanted him to get a divorce because he lived in Hollywood. Well, they pulled one better than that the other day. They tried to prove that he wasn't in his right mind because one time when his car stalled and they couldn't get it going he traded it for an old pony, got on him and rode off. And they call that crazy. If everybody did that, they would be out of debt in a couple of years. Just think, no gas, no tires, no roads to pay for. Why, instead of prosecuting the old Indian, they ought to erect a monument to him for being that far ahead of his time. Yours, WILL.

Will Rogers.

Politicians Lose Parking Space at Court House

Politicians other than those in county offices, whose automobiles have been taking up space in the court house yard, must find a new parking space after today, the County Commissioners have decreed.

Only the brown county cars and those assigned to elected county officials are to be allowed in the yard under the rules adopted, but it was believed those of county detectives and investigators would be permitted to stay.

Beginning today six county agencies find themselves without automobiles. This includes the weights and measures director, the photographic division, the asphalt division, the tax revision office, the county planning division and the Controller's engineer.

The Commissioners have announced that all chauffeurs will be dispensed with, beginning next month. Cars taken from individual department heads will be used in the county taxi service for county business. An elected official will have to drive the car assigned to him or use the taxi system.

Mate and 'Other Woman' Ignored Plea, Wife Says

Mrs. Bessie M. Gardner, Mt. Royal boulevard, was awarded a divorce by Judge Elder W. Marshall after testifying that her husband, John B. Gardner, Bonvue street, fell in love with another woman and refused to give her up.

Mrs. Gardner told Judge Marshall:

"I asked the other woman, brought to my house at my request, if she did not know she was doing wrong and she said she did. She told me they were in love with each other. My husband refused to stop going with her."

Mrs. Gardner said she discovered the romance through a telephone call from a woman who said that if Mrs. Gardner would call a certain number she would find her husband there. The informant also said Gardner had been going out with a young woman, Mrs. Gardner testified.

She called, found her husband there and told him to come home, and when he did he choked her, she declared.

TEACHERS UPHOLD CITY'S APPOINTIVE SCHOOL BOARD

INCREASED AID BY STATE FAVORED

The Pittsburgh Teachers Association, representing 3,200 members, or more than 90 per cent of all teachers in the Pittsburgh public school system, today announced adoption by its board of directors of a seven-point "platform" establishing the organization's position on school legislation which may come before the Legislature.

The appointive board, the Edmonds act, taxation and reduction of school districts are among the important subjects covered in the statement. Retention of the present appointive board is favored on the ground that it has proven to be the method best adapted to large cities.

FAVOR MODIFICATION

The association urges retention of the Edmonds act provisions which establish qualifications and salaries of teachers, and favors a modification of the act which will permit a temporary reduction of 10 per cent in salaries during the present biennium. The 10 per cent salary reduction already has been accepted voluntarily by Pittsburgh teachers.

To relieve the school tax burden upon real estate, the association recommends a larger share of the cost of education be assumed by the state, and that revenue for this purpose be derived from sources other than real estate.

RULE PLAN UPHELD

As the platform specifies the method reduction of districts recommended by Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction, in his "Ten Year Program," it is indicated the teachers will not support the method outlined in the revised school code prepared jointly by the Department of Public Instruction, the Attorney General's office, and the Joint Legislative Committee on Education.

The association also advocates maintenance of the present retirement system, admits the present necessity of the heavy pupil-teacher load, and implies that the residence of teachers should not be restricted by urging that character and training be the primary factors in determining eligibility.

JOBLESS SPURN WORK PLAN

Disorder marked a meeting of the Coraopolis Emergency Association last night, when several hundred unemployed protested a proposed plan of the association whereby those receiving the 90 cents weekly per capita allowance could increase the amount to $1.10 by indicating 'heir willingness to work on borough projects.

Interpreting the offer as a proposition to have them labor for 20 cents a week, a number of those present greeted it with shouts of derision.

Order was restored when Dr. Frank C. Ferrante explained the borough was interested only in keeping the idle employed and in making a small addition to their allowance. He brought out that no person was compelled to work, and that failure to join the movement would not impair the man's present income.

Samuel Harden Church Lauds Newspapers Here

In dealing with the interests of the community and their devotion to the public welfare, the newspapers "are never found lacking," President Church writes. His editorial follows:

PITTSBURGH'S NEWSPAPERS

"From time to time the criticism is heard—generally from that irresponsible individual who is popularly known as 'the man in the street'—that the people of Pittsburgh are suffering a certain handicap because of the lack of a Pittsburgh-owned newspaper.

"The specification which goes with this censure is that the controlling ownership of our three daily newspapers is held by men, or by groups of men, who are not residents of this city. We do not think that this criticism is sound, fair, or just.

"The test of the matter should be whether these newspapers are devoted to the interests of Pittsburgh, and no man who is familiar with the situation can question their loyalty and their representative character as Pittsburgh institutions.

"The enormous capital which makes these publications possible may be provided om metropolitan sources, but the energy and brains of each of the three enterprises are furnished from top to bottom, with but a few exceptions, by Pittsburgh men. These conditions make it possible for the people of Pittsburgh to read the news of the world twice each day with the essential fullness of the greatest newspapers of America. In this respect we have the word of a former owner that these papers are far better than they were in the days of their local control.

"In dealing with the local interests of this community, our three newspapers are never found lacking in their attention. If utility rates are too high, if transportation conditions are unfair, or if the integrity of public administration is corrupted, the three newspapers are quick to print the facts so that public opinion may be intelligently organized to secure a proper adjustment of each situation.

"In all these things which affect the social life and welfare of the community, its need for active benevolence, and the interpretation of its intellectual and cultural life, the columns of these great journals are thrown open and filled from day to day with the widest generosity in reflecting the activities, the responsibilities, and the aspirations of our people.

"It sometimes happens that we find fault—and sometimes indignant and even violent fault—with this or that detail of newspaper policy, and in all such cases constructive criticism is proper and helpful; but when objection is made that these journals are not Pittsburgh institutions simply because their capital investment comes from outside sources, we are taking a provincial attitude which is narrow, illogical, and entirely beside the fundamental questions."

SUBSCRIPTIONS HELP NEEDY

With the two checks referred to in the letter published herewith and another check to be given during this week, Father Cox will have received approximately $1,000 on account of the Sun-Telegraph subscription drive for the benefit of his unemployment relief activities. Acknowledging the last two checks, Father Cox in a letter said:

"Your checks for February 11th and 18th are like a ray of sunshine piercing through the darkest clouds and mean so much for God's poor. Words are inadequate to thank you but I do from the bottom of my heart.

Yours gratefully,
Father Cox."

Aside from giving relief to the long bread line and the hundreds of others who come to him for food, clothing and shelter, Father Cox has the added problem of maintaining the morale of his people. As a part of this plan he has an entertainment in the basement of Old St. Patrick's every Sunday night, and the 500 people who attend have a chance to forget their troubles for at least a couple of hours. Joe Walsh is master of ceremonies at these affairs, and Father Cox is invariably present.

Sun-Telegraph readers will bear in mind that every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page brings to the Father Cox Unemployment Relief Fund a liberal cash commission.

Duquesne in Lead In Bridge Contest

Tied at the end of their session, the University Club was awarded the decision over the Engineers' Society game on the computation of match points by pairs. The Pittsburgh Athletic Association won from the Keystone Athletic Club in the third game of the evening.

MANAGEMENT

The current economic assault upon industry and business has demonstrated the wisdom of this now historic policy of The Western and Southern Life Insurance Company of strengthening reserves and building up surplus for the protection and security of our policyholders. Our 1932 statement strikingly reflects the result of this policy. We have closely adhered to our policy of safety and protection of policyholders through integrity and stability of reserves and ample surplus. It is our purpose to continue this proven course which insures the absolute safety of every policyholder.

All real estate of the company has been depreciated below present values, and all mortgage loans to positive and certain values. All bonds are carried at their amortized value, with not a single default, and consist solely of Government and high-grade municipals, which together with our cash practically equal the entire capital and surplus, thus creating a most liquid condition.

Rigid economies and strict adherence to these practices during 1932 has resulted in a matchless condition, which for quality and character of reserves, liquidity of resources and financial strength is unexcelled if equaled by any life insurance company in the United States.

Life insurance written at all ages and amounts from birth to age seventy. Premiums can be paid weekly, monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually at the convenience of the insured. Our rates are among the lowest guaranteed life insurance premium rates of all United States Companies.

All policies contain guaranteed cash, loan, paid-up and extended insurance values.

WHAT STOMACH ACIDITY IS AND WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT

A Few Simple Rules

THE SIGNS OF ACID STOMACH

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Nervousness | Sour Stomach | Loss of Appetite |
| Neuralgia | Mouth Acidity | Frequent Headaches |
| Indigestion | Nausea | Feeling of Weakness |

WHAT TO DO FOR IT

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

GIRL INJURED, TWO HELD IN FENCE ROW

A fence and this morning's wind storm resulted in new difficulties for two North Side families today, according to police. One woman was taken to a hospital and two persons were arrested.

The fence was the subject of a court order last fall when it was ordered removed, but police said the order was complied with only to the extent that it was moved a short distance.

The barrier separates the homes of William Newell, 30, of 2511 Perrysville avenue, and Mrs. Mary Alba, 42, of 2513 Perrysville avenue. Police said it was erected by Newell who lives with a sister, Miss Josephine Newell, 38. Mrs. Alba obtained a court order last October directing Newell to remove the fence because it darkened her kitchen, but police said he only moved it from the window and that it still stood between the rear porches.

A high wind last night loosened the fence. Mrs. Alba told police the noise disturbed her. Newell appeared this morning and began making repairs, the police were told, and an argument between him and Mrs. Alba ensued. Newell's sister and Mrs. Alba's daughter, Theresa, 17, joined in, according to the police, and Theresa said Newell brandished an iron rod, threatening her mother. The girl told police Miss Newell sought to restrain her brother and suffered a blow on the arm. She fainted, police said, and was taken to Allegheny General Hospital, still unconscious.

Newell and Mrs. Alba were arrested on disoorderly conduct charges. They will be arraigned at a hearing in police court tomorrow.

MONACO PRINCE DIVORCED

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The hereditary Princess Charlotte and Prince Pierre, of Monaco, have been divorced, it was officially announced today.

Princess Charlotte received the consent of her father, Prince Louis, of Monaco, last January to a divorce from Pierre. The divorce, however, could not be officially declared until it had been passed upon by French authorities.

Princess Charlotte and Prince Pierre were separated in 1930. Their marital difficulties have been linked to political affairs by reports that the Prince was favored by a group which had hoped to set up a republic in Monaco. When Princess Charlotte asked her father to agree to the divorce, she renounced her hereditary rights in favor of her son, Prince Rainier, 10.

Sewickley police and volunteer firemen continued today to drag the Ohio River in the vicinity of the Sewickley-Coraopolis Bridge for the body of Margaret Haney, 20, of Glen Osborne, who was reported to have leaped from the bridge Sunday night.

The young woman's leap was reported to Police Chief Harold Rhodes, Sewickley, by two young girls, who told of struggling with the girl to prevent her from jumping. Police said the girl had been employed as a domestic in the home of Robert W. McKnight, of Glen Osborne.

Brenzel Costly to Bucs. Movie Action Different.
Grimes Outranks Vance. Prices on Big Handicap.

BUYING RECRUITS BLIND INVESTMENT

THE OUTRIGHT RELEASE of Catcher Bill Brenzel by the Pirates to Kansas City in the American Association, to complete the deal for Pitcher Hal Smith, shows again the long chance a major league clug takes in buying a young player from the minors at a fancy price. The flashy recruit must be paid for according to his minor league record, and then, if he doesn't make the grade, must be sold back as an article confessedly having no value in the majors.

Bill Brenzel

He must be puhchased as a prospect and sold as a failure. The difference between the buying and selling prices is great. It's a blind investment and a long gamble. The difference between what the Pittsburgh club paid for Brenzel and the sum he represented in going to Kansas City in part payment for Smith runs into five healthy figures. In a playing way, the release of Brenzel means nothing more to the Pirates than the reducing of the training camp squad from 28 to 27, as he had not been counted on for retention after the practice period. He was in nine games for the Bucs last year and batted only .042. Later he failed even with Newark. He is another exhibit as to how little minor league records are worth.

ONE REASON WHY the owners of the Braves have experienced little trouble in getting their players under contract for the season, according to President Emil Fuchs, is that a fair-play policy has been followed in dealing with athletes whose salaries were reduced.

In several cases where the club cut the pay of players who have been in the game for some years, Fuchs says, the pastimers were given the alternative of trying to better themselves with other clubs. If they could get more money elsewhere, they were given permission to sell themselves.

"We do not want to take away from any man his ability to make ends meet or his chance to get just as much as he possibly can for his services," Fuchs said.

As to Art Shires, Harry Seibold and others mentioned as not likely to be retained, Fuchs says there is nothing to give out now except that all have received contracts. He does announce definitely that Horace Ford is to be kept for another trial.

BASEBALL SCRIBES IN St. Louis probably were not surprised that the Cub management refused to consider the suggested trade of Dazzy Vance for Burleigh Grimes. When they urged such a swap they admitted the Cardinals would be getting all the better of it in the matter of spirit, and that even when Vance was at his peak he never was in the class of Grimes as a money pitcher. Burleigh and Dazzy represented extremes in the matter of fight. Grimes always wanted the tough games of the season. He wanted to knock over the leaders. The harder the going the better the scrappy spitballer liked it. Vance, on the other hand, lacked that aggressiveness. He liked to pick his spots, and those spots were not the tough ones.

Burleigh Grimes

EVEN WHEN VANCE received the award as the National League's most valuable player in 1924, it was Grimes who helped him to that honor. The two were Brooklyn teammates then, and Vance won 28 games while losing only six, against Grimes' record of 22 victories and 13 defeats.

But if you go back over the box scores of the Dodgers' games during that season you will find that it was Grimes who pitched the tough games in every series, and it was Grimes who was called to the rescue whenever Vance was in trouble, with the result that Burleigh saved Daz from quite a few defeats.

IF MAX CAREY'S judgment is correct, Owen Carroll, at the age of 30, is just coming into his own as a major league pitcher and from now on will fulfill a large part of the promise he showed in winning more than 50 college games while starring at Holy Cross.

It is pointed out that Carroll wouldn't be the first pitcher to hit his stride in passing the 30-year mark. Remy Kremer, Huck Betts, Bill Harris and others might be mentioned. Carey believes Carroll will have the same success, and figures that the most famous baseball collegian of recent years is all set and ready to go.

---

THE FALLIBILITY OF judging fights by scanning the moving pictures is attested by Wilbur Wood and other New York boxing experts who were ringside observers of the fatal Carnera-Schaaf bout and have since watched a run-off of the film. In reality the affair was dull and boresome, they repeat, but on the screen it looks like a very good fight. One reason, of course, is that three minutes of boxing can be run off in half that time on the screen. The final punch, thus speeded up, looks like a stiff wallop instead of the mere jab that it was actually.

Prices against the others range from 20 to 1 to 500 to 1, play or pay.

DESCRIBING THE BLEND of deception and power which is the Notre Dame system of football, Jimmy Crowley, of Four Horsemen fame, who has shifted from Michigan State to Fordham as head coach, has a new term for it. He calls it "fool 'em and knock 'em down."

Jimmy Crowley

That's the system which Crowley will take to Fordham. He realizes there is a hard job ahead, he says, not only in following such a good coach as Maj. Frank Cavanaugh, but in teaching the Notre Dame way of playing to a lot of boys who have spent a couple of years playing a different system.

"WE TEACH OUR young men to fool the other fellows and then knock 'em down," Crowley says. "We figure that in order to knock 'em down you've got to fool 'em—but it's no good fooling 'em if you haven't the power to knock 'em down. There wasn't anything very deceptive about the plays used by Maj. Cavanaugh at Fordham, but there was plenty of power in them. Our aim now will be to take that power and apply it a little differently. Instead of merely bowling an opposing tackle over, we'll try to feint him out of position first and then bowl him over. It's easier—once you've feinted him properly, of course—and the gain through him is likely to be longer, because you don't have to use up so much power right in the line, but can reserve some of it for service down the field. Cav's idea was to hammer out three or four yards at a time. Ours is to shoot for plenty."

At noon today, Maxie Hannum, Carnegie's writer-coach, and his squad of—lessee—two, four, six—12 players, one student manager and Trainer Bert Munhall will depart for New York City.

Tomorrow, the Plaid opens its eastern invasion, meeting New York University in Madison Square Garden. The Tech-N. Y. U. contest is sort of an added attraction to a big intercollegiate basketball program for the benefit of charity. All in all, a dozen college teams will take part in the affair, the others being St. Francis, of Brooklyn, Brooklyn College, Columbia, Manhattan, Villanova, Williams, Fordham, C. C. N. Y., St. John's and George Washington.

TO "DO" BROADWAY

Following the game with the Violets, the Tartans will enjoy a day of rest and give Broadway a going-over and then move over to Philadelphia Friday night for an Intercollegiate Conference tilt with Temple. Saturday, the locals will be at State College for a game with Penn State.

The following players will make the trip: Forwards, Smith, Jagnow, Carlson and Petransky; centers, Stentz, Ewalt and Edelblut; guards, Fergus, Rigg, Silverman, Seigal and Freedel.

Easy For Dukes

Chick Davies' twin dynamos, Marty Reiter and Dudey Moore, the diminutive guard pair, combined last night to lead the Dukes to their twelfth consecutive basketball victory. The victims were Wash-Jeff's impotent Presidents and the score was 46 to 20.

The Dukes, after a makeshift lineup had been held in check for the first nine minutes, tallied 23 points to 10 in the first half and duplicated the feat in the second, using various and sundry combinations of players. Reiter and Moore each accounted for 13 points, both clipping off half a dozen field goals and one foul.

The victory, the twelfth in a row for the Dukes, as has been mentioned before, and at the same time marked the twelfth in succession that the Prexies have lost.

Leiber, Wash-Jeffs ace forward, was an ace all right last night—and scored up to his name. He dropped in one lone foul. The Red and Black's heavy scoring was done by Red Rittersbaugh, who accounted for six points. The lineup:

The zippy, sunshiny weather today caused Coach Elmer Layden to call out the Duquesne University football squad for its first "spring" football practice. Incidentally, Layden has accepted an invitation to attend the football clinic to be held at Purdue University on March 24-25 by Coach Noble Kizer, like himself a former Notre Dame star.

Wrestling, which was discontinued as a varsity sport at Pitt back in 1917, is to be resumed as an official part of the university's athletic program March 10, when a team of Pitt grapplers will meet Waynesburg's squad at Waynesburg.

The first annual Pitt varsity and freshmen track and field championships will be staged Saturday afternoon in the track house, with 13 events on the program for varsity performers and a dozen for freshmen.

CARBERRY, LEAHY SIGN

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Glenn (Judge) Carberry and Frank Leahy, teammates of Jimmy Crowley at Notre Dame, have been signed to assist him in coaching the Fordham University eleven next fall.

BANKERS TO CLASH

The annual basketball game between teams representing Mellon National and Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company will be staged Friday night on the Salvation Army floor, Second avenue.

Its propagation is through the corms, which are planted in the soil and allowed to remain there for a number of years.

BOXING BILLS UP TODAY

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 21.—Two bills dealing with the jurisdiction of the Boxing Commission, both introduced by Allegheny County members, were before the House today.

One by Representative Max Spann, Fifth District, eliminates the control of the commission of amateur boxing shows.

The second, by Representative Edward M. Hough, provides that the commission shall not be authorized to revoke licenses except after a hearing. A licensee is empowered to appeal to Common Pleas Court from any revocation, and should the commission be over-ruled it must immediately re-issue the license.

COMMISSION ABOLISHED

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Al G. Feeney, of Indianapolis, director of the new State Department of Public Safety, has become Indiana's one-man boxing commission.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt announced abolition of the three-man commission, which has served since July 1, 1931, and the transfer of all duties and powers of that body to Feeney.

Feeney, a former Notre Dame football star who played on the same team with Knute Rockne and Gus Dorais, the latter now coach at Detroit University, was named head of the Department of Safety last week.

TUNERO AHEAD

PARIS, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Young Tunero, Cuban middleweight champion, who recently outpointed Marcel Thil, generally recognized as the world champion, in a non-title fight last night won a 10-round decision over Franta Nekolny of Czechoslovakia.

Baseball Career Ruined, Corbett Turns Boxer

(This is the second of three articles on the ring career of the late Jim Corbett, written by his longtime friend, Hype Igoe, the famous New York boxing critic. The series will be concluded tomorrow.)

By HYPE IGOE.

International News Service.

But for a badly split hand, baseball and not the ring would have claimed Jim Corbett as a hero.

As a boy in his teens, Corbett played second base for the Alcazars, an amateur team that swept every other nine before it.

Scooping up a hard drive which came roaring through his position one day brought about the accident which ended his baseball career and delivered him to boxing. He stopped the liner, but the feat split his hand wide open between the little and third finger. It was the end of his baseball days.

Shortly before this accident, Corbett had accepted the invitation made by a prominent official of the Olympic Athletic Club in San Francisco to join the club and play second base for its ball team. The accident left him within the walls of the finest athletic organization west of the Mississippi, but in a peculiar position, since playing ball was utterly out of the question. He turned to fisticuffs.

USE STALLS FOR RINGS

He had boxed with his brothers, the latter using the stalls in his father's livery stable for rings. That stable, by the way, famous in its day as the scene of youthful glove encounters among the neighbors' children, was directly across the street from a tiny stationery store owned by the father of Tad Dorgan, later a famous cartoonist. Real neighbors, the Corbetts and the Dorgans.

Swiftly Corbett went to the top as middleweight and heavyweight champion of the Olympic Club.

When Corbett joined the club, Dave Eisman was the heavyweight champion. Shortly after the club sent to England for Walter Watson, a capable teacher of the English style of fisticuffs. On his arrival, he was asked to show his wares and Eisman boxed him. The club champion, taking advantage of the Englishman's lack of condition and sea and train legs, gave him quite a shellacking.

WINS CLUB TITLE

Watson, incensed at the unfairness of the matter, vowed he'd develop a pupil who would thrash Eisman for the club heavyweight title. He selected Corbett after watching Jim's progress. The first day they boxed Watson told Corbett to give him the best he had, saying:

With the whispered words of Instructor Watson buzzing in his ears, and the Olympic Club packed to capacity, Corbett fought the first great battle of his career. He knocked Eisman into the lap of a ringside spectator, as dead as a shad. It was considered a re-

GIANTS, CUBS SPEED WEST

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(INS.)—The advance guards of the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants were westward bound on the same train today, heading for the spring training camps in California.

Twelve pitchers and catchers answered the Cubs roll call before the train departed last night, but others will join the party at Kansas City and Los Angeles. Nine cars made up the special train.

HONUS WAGNER IS LIONIZED BY FANS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

EN ROUTE WITH THE PITTSBURGH PIRATES, Feb. 21.—The untamed state of Arizona was host to the Pirate argosy today, the third day of the voyage to Paso Robles training camp. Leaving El Paso and Texas about nine bells this morning, the vanguard of Buccaneers entered Arizona and rolled along in the very high altitude toward Phoenix. As one wit remarked, the high altitude ride should be good practice for a club picked to stay "up there" all year.

The Pirates were at El Paso on the Rio Grande and within a few steps of old Mexico when they arose this morning, but they had not sufficient time to go over the bridge to take a peek at a Juarez saloon or an unemployed Mexican general.

REACH PHOENIX TONIGHT

Phoenix was due to be reached shortly after the evening repast. At that point the Pittsburgh voyagers will greet Catcher Earl Grace, who is the last scheduled pickup before the squad docks at the Paso Robles port late tomorrow afternoon. The knowledge they were so close to the scene of action had a fine effect on the athletes. The special is due to pull into Los Angeles at 7:45 tomorrow morning.

Weighing 180 pounds, and better physically than at any time in his career, Lefthander Charley Wood joined the entourage yesterday afternoon at a Kansas stop. Wood says the operation for removal of his appendix has worked wonders.

Honus Wagner remains a prize rookie yet by a happy paradox, the biggest attraction in the squad. While it is Wagner's first jaunt to California, his fame has preceded him. Children and grownups rush him at every stop of the flyer.

In one railroad yards, a worker looking through a Pullman window, caught a profile or rear view of the "Flying Dutchman." He pounded on the pane to attract Honus's attention, and Wagner took a bow as the pleased to be congratulated the veteran on his return.

KIDS STORM WAGNER

Grade school boys bearing autograph books and kodaks stormed Honus. The colorful star shaking the hand of each, inquires about their school athletes and leaves them thrilled to the core.

The further the entourage goes the more it becomes a Wagner good-will tour. And it is harder to discern whether the kid with his books or the diamond luminary with the gray locks enjoys the greater kick. It looks like a draw.

When the batterymen land at Paso Robles they will not meet up with Catcher Bill Brenzel, who yesterday was ordered to the Kansas City Blues as the last payment on Pitcher Hal Smith, who is among those present. The Bucco receiving roster is down to three boys, Grace, Finney and Padden, but apparently Manager Gibson has no worries on this score.

The Pirates appear to have the most impressive lefthander pitchers any Bucco club has possessed in 15 years. Ralph Birkofer, with his 200 pounds of muscle, a blazing fast ball and a good curve, is a serious threat, and when Spades Wood hopped aboard the flyer he looked like a new boy.

WOOD BOOSTS RIVAL

Wood and Birkofer were teammates at Tulsa last year and the two youngsters are fighting for what may be a single berth. It did not take Wood long to pay a big tribute to his rival, however. In his best Dixie dialect, Spades remarked:

"When I say Barky is fast, I mean he is as 'quick' as any lefthander in the league. He has a mean 'swifter,' a mighty fine hook and he deals them right off his pocket. If he stays up you can 'tell your customers that none of the boys will be takin' any toeholds."

Birkofer and Wood, besides being standouts on the mound for the Tulsa Western League champions, were the club's pinchhitters. Spades hits .300 or better.

One has only to glance at Waite Hoyt to hazard a guess that he is out to make a big fight for a berth on the Pirate staff. He is one of the best built men on the squad.

Catcher Tommy Padden is making his first trip to California. Padden is sticking around Honus Wagner like a leech. He is getting many a pointer for his pains, and when you see him doubled with laughter you know Wagner is telling stories.

Bojarski Wins Over Marty McHale

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, Pa., gained a decision over Marty McHale, of McKeesport, Pa., in a 10-round boxing match last night. Both weighed 142 pounds.

SCHOOL PASSERS TO WIND UP CAMPAIGN THIS WEEK

TORRID ACTION ON CARD FOR TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

The races for the basketball championships of the City League and the W. P. I. A. L. will come to a close this week when the regular season is concluded by the passers representing the various schools in Western Pennsylvania.

Unless a flock of ties develop in the various standings through the medium of upsets, the situation in the City League and the W. P. I. A. L. should be clarified in time to usher in the eliminations on scheduled time.

PERRY NEARS TITLE

Perry High School, defeated only once in Section II, looms as the champion of that division. Perry is not scheduled for league aciton this afternoon, but will have an opportunity to win the crown on Friday by disposing of Oliver in its final league game of the season. South Hills, resting in second place, still has a chance of deadlocking Perry for the lead, but to accomplish this the Tunnelites must defeat Oliver this afternoon and Carrick on Friday while Perry is losing to Oliver.

Carrick plays at Allegheny and Langley visits Allegheny Vocational in other Section II frays.

With the Section I race decided with South being assured of a place in the playoffs, little interest centers on the outcome of this afternoon's games in that particular group. South invades Allderdice, Westinghouse goes to Schenley, and Peabody appears at Connelley Trade.

PLAYOFFS ARRANGED

In event Perry wins the Section II crown this week, the City League playoffs will get under way on February 28. The second game will be played on March 3, and the third, if necessary, on March 7. The original schedule calls for the first game on the floor of the Section I winner, and the second on the floor of the Section II winner, with the third game, if needed, on a neutral floor, preferably the Pitt Stadium court. The two champions, however, have the right to select a neutral floor for all games.

Torrid action is anticipated in various sections of the W. P. I. A. L. tonight as contenders for the titles near the final week of their schedules.

There is a possibility of the Section III race ending tonight in the battle between New Castle, present leader, and Butler, in second place. Beaver Falls handed Butler its second defeat of the season last week to give New Castle undisputed possession of first place. New Castle, however, must beat Butler tonight to sew up the crown.

AMBRIDGE IN TEST

The same situation prevails in Section IV, where Ambridge must dispose of Aliquippa to win the crown. Ambridge defeated Aliquippa in their first meeting and must repeat the feat tonight to end the race.

The Homestead-Duquesne duel will settle the race in Section VII. The teams are deadlocked with six victories and one defeat. Homestead defeated Duquesne, but lost to Clairton.

The championship of Section XI will be decided in the Norwin-Sewickley Township battle, while McDonald and Burgettstown clash in the Section XIV headliner. The Waynesburg - Washington setto also will have bearing on the Section XV championship.

Honus Tells the Boys a Few Stories En Route

CORBETT STAR ON DIAMOND

DEFEATS JAKE KILRAIN

When it was inevitable that Corbett would turn professional, the Olympic Club asked him to become boxing instructor of the institution. He did so with great success. The club was ready to back him against any man in the world, although Corbett's mind was centered on gaining more weight. He had the height and reach of a heavyweight, but he concluded that he would be formidable only after having reached the 170-pound mark. He took a flier by going to New Orleans and outboxing Jake Kilrain.

Peter Jackson had arrived in San Francisco from Australia and the air seemed to buzz with talk of a Corbett-Jackson glove duel. All this time Corbett had been working in the Nevada Bank of that city. He had climbed from messenger boy to assistant paying teller. John W. Mackay, founder of the Postal Telegraph Company, was one of the owners of the bank.

Proficient fith figures, Corbett attended to whatever bookkeeping his father's livery business required. He knew only too well that a $6,000 mortgage on the stable was a yoke which saddened both his father and mother. Back of his desire to be in big boxing was the thought that he would wipe out that mortgage with his fists.

CHALLENGES JACKSON

The day came when he challenged Jackson—that day he got on the scales and weighed 170. He walked into a meeting of the directors of the California Athletic Club and said he was ready to fight Jackson. He demanded a purse of $10,000, a prize unheard-of up to that time. They told Corbett he was "daffy." Corbett told them:

"You can easily make up that purse, you can organize a new membership drive. Charge new members, and there'll be a lot of them, $50 or more to join. Tax present members. You can do it."

Corbett suddenly was the genius of promotion. It took the directors until 3 o'clock in the morning to decide to close the match.

Canadians Vacate Four Ring Titles

QUEBEC, Quebec, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The Canadian boxing and Wrestling Federation has declared vacant four of the eight major Canadian boxing championships—heavyweight, welterweight, featherweight and flyweight.

In the other divisions, the federation recognizes as Dominion champions, Charles Belanger, Winnipeg, light heavyweight; Frank Battaglia, Winnipeg, middleweight; Tommy Bland, Toronto, lightweight, and Bobby Leitham, Montreal, bantamweight.

Another Hawkeye Ruled Ineligible

IOWA CITY, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Notice of ineligibility for further athletic competition has been filed against Lester Glick, of Iowa City, catcher on the University of Iowa baseball team, athletic officials said today.

He was reported to have played in two basketball games with semi-professional teams. Ivan Blackmer and Edward Break, Hawkeye cage stars, were declared ineligible for similar activities.

SMITH, RUNYAN SCORE UPSET

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Horton Smith, of Oak Park, Ill., and Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., sank two birdie fours to divide thirty-seventh hole honors in quarter-finals of the international four ball golf matches here yesterday and eliminated the favored Denny Shute, of Cleveland, and John Golden, of Norton, Conn., 1 up.

The Shute-Golden upset was the only one of the day, other of the favored teams shooting for first money in the $2,500 purse advancing to the semi-finals.

The other victors yesterday were: Walter Hagen, of Detroit, and Joe Kirkwood, of Philadelphia, who, like Smith and Runyan, had to go to the thirty-seventh hole to win their match from Tony Manero, of Greenwich, Conn., and Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y.

Tommy Armour, of Detroit, co-winner of the 1932 tournament, and Olin Dutra, California's golfing flash, who defeated Al Watrous, of Detroit, and Charles Guest, of Deal, N. J., 2 and 1 in the quarter final play.

Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, and Al Espinosa, of Akron, O., who won 2 and 1 from Henry Ciuci, of Fresh Meadow, N. Y., and John Revolta, of Menominee, Mich.

Armour and Dutra, top-seeded pair in pre-tournament guessing, and Mehlhorn and Espinosa play it out in the semi-finals with a scheduled 36-hole match today. Hagen and Kirkwood will put their years of experience against that of the younger Smith and Runyan combination.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

By GIB MARSH

That the springer spaniel is a permanent fixture as a gun dog in the United States there is no doubt. It has been a favorite hunting dog in England for more than a century because of its all-round ability, especially as a retriever. Only in the last 15 years has its popularity increased in the United States, and there is no doubt it will continue to be recognized as a gun dog of merit among the American sportsmen, especially by those residing in the western states.

While it will not display the same classy work as a pointer or setter in handling game birds, such as pointing birds, it will locate birds and retrieve them to the satisfaction of the sportsman who is out for a day's hunt, seeking all small game, rabbits included. The springer will not overlook the scent of a rabbit track. True, it will not work on a rabbit with the same skill displayed by a beagle, but it will finally rout the rabbit out of a brush pile and trail it. As a companion, the springer is in a class by itself. The springer possesses a hardy contitution and can withstand hard work in the woods, brush, fields and swamps daily.

Recently the writer met a friend from North Dakota, a former trap-shooter and waterfowl shooter, and he said the springer has supplanted the setter in that region and has taken the place of the former Irish water spaniel as a waterfowl retriever.

The Irish water spaniel and the cocker spaniel preceded the springer as a gun dog in the United States. There was a time in the eastern section of this state and along Long Island when Irish water spaniels and cockers were numerous, used as retrievers of waterfowl.

However, modern methods of shooting waterfowl, such as the use of sink boxes, permanent shore blinds where the retrieving is done by some employe of the gun club in a motor boat, the Irish water spaniel and the cocker no longer are necessary.

The writer as a boy owned a pair of red cocker spaniels which were used from September 1 until the spring shooting on ducks and snipe ended. The dogs were used to retrieve blackbirds, reedbirds, railbirds, quail, snipe, plover, ducks and rabbits.

Birkie, Pirrone Win in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Hans Birkie, German heavyweight, rallied to win a decision from Eddie Simms, of Cleveland, in the 10-round main event of a boxing program last night.

JADICK LOSES JUNIOR TITLE

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Battling Shaw, hard-punching fighter, formerly of Laredo, Tex., but now of New Orleans, last night won a 10-round decision over Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, the junior-welterweight champion. The fight was close throughout. Shaw weighed 136 and Jadick 135 pounds.

Jadick's title was declared at stake and by the vote of two judges, John Morrill and Teddy Bernhardt, Shaw was crowned the new champion. Referee Jimmy Moran called the fight a draw. Jadick had won his title by his defeat of Tony Canzoneri.

Both fighters were within the limit of 142 pounds under which Canzoneri formerly fought.

OFFICIALS BAR TEST RUN

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British sportsman fretted by long delays awaiting ideal conditions when he may make an attempt to better his own world land speed record of 253 miles an hour, today was faced with the prospect of still further idleness whether he likes it or not.

Racing officials flatly denied the Englishman the right to take his car onto the beach today for a test run, and they don't propose to allow him to go out in the Bluebird until the beach is smooth enough for absolute safety. Should Sir Malcolm try to run against the wishes of the officials, his license would be revoked, they said.

Dundee to Meet Jeby for Title

ALABAMA KID, DISQUALIFIED, GETS 'BREAK'

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor.

The good work of a conscientious referee went for naught at Motor Square Garden last night when Referee Al Grayber disqualified the Alabama Kid, Dover (O.) Negro, for refusing to fight against Frankie O'Brien, Hartford (Conn.) middleweight, and the decision was distorted into a "technical knockout" victory for O'Brien and so announced and officially recognized by the Boxing Commission, which stated it would be entered in this manner in the records.

The end came in the eighth round, after the Alabama had been repeatedly warned by Referee Grayber, to the accompaniment of stamping of feet by the spectators for action, and the boxing commissioner had added his warning at the end of the sixth round.

CROWD HAILS ACTION

The crowd felt the same way about the dreary affair and hailed Grayber's action with delight, only to be stunned by the announcement of a technical knockout. Grayber was summoned into the commissioner's presence at the ringside and asked if he had authorized such a decision, and he said he had not, that, instead, he felt the Kid was outclassed and he had stopped the bout and disqualified him for covering up and refusing to fight. In spite of this statement, the technical knockout announcement was permitted to stand. The Alabama Kid's purse was temporarily held up, then released.

It was a bout between two southpaws, both hard hitters. O'Brien early displayed marked superiority, and Alabama, unable to score effectively, and the recipient of hard blows from both fists of his opponent, went into a shell round after round, opening up with a flash now and then. Finally the fans got to stamping their feet for action, and Grayber went to the Alabama's corner at the end of the fifth round and told him to fight or the bout would be stopped.

ORDERED TO FIGHT

The Kid did little better in the next round, and, at the end of it, Boxing Commissioner Havey Boyle called over to the referee and told him to give the offender one more round, and, if he didn't try harder, to throw him out. This warning was conveyed to the Ohioan, and he made an effort to comply with it, actually doing some leading and going back to covering both his body and head only in the closing seconds of the round.

In the eighth the Alabaman was almost completely on the defensive again, and Grayber finally stepped in and cautioned him as he pushed him back from a clinch. When this warning was ignored, the referee waited until the boxers maneuvered over near the Kid's corner and then pushed him toward it, and the thing was over, with the alleged "technical knockout" following as an anti-climax.

COVERS TO AVOID KAYO

The Alabama Kid had been quite a sensation here up to this fight, winning a string of battles after knocking out Jimmy Belmont in Dover. Last night's bout was his first main event here, and it likely will be his last. He didn't measure up when the going was tough. Not that he was up against an ordinary opponent, for O'Brien is one of the real knockout hitters of his division, a muscular, methodical workman, who probably would have won with a clean knockout if the Kid had opened up and fought him.

The Alabama came out of the fight with a badly puffed left eye and a body beating, while O'Brien bled from the nose in the third round, the only one won by his opponent, who opened that session with a rush to give him an edge. O'Brien, who is partly under the management of James (Red) Mason, who was unable to be in his corner, due to the death of a sister, weighed 159½ pounds, and the Alabama Kid, 158¾.

MARCUS STOPS STRUB

Joe Marcus, of Braddock, won by a technical knockout over tall, rangy Maxie Strub, Erie lightweight, at the end of the second round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final when Referee Jack Henderson called a halt because of a bad cut on Strub's right eye, caused by a hefty left hook early in the round. The first round was tame, with little to choose between the men, and Marcus opened the second with a barrage of blows, during which the damage was done. Strub pleaded with the referee to be permitted to continue.

Eddie Hebner, Clairton lightweight, won the referee's decision over Ray Collins in the second bout, and Tony Leone, of Dover, O., and Clair Repole, Steubenville featherweight, fought to a draw in the opener.

'TAPS' ARE SOUNDED

"Taps" were sounded by buglers for the late Ernie Schaaf and Jim Corbett in an impressive tribute just before the main bout. Ted Yarosz and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe meet a fourth time in the Garden's windup next Monday night.

In other games, Slippery Rock continues its short road trip by meeting the tough Clarion Teachers' College quintet at Clarion, and Salem, of West Virginia, meets New River at Montgomery.

GENEVA ADVANCES

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 21.—If Waynesburg College's Yellow Jackets can defeat Geneva's Covenanters when the teams clash at Beaver Falls next week, and meanwhile, win their other two remaining contests, they can throw the Tri-State Conference basketball race into a deadlock.

But the Covenanters have the whip hand today. Last night they turned the tables on Grove City, the team to which they bowed last week, winning, 41 to 35, and hanging up their seventh victory of the campaign.

Geneva rushed away to a commanding lead, being ahead by 21 to 10 at the half. The Grovers rallied late in the second period, but were unable to come any closer than six points. Ginsberg led the Geneva attack with 14 points. The lineup:

THIEL WINS

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 21.—Thiel College had to battle all the way to defeat Slippery Rock here last night, 33 to 29. The Lutherans led from the start, but never were able to establish a safe advantage.

Tatala, Slippery Rock substitute, was the scoring star of the contest with 11 points. The lineup:

Miss Mason's Body Viewed by Friends

The body of Miss Alice Mason, sister of James M. Mason, the boxing manager, arrived in Pittsburgh this morning from Chicago, where she died Sunday following a lingering illness. The funeral services will be held in Sacred Heart Church tomorrow morning, with interment in Calvary Cemetery.

Upon arrival, the body was taken to the Voltz funeral parlors, in the East End, where it was being viewed by friends today.

Between Rounds

Morrie Sherman, of Detroit, who meets Billy Holt in one of the three 10-round bouts at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night, has boxed My Sullivan, Pee Wee Jarell, Jimmy Hill, Phil Rafferty, Jimmy Abbott, Franta Nekolny, King Tut, Frankie Petrolle, Paul Schiffler, and Paulie Walker in his last 10 bouts. Walker boxes Tiger Joe Randall in the main bout of the Arena show, with Frank Novak and Jack Pallat in the other 10-rounder. Joe Rugubboni, of Detroit, and Anson Green, of Homestead, will box the six-round opener.

The local boxing fans have one less club to worry about, with the withdrawal of the Moose Temple arena from the scene. Promoter Bill Dummer has cancelled the show scheduled for tomorrow night and says he will make a new connection soon.

Charley Baxter, local lightweight, boxes Billy Joyce, of New Castle, managed by Jimmy Dime, at Youngstown next Monday night. A movement, incidentally, is under way to match Baxter with Marty Gornick for a bout here.

A series of amateur bouts will be a feature at the Washington's Birthday celebration at the Shannopin Country Club tonight. A dance will follow the bouts with a buffet supper being served at midnight. The bouts: John Burke vs. Matt Oenak, Frank Wingo vs. Johnny Saville, John Turpack vs. William Miller, George Kriz vs. Leo Sweeney, Frank Richards vs. Ray Cooper, Jimmy Campbell vs. Richard Andrews and Eric Bredi vs. Steve Levandowski.

Amateur bouts also are on the bill in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tonight, under the auspices of the Pastorius A. C.

Vince Forgione boxes Billy Angelo, Nick Venore meets Johnny Dixon and Al Rowe engages Mike Marshall in bouts in Philadelphia Friday night.

Benny Bass boxes Phil Zwick in Philadelphia Wednesday night under the promotion of Matt Adgie, retired lightheavyweight boxer. Jackie Willis boxes Tootsie Bashara in the semi-final and Eddie Reed meets Harry Serody in another bout.

DREW JOHNSON GOLF VICTOR; SCOTT BOWS

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 21.—C. M. Scott, of Pittsburgh, failed to survive the first round of the Everglades Club invitation golf tournament here yesterday. He succumbed to William B. Langford, of Chicago, 1 up

It was a hard-fought contest in which the lead alternated continually. Langford squared the match on the sixteenth and established his winning margin with a long putt on the seventeenth hole

In the only extra-hole match of the day, Drew Johnston, Jr., of Bellevue, Pa., defeated Arthur Brown, of New York, on the twentieth hole.

A record-breaking round which included eight birdies enabled Albert R. Hakes, of Dunkirk, N. Y., to win his first-round match. The Empire State star negotiated the par-70 layout in 33-32—65, establishing a new mark for the course while eliminating Elmer Rich, of Chicago, 6 and 5.

Tommy Goodwin, 19-year-old New York state titleholder, also scored an easy triumph, trouncing Hugh L. Willoughby, Jr., of Philadelphia, 8 and 7.

FIELDS, RIVAL AWAIT BOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Their training behind them and keyed up like a pair of race horses, Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, and Young Corbett, Fresno challenger, are eager for their 10-round title fight here tomorrow afternoon.

Boxing fandom continued its speculation over the outcome of the first important battle here in nearly 20 years. Thrust into the unusual role of strong favorite over a champion, Corbett continued the popular figure in the eyes of those who back up their judgments with money. Odds of 10 to 7 with the Fresno southpaw on the long end prevailed, although a shortening up was looked for in some quarters.

STOCKS FIRM AS SELLING SUBSIDES

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—The securities markets stiffened today, as selling pressure again subsided.

Stocks turned dull and price trends were mixed, although a number of issues rose fractions to 2 points, reflecting in part pre-holiday short covering. Pressure was also lifted in the bond market, particularly the United States government division, after some early selling.

Directors of Texas Corporation ordered the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents, but New England Telephone, one of the principal subsidiaries of American Telephone, reduced its payment to $1.50 from $2. Individual railroads thus far reporting their freight movement for last week have shown some further gains. Union Pacific, however, reported January net operating revenues of only $171,701, against $596,949 in the like month of last year.

Reports of progress in working out a plan for resumption of banking activity in Michigan, indicating that banks may be opened for limited withdrawals after tomorrow's holiday, were regarded as highly encouraging in Wall street. Tabling by the House Coinage Committee of all silver legislation was also stressed in some important quarters as tending to allay uneasiness over possible inflation, and thus bolstering confidence.

Tobacco shares were helped by reports of increased cigaret sales by the "big four" companies, as result of their latest price reduction. American Telephone slid back moderately, after announcement of New England Telephone's dividend reduction, but selling was light. Rails were presumably helped by Baltimore and Ohio's announcement that the plan for meeting its big maturity on March 1 had been made effective. The next important maturity is that of Missouri Pacific, on May 1, and early steps toward promulgation of a plan are expected.

Brokerage sentiment was mixed, but it was pointed out in several quarters that the short interest seemed to be getting large in a number of individual issues. Some quarters expressed the view that the amount of selling prompted by recent adverse news has been encouragingly small. Heavy snow in recent weeks has tended to obscure business trends, helping such lines as fuels, but retarding retail sales in certain lines, particularly of automobiles.

GOLD INFLOW IRKS LONDON

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The influx of gold to the Bank of England which now amounts to about £20,000,000, or slightly more than the total December debt payment to the United States, is viewed in an unfavorable light by Lombard street although it is regarded as inevitable in present circumstances.

If the acquisition of gold had been due to normal trade transactions it would be welcomed but as it really represents a movement from foreign currencies to sterling, it is considered as "bad money," which is liable to withdrawal at any time should the tendency turn against sterling for any reason.

The exchange equalization fund has acquired so many dollars recently that it has been obliged to convert part of its holdings into gold which has been sold to the Bank of England in order to release more sterling for operation of the fund.

Atchison Railway Loadings Increase

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Revenue freight cars loaded on line and received from connections by the Atchison Railway System during the week ended February 18 totaled 20,587, compared with 19,660 cars in the week preceding and 24,503 in the like 1932 week.

It was decided at the time to pay the dividend semi-annually thereafter. At a meeting last fall no action was taken on the common dividend.

SAVANT URGES FARM RELIEF BY U. S.

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The case for governmental regulation in the form of farm relief has been effectively stated by John D. Black, Harvard agricultural economist.

Without federal intervention, the savant foresees a black outlook for the American agrarian. This subject is of immense interest in the great cities, whose factories have been adversely affected by the disappearance of the buying power of farmers. Mr. Black points out in the Review of Economic Statistics:

Mr. Rukeyser

"We may conclude, therefore, that unless effective measures for relief are devised, even assuming as favorable an economic outlook as reasonably possible, agriculture must look forward to a period of not three, but at least five years to get back to such stability as prevailed in 1928 and 1929.

If rugged individualism is pursued to the bitter end, Prof. Black predicts:

"First and foremost, during the forepart of this period farmers will be little more able to pay their taxes and interest on their mortgages than they have been in 1932. They will be little more able to buy farm machinery, lumber, clothing, house furnishings and fancy groceries during the forepart of this period than in 1932. In fact, their deficits of one year will pile on top of those of the last, and buying for many of them will become increasingly restricted for a year or two. Many who have sizable mortgages will one after another find themselves at the end of the road, and have to give up their farms, until the major portion of such mortgages in the Mid-West, South and mountain states will probably have been foreclosed, and a considerable fraction of those in the New England, North Atlantic and Pacific Coast divisions."

Blaw-Knox Company Cuts Operating Expenses

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

ECONOMIES PUT INTO effect by the Blaw-Knox Company will make it possible for the organization to break even on its operations in the present year—even if its business volume is no greater than it was in 1932, according to estimates of officials. In the past year operations were at about 20 per cent of capacity.

If an increase in business volume takes place, this should be reflected in earnings to a substantial extent.

Net loss for 1932 was $671,965 after providing for depreciation. This compared with net profit of $750,519, or 57 cents a share in 1931 and with net profit of $2,689,208, or $2.03 a share in 1930.

Current Financial Position Is Strong

A STRONG CURRENT financial position was shown at the end of the year. Current assets of $4,356,972 were 18.7 times current liabilities. Cash of $708,018 alone was more than three times current liabilities of $231,991.

The company, with physical properties carried at $12,506,850 after depreciation and total assets of $20,234,093, has no funded debt or preferred stock. The entire capital liability consists of 1,322,395 shares of no-par stock.

Deductions Made From Surplus

IN HIS REMARKS to stockholders accompanying the annual report, Albert C. Lehman, president, said:

"Last year we created a reserve account of $500,000 to provide for possible bad accounts, depreciation of securities, fluctuations of foreign exchanges and other contingencies. We have charged against this reserve $54,886, leaving a balance at the end of the year of $445,113 which we feel is adequate. Five hundred thousand dollars has also been written off on items of patterns, patents and goodwill, in accordance with the policy heretofore adopted in 1930."

Products Cover Wide Range Of Industries

THE LIST OF the company's products shows a wide range of industries served. Among the types of equipment made by Blaw-Knox are appliances for high temperature furnaces, welded steel equipment, specialized structural steel work, dust collectors, steel forms for concrete construction work, steel transmission towers, steel grating, truck mixing bodies for transporting concrete, road building machinery, rolling mill rolls and alloy steel castings.

The diversity of products kept the organization's profits at a comparatively high level until the latter part of 1931, when general business conditions put a stop to practically all engineering and construction work.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Faint rallying signs appeared in various sections of the bond market today, but the list, for the most part, was hesitant. Continued heaviness of United States government securities and foreign obligations acted as a depressing influence on most corporate groups that might have joined in stemming the outward tide.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

This Maker Enjoys Big Auto Sales

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

GOOD NEWS: A wire from A. Vanderzee, Dodge sales manager, gives these inspiring facts:

"Dodge dealers yesterday placed orders for 604 passenger cars and trucks; and today looks just as good. This makes one think of the glorious days of 1928-29.

"Dodge passenger car sales from January 1 to February 15 show a gain of 50 per cent over last year.

"We believe that aggressive advertising, plus aggressive sales promotion, enables a manufacturer to make progress today even in the face of so-called gloom."

This column welcomes FACTS which embody rays of sunshine. The writer believes men's minds are too prone these days to dwell on pessimism, not eager enough to give attention to optimistic developments.

IS IT WISE for the chief executives of corporations to invest the bulk of their savings in the shares of their own corporation?

Frankly, I have always thought better of an executive who threw in his financial lot with his corporation. My reasoning was that such a man had maximum incentive for doing his best. Also, that he had more in common with outside stockholders; hence would be keenly alive to their best interests.

But I have just received a different slant from a corporation president who invested practically all his money in its common stock. Here is his verdict:

"I am not at all sure now that it is a good thing for a responsible executive to put his own money into his company's stock. I did exactly that, starting many years ago. But when the wild boom came, I knew that our shares were selling ridiculously high. Yet I didn't feel that it would be the honorable thing for me to sell out—certainly not without telling friends who, I knew, had invested in our shares partly or largely because of my faith in the property. And I didn't feel it would be the right thing for me to pass out word that I was getting from under.

"So I held on. The result is that my savings of 40 years have been reduced pitifully."

He didn't say so, but I kind of gathered that he felt that his own financial worries had, inevitably, caused him much concern, and that he might possibly have been able to function better during these recent tragic years if he hadn't had to worry about his own personal affairs.

The other side of the picture is graphically presented by John J. Bernet, railway president:

"If a road is good enough for me to work for, it is good enough for me to put my money in."

Which is right?

NOTHING EUROPE can do will cause us to lose any alarming amount of gold. Only Washington can do that. Here's hoping it won't!

FAILURES TAKE SHARP DROP

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co., reported today that business failures in the United States for the past week totaled 563 against 629 a week ago, 660 two weeks ago and 751 in the same 1932 week.

The number was the smallest for any week this year. Improvement so far in February, said the agency, "is worthy of particular attention," the total of the past three weeks, 1,582, comparing with 2,119 for the last three weeks of January and 2,224 for the corresponding February period of 1932. The decline last week was "especially notable" in the East, West and on the Pacific Coast, although there was a slight increase in the South.

Andrew Carnegie's Life Story

mer of 1886 Miss Whitfield and Carnegie again became engaged. As Carnegie's mother was still living, and in an extremely feeble condition, it was agreed that there should be no marriage in her lifetime. Carnegie's mother died in November, 1886, and the wedding took place five months afterward.

The outcome of this, the most fortunate event in Carnegie's life, so far as his happiness was concerned, should be related in his own words. "There was only one ray of hope and comfort," he wrote, referring to the depression that followed the death of his mother and brother. "Toward that my thoughts always turned. For several years I had known Miss Louise Whitfield. Her mother permitted her to ride with me in Central Park. We were both fond of riding. Other young ladies were on my list. I had fine horses and often rode in the Park and around New York with one or the other of the circle. In the end the others all faded into ordinary beings. Miss Whitfield alone remained as the perfect one beyond any I had met. Finally I began to find and admit to myself that she stood the supreme test. She alone did so of all I had ever known. I could recommend young men to apply this test before offering themselves. If they can honestly believe the following lines, as I did, then all is well:

. . . Full many a lady
I have eyed with best regard, and many a time
Brought my too diligent ear: for several virtues
Have I lik'd several women; never any
With so full soul but some defect in her
Did quarrel with the noblest grace she ow'd
And put it to the foil: but you, O you!
So perfect and so peerless, are created
Of every creature's best.

"In my soul I could echo those very words. Today, after 20 years of life with her, if I could find stronger ones I could truthfully use them."

The Honeymoon

How characteristic of Carnegie that, in seeking adequate appraisal of his bride, he should turn to Shakespeare and find it in Ferdinand's tribute to Miranda! Characteristically also, the bridal couple, immediately after the wedding ceremony, boarded a steamer and sailed to England for visits with Carnegie's English and Scottish friends. Mrs. Carnegie was an American of the most authentic stock, a descendant of Colonial Connecticut; she had beauty, youth and intelligence, and Carnegie took great pride in making her known to all who were closest to him.

The first weeks of the honeymoon were spent in the Isle of Wight. The loveliness of that spot, and especially its flowers, so familiar to readers of Tennyson, its most expressive resident, at once put forth their spell. "She had read of Wandering Willie," writes Carnegie, "heartsease, the primrose, the wild thyme and the whole list of homely names that had been to her only names until now. Everything charmed her."

Uncle Lauder, impetuous for once, could not restrain himself until the couple reached Dunfermline, but rushed southward for an inspection of his nephew's choice. "I'm surprised that she ever married ye, Naig," was the way in which he phrased his approval.

Several days were spent in London, then celebrating the Queen's Jubilee, and here Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone were ready with their felicitations. A visit followed at Mentmore, Lord Rosebery's seat at Leighton Buzzard, Mrs. Carnegie and John Morley, also a guest, laying the basis for a lifelong friendship. A stop was made at Edinburgh for the foundation stone of the new Carnegie Library, and then there was a longer stay at Dunfermline, where Carnegie introduced his wife to all the scenes and friends of his childhood. In the latter part of June they reached Kilgraston, the castle of the Grants in the valley of the Earn. Here Mrs. Carnegie's welcome was truly Scottish — a piper met them at the threshold and piped the bride into her summer home!

Visitors came to Kilgraston in the succeeding weeks. James G. Blaine, who had spent a considerable time among the notables of London, now found his hours of ease with the Carnegies. Matthew Arnold stayed several days—his last visit to Carnegie, for he died a few months afterward.

At Cluny Castle

For the next 10 years, from 1888 to 1898, Cluny Castle in the Grampian Hills was the favorite summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie. These annual distractions from Pittsburgh and New York became more important as time went on.

The house was situated in one of the most darkly forested parts of the Highlands, at least a thousand feet above the sea. It was by no means one of the most pretentious establishments in Scotland, yet its location, from the standpoint both of natural beauty and Highland associations, would charm a heart drenched like Carnegie's in Scottish legend. A turreted structure of white granite, placed amid larches, fir and birch, stood upon a garden-like slope, in the rear heather-covered and snow-capped mountains, in front the river Spey, in view for several miles, winding in and out of the hills. To the southwest Benalder and Benvoirlich dominated the scene, and the country for miles around was a glistening stretch of lochs, mountain streams, angry white cascades, arcaded woods and bypaths. The deepest impression perhaps was that of seclusion and quiet, only the mountain burns and waterfalls breaking in upon the primeval silence. The Cluny estate comprised eleven thousand acres, and in this varied expanse Carnegie and his guests, whatever their tastes, could find amusement and interest. There were fishing and shooting for the sportsman, mountain walks and drives for the nature lover, literary and historic shrines for devotees of the past. The surrounding people, for the most part Gaelic-speaking, still intensely Jacobite in feeling, still singing the Gaelic songs and reciting the Gaelic ballads of their fathers, were themselves a source of unfailing entertainment.

Blaine a Guest

The arrival at Cluny, in June, 1888, was a fitting prelude to the joyous summers that were to follow. Once more the four-in-hand—a new one, the wedding gift of Carnegie's sister-in-law, Mrs. Tom — was pressed into service; filled with friends, it made a 700 mile trip from London to the Scottish home.

The passenger who added the greatest interest to this party was James G. Blaine. His European trip at the time served the double purpose of pleasure and escape — escape from a distinction which many men have pursued with heartbreaking persistence. Mr. Blaine knew, as did his intimates, that his presence in the United States that June would probably have led to his nomination for the highest office. He had therefore fled to Paris, written the most strongly worded refusal he could frame to Whitelaw Reid, and then sought to hide himself, far from the distractions of presidential conventions, in Carnegie's coach.

This summer at Cluny did not lack its romance, for here Walter Damrosch met for the first time Miss Margaret Blaine —a meeting which, in a year or two, resulted in their marriage.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

It took Manager Joe Blowitz of the Manor Theater to spring a novel contest for the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club last Saturday.

Knowing that the youngsters would enjoy a contest somewhat different to the ones usually held for them, Joe early Saturday morning appeared in one of the leading bakeries of Squirrel Hill and asked the baker if he could bake him a couple of dozen extra large doughnuts. This the baker did and delivered them to the Manor just before the meeting was called to order.

Manager Blowitz, before announcing the type of contest, called for volunteers from the boys present. Twelve boys responded and after they had lined up on the stage he presented each of them with one of the over-sized doughnuts. He explained that the boy who ate his doughnut first and whistled "Yankee Doodle," would be presented with a pair of tickets good any day this week. One little fellow held up the proceedings and had Manager Blowitz scratching his head and doing some fast thinking with his question. This little fellow wanted to know if it was necessary to eat the hole of the doughnut, too. Well, that had Manager Blowitz stopped for a second and brought a loud laugh from the other members. But Joe wasn't stumped, he just smiled and said, yes.

The boy was Frank Silvertone and he proceeded to eat his doughnut hole and all and won the pair of tickets.

There's a Great Day Coming

The Democrats are going to stage a home-coming in Washington that will make the oldest inhabitants rear up and take nourishment.

Three long administrations followed in tedious procession. Every one of them Republican to the core, the seeds and the peelings.

But every dog has his day. And every day has its soup bone. The Democrats march back in March to the fanfare of self congratulations and the trumpetings of personal exhilaration.

The nose bag is on the donkey again, the dew is on the hillside and all's okay, with the outlying districts. The boys are in the drivers' seat with a handful of whips.

They're striding up Pennsylvania avenue to the rumble of drums and the shrill music of the suppressed chuckle. Whether it rains, pours or snows, it's always fair weather when good fellows get together enough votes.

You would be happy too if your old home week was going to last four more years. They are coming back to the promised land flowing with milk and honey. A rather queer mixture, but very palatable and violating no condensation of amendments.

So, the boys will march 50 abreast up the avenue. They will thunder flatfootedly past a given point and then rumble back again. They're home folks now and not visitors.

There will be flags, music and the roar of happy cheers egging the triumphant warriors on. The boys intend to catch up on some very important and unavoidably postponed strutting.

For once the Republicans will be on the sidelines. There will be big policemen to keep 'em there in case one of 'em demands a recount.

It will be a glorious day for the Jeffersonians and the Jacksonites. It's a combined land rush, an office chase and a gold stampede. And while we hope there will be no atrocities, it will require a strong hand to keep 'em from wrecking the Republican strongholds and spearing the wounded.

Young's 'Helplessness' and Dawes' 'Sadness' Over the Insull Bubble

IT SEEMS to be a fact that our people see clearly only in retrospect.

When some great fraud is being carried through its successive phases under their very eyes, they are apt to be scornful of warnings, forgetful of past fleecings, eager to subscribe, and thus enroll themselves as victims.

This happens over and over again. The shrewd calculations of the swindling promoters are vindicated by the never failing gullibility of the people.

When the inevitable collapse comes and the fraudulent character of the enterprise is so plainly shown that to deny it is futile, it is too late for salvage.

We organize protective committees which find nothing to protect. Investigations ensue and facts no longer doubted or disputed are laboriously established,—facts which we should have known without being told, and which were from the outset plain to the initiated.

TAKE THE testimony elicited by the senate committee on banking and currency with relation to the collapse of the Insull utilities.

"I think Samuel Insull", said Owen D. Young, who was a witness before the committee, "was very largely the victim of the complicated structure that he had created. He was unable to comprehend all the ramifications of that complicated structure. I think it is impossible for anyone to get an accurate picture of the Insull setup".

In fact he regarded it equally impossible for anyone to work out an accounting system for the Insull group which would not be MISLEADING EVEN TO THE DIRECTORS THEMSELVES.

And he added that since the complexities of his creation were incomprehensible to Mr. Insull himself, "how COULD THE PUBLIC WHICH PURCHASED THE SECURITIES" be expected to comprehend it?

THE PUBLIC never did comprehend it, nor the receivers, or the courts whom the fleeing Insulls left to unravel the tangle.

Even to the trained eye of Owen D. Young, author of the famous "Young Plan" the maze of inter-corporate ownerships and relations was beyond understanding.

"I remember the feeling of helplessness", testified Mr. Young, "that came over me when I began in February 1931 to examine the structure".

And yet, although groping in this impenetrable confusion Mr. Young RECOMMENDED the company of which he is chairman to lend the Insull Utility Investment Incorporated, the Corporation Securities Company, also one of the companies in the Insull maze, and the Middle West Utilities Company, an aggregate of $2,000,000 as late as December 30th, 1931, and ACCEPTED AS COLLATERAL various stocks and securities of this befuddled and incomprehensible "corporate structure".

Long before this the Hearst papers had denounced this "complicated structure", so called by Mr. Young, as a "vicious maze" and a "Cretan labyrinth".

THE QUESTION was propounded in their columns—"what possible explanation that squares with reason or good intent can be offered for such a masterpiece of designed confusion"?

Is it now to be found in the testimony of Charles G. Dawes, author of the famous "Dawes Plan", that the Central Republic Bank and Trust Company, of which he at various times has been president and chairman, made forty-one loans to various of the Insull companies in the total sum of nearly $12,000,000,—more than fifty per cent of the bank's capital and surplus, although the law limited specific loans to fifteen per cent.

A convenient way indeed to evade the banking law!

A single company could borrow and a bank could lend but fifteen per cent at most, of the bank's capital and surplus. But here was the Insull Utility enterprise, a single entity, with more than a hundred constituent companies in successive layers of inter-relationship as subsidiaries, sub-subsidiaries, even down to sub-sub-sub-subsidiaries. Each might independently negotiate bank loans, regardless of the fact that they were in truth loans to a single interest, and of a total in amount exceeding the percentage of the bank's resources allowed by law.

IT WAS painful for Mr. Dawes to admit that the PRINCIPLE, if not the letter, of the banking law had been violated by the Central Republic Bank and Trust Company. An observation made by him at the close of his testimony reveals this.

"I think", said he, "a feeling of sadness should come over any bankers who had a part in the negotiation of loans to the Insull Utility Companies".

In fact the distinguished authors of the Dawes Plan and the Young Plan for solving German reparations and intergovernmental debts have extracted a great deal of gloom from the Insull collapse.

With DAWES it is "A FEELING OF SADNESS". With YOUNG it is "A FEELING OF HELPLESSNESS".

The feeling of the investing public, who have lost their shirts in the Insull bubble and have no means of exchanging worthless Insull securities for Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans, is one both of SADNESS AND HELPLESSNESS.

They are "SADDER" than the bankers of whom General Dawes speaks, and MORE "HELPLESS" than Mr. Owen D. Young can at any time have felt.

A Big Business Meeting

The Foreign Trade Convention to Be Held Here Offers Opportunities for Useful Action.

Pittsburgh's manufacturers and business men should not fail to prepare for the convention of the National Foreign Trade Council, which will be held here on April 26, 27 and 28.

Subjects of the first importance to Pittsburgh's leading industries are to be discussed.

One of the subjects on the program is "The Effect of Depreciated Currencies on Our Export and Import Trade." With Japan, because of depreciation of the yen, now able to offer pig iron in this country at $4 a ton less than the cost of the domestic product, and Great Britain, because of the depreciation of the pound, able to lay down coal in Boston for $1.89 a ton less than the cost of laying down in that city a ton of Pennsylvania coal of equal grade, we have good reason to be concerned over this matter.

It is gratifying to note that the convention will give a great deal of consideration to the improvement of our trade relations with Latin-America.

Pan-American reciprocity is an important corollary of the "Buy American" movement. Good-will will be furthered and trade promoted by such gestures of friendliness as are planned for the convention. At the World Trade Dinner on April 27 greetings are to be received from presidents and prominent officials of a number of Latin-American countries.

James A. Farrell, former president of the United States Steel Corporation, is chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, and many other business men of the first rank are to participate in the proceedings of the Pittsburgh convention. Two thousand business executives will attend.

Here is an opportunity for Pittsburgh's men of commerce to co-operate in action that will benefit not only local industries but the business of the whole country.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Save

No More Yacht.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, soon to live in the White House, is making White House plans that involve a cut of 25 per cent in household expenses. The number of servants in the White House will be reduced from 32 to 23.

Many American housekeepers may think that 23 servants are more than enough, but would not think so, after going through the White House.

President Hoover began his administration by discarding the presidential yacht, which probably will not come back for some time. Whoever has kept a big yacht knows what that costs. There were six servants, little Filipino "boys" waiting in the dining room alone, as well as a whole crew of officers and men, and coal to burn. The yacht Mayflower was sold and later burned.

Mr. Knickerbocker who investigated things in Europe, says Frenchmen that know tell him "there is no use in discussing the question of the French CAPACITY to pay. No French government could last that would agree to pay. We are in precisely the same position as Germany was in with regard to reparations. Everybody knew that Germany could pay but would not."

Our European debt seems to be a NOT very valuable asset.

Mr. Knickerbocker says the French "man in the street" stresses the importance of cancelling Europe's debt to us, as a means of "helping trade in the United States." How kind. There are many American taxpayers that would "stress the importance" of COLLECTING the foreign debt as another and better way of helping trade in the United States.

What this country needs is money and spending power. The people can't have much of either while government—national, state and city, takes everything in taxes.

Mussolini, the sun never sets on a day of barrenness. The other day it was announced that he would take over all defense departments, Air, Water and Land. Now he tells ten thousand men representing 120,000 brain workers, in substance: "I want the cooperation of intelligence and learning. I despise the aristocracy of abstract, unfruitful culture."

Harmony!

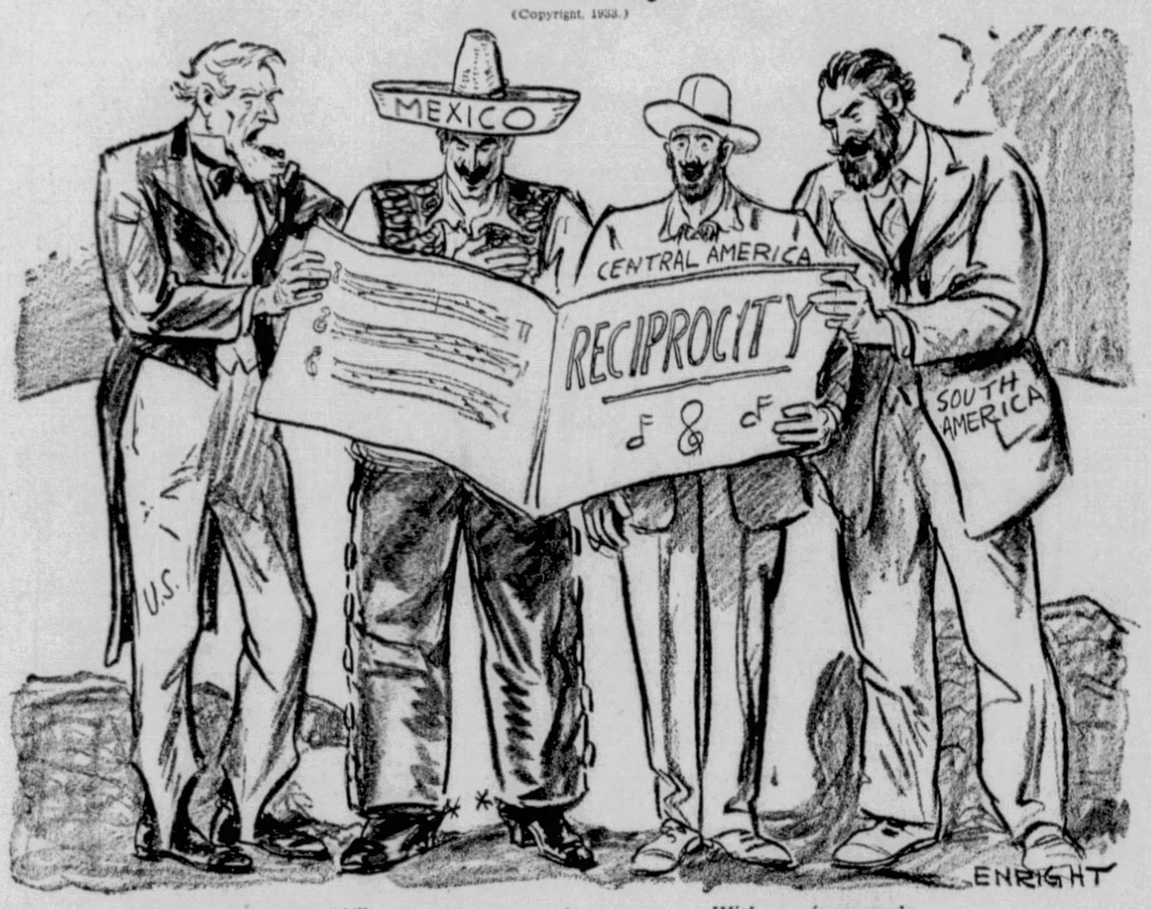
(Copyright, 1933.)



From the snow-covered hills
To the tropical rills
There are voices that hanker to croon,
There are musical throats
That can warble the notes
Of a sweet Pan-American tune.

With a soft serenade
They can jazz up the trade
That has grown so decrepit and cold,
They can hand a new thrill
To the market and mill
With a ballad of silver and gold.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Social prestige seems no longer a burning desire of the whirl. So little is it regarded that several high-ups are reputed to have asked their names be omitted from the Social Register—that $7.50 tome that is such a boon to vanity and specialty shop circularizing.

Elso Maxwell, a bit over-press-agented as a grand thrower of the binge among the sniffish here and abroad, now offers every notch in the human scale at affairs she exploits. The small-time hoofer meets the adenoidal Lady Whozis. And nobody arches a brow.

At ringside tables in uppish cafes, Gold Coast hoity-toities have had to give way to those stamped with the circusey celebrity of Broadway. Proprietors would rather have a Mae West or a Peggy Whatyoucallem than a current blue blood. Vital people like Mae West cause talk. Talk fills cafes.

Opening nights of important theatricals may see aristocrats back of the orchestra. While front pews are dotted with tabloid headliners—Daddy Browning and his orchid, a Dutch Schultz, a reigning Wall Street bear or the platinumed patootie of a penthouse scandal. The most publicity wins.

Increasingly frozen enthusiasms for Jimmy Walker mark every newsreel shot. At first it was as though he might have been the target for a well-organized campaign of silence; then came sporadic booing, but lately the reception is a loud, sustained and viperish hissing, especially pronounced when he is shown with Betty Compton. Those who might tolerate Walker, it seems, cannot stand for his girl friend.

* *

Incidentally, the Embassy, which originated the all-newsreel policy, is a sort of town pump for the metropolis. The patronage is regular, everybody knows the doorman, the directress in the reception hall and the ushers. In the audience may be seen Charles M. Schwab, Nathan Burkan, Owen Young, Damon Runyon and such. I am told it's the only public place where Col. Lindbergh sees films of himself.

* * *

In the shine of a Broadway shop window the other evening was a face vaguely familiar. I skirted around several times and finally said: "You are someone I know and I've been trying to figure who." He looked blank and half suspicious. "Never saw you in my life," he said, then murmured something and moved on, leaving me slightly confused. And such are the complexities of the human mind that I stayed awake most of the night trying to place him, although I don't care a hoot.

And, during my wakefulness, I happened to look out a window into a moonlit and deserted street. Out of a byway came a jet-bonnetted woman and a spindly girl. While the older woman seemed to be on watch, the younger began to dig in the earth of the center mall, scooping the dirt into what looked like a shoe box. I thought of a buried treasure. But, it was apparent, they only wanted a box of dirt. I wondered what agrarian impulse inspired such a midnight whim. Perhaps earth for some starved plant. New York!

Katharine Brush was telling of the young married couple on Park Avenue who had reached life's dregs. Eviction faced them. Most of their furniture and household articles had been pawned and their servants dismissed. They sat about a room in hopeless dejection when the dumb elevator buzzed and a voice cried: "The garbage man is here!" "Send some up!" yawned the lady of the house.

Someone writes that young Clyde Beatty, the animal trainer, has succeeded Johnny Weissmuller as something brand new in Hollywood lady killers. Three years ago, he was a shy boy from a farm near Chillicothe, O.—a circus runaway who graduated from cage cleaner to control of "the cats." Today, he has the pencil-mustached poise of a Menjou, attends teas and wears a high hat to openings at Sid Graumann's.

Speaking of teas, it seems that they are consecrated almost solely these days to tutting the technocrats. Or springing a new one about Noel Coward.

Gambling by Banks

They Should Be Prohibited by Law from Speculating in Stocks

By JULIUS G. BERENS,
Financial Editor, New York American

THE 1929 market panic was an inevitable aftermath to violent public gambling in stock.

The public had become "stock minded," a favorite expression of those insane days.

Has it been forgotten that many of our commercial banks also joined this "stock minded" craze — to their everlasting discredit and immeasurable loss?

A MAJOR BANKING REFORM WOULD PREVENT THE NATION'S BANKS EVER AGAIN PARTICIPATING IN STOCK GAMBLING OR PROMOTIONAL ACTIVITIES.

So-called "affiliates" of commercial banks, permitting them to participate in security underwritings, or to speculate in stocks, should be abolished by law.

THESE AFFILIATES were organized mainly by the larger-sized banks, especially those in the key cities of the nation.

The records prove that the greatest part of the worries of these self-same banks in recent years originated not from the own strictly banking business BUT FROM THEIR SECURITY AFFILIATES.

Such embarrassments were inevitable. The banks became involved in the same type of stock speculation that found the public trapped when the market collapsed.

There is absolutely no excuse for banks becoming speculators in stocks.

Nor should banks engage in distribution of securities.

THROUGH THEIR security affiliates, many banks became stock salesmen, enticing former investors into the mere of speculation. In their eagerness for profits, these security affiliates immeasurably lowered the standards of investment upon which their clients had formerly depended.

Instead of unbiased investment advice, clients of banks with affiliated security distributing organizations were being loaded with the affiliates' securities.

The fact that it was found advisable to organize such affiliates proves bankers themselves recognized the threat to their institutions if such activities were carried on directly.

Security affiliates were organized also to get around banking laws which prohibit the banks themselves conducting such business.

IS IT not significant that among the big banks those without security affiliates have enjoyed the strongest prestige throughout the difficult period through which the nation has passed?

Underwriting and promotion of securities should be no part of a bank's operations.

Such activities are strictly the business of investment bankers. It is the latter's function to furnish promotional capital and long-term capital needs of industry and commerce. This function is completely distinct from the institution which seeks public funds for safekeeping and employment in the everyday activities of commerce and industry.

When the banks of the nation return strictly to the banking business, then an immense step forward toward true banking reform will have been automatically accomplished.

Another needed reform in banking will be outlined in a subsequent article.
